BIG BROTHERS WAR ON WANT

W. L. MILLER WINS TWO NEW ROUNDS IN HIGHWAY BOUT

Injunction Against Interference Made Permanent; Five Are Found Guilty of Contempt.

W. L. Miller, ousted chairman of the State Highway Board, yesterday won two rounds of his legal battle to regain his post.

A three-judge superior court sitting at Nashville made permanent an injunction preventing Lawson L. Patten, his appointed successor, from interfering with Miller's conduct as chairman of the road board. Later, the court found Patten and four others guilty of contempt of court in ejecting Miller from his office.

Besides Patten, those found guilty of contempt of court were S. Marvin Griffin, executive aide to Governor Rivers, and three capitol guards, E. W. Longino, R. C. Ulmer and Woody Wilson.

The sentence on the contempt charges was 20 days in jail or a $200 fine each, but it was stayed pending an appeal. Bond of $500 each was set. All were freed under the bonds late last night.

Judge Will R. Smith, of Nashville, presiding, granted a supersedeas to allow appeal in the contempt cases, but he refused a similar motion in the case of the injunction, made permanent at a day session of the court and directed against Patten, Griffin and Guards W. C. Grimes, Longino, Ulmer and Wilson.

Just what effect the court's decision would have on Miller's status remained in doubt last night. Governor Rivers, who has announced that Miller "will not return to the highway department during my administration," was out of the city when the decision was announced.

Two courses were open to the Governor to prevent Miller's return.

The first would necessitate the invoking of martial law over the

GARNER DECLARES HIS CANDIDACY IN PRESIDENTIAL RACE

First To Say He'll Seek Nomination Without a Hint of Dropping Out If F. D. R. Runs Again.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16.—(AP)—Vice President Garner formally entered the presidential race today—and became the first Democrat openly to seek his party's nomination without indicating that he would step aside if President Roosevelt should seek a third term.

The colorful Texan went on record in a terse 44-word statement just before leaving his Uvalde, Texas, home for a hunting trip. It said:

"I will accept the nomination for President. I will make no effort to control any delegates. The people should decide. A candidate should be selected at primaries and conventions, as provided by law, and I sincerely trust that all Democrats will participate in them."

Some capitol politicians immediately professed to see in Garner's wording a statement of opposition to any efforts that might be made by anyone to obtain delegates for trading purposes or to control the balance of power at the convention—such an effort, in other words, as might possibly be made on behalf of the President, even if he did not intend to be a candidate.

The Garner announcement was regarded also as a direct appeal to the rank and file of the party. The Vice President's friends have stressed that he hopes to be chosen as the result of a "grass roots"

FOUNDED IN 1906; 450 EMPLOYES WILL BE AFFECTED

Journal To Take Over Features and News Services of the Paper as 33-Year Career Ends.

By The Associated Press.

The Atlanta Georgian-American, a Hearst newspaper unit, announced today it would cease publication with its Sunday issue.

"Its feature news and services will appear in the Atlanta Journal, beginning Monday, December 18, 1939," said the announcement.

An afternoon daily, it was founded April 25, 1906, and acquired by William Randolph Hearst in 1912.

Closing of the Georgian-American left two newspapers dominant in the Atlanta field. They are the Journal, (afternoon) which was purchased last Tuesday by former Governor James M. Cox, of Ohio, along with its 50,000-watt radio station, WSB, and The Constitution, (morning) published by Major Clark Howell, a director of the Associated Press.

Cox said he had no comment on the suspension of the Georgian.

Aggressive in the news and editorial field, the Georgian-American was active in a campaign which in 1908 ended a much-criticized system of leasing Georgia convicts to private employers. The newspaper twice won the Georgia Press Association's Suttie trophy for outstanding service to its community. There were about 450 employees.

Hearst at various times sent some of his sons to serve with the newspaper. One of them, Randolph A. Hearst, was assistant to Howard A. Stodghill, who was named publisher a few months ago after the death of Publisher Herbert Porter.

The Georgian management February 2, 1907, purchased the Atlanta News, organized in 1902 by a group of business men with

TO SELL SPECIAL EDITION OF PAPER TO OBTAIN FUNDS

Atlantans Urged To Help Cause Which Seeks To Spread Cheer for Poor on Christmas.

A powerful, crushing offensive against misery and unhappiness in Atlanta as the Christmas season approaches will be launched today by Big Brothers who will take to Atlanta's streets armed with special Big Brother editions of The Constitution.

You can become a very definite part of this campaign. You can do it by purchasing a copy of the Big Brother edition. And by doing just that you will bring Christmas cheer to some home that faces a bleak, gloomy holiday season.

The Big Brothers who sell the special editions will rise before dawn. They will be giving a part of their Sunday to a worthy cause. They will cover the entire city, calling at your home, waving at you as you go to church, imploring you to help as you march home to Sunday dinner.

This is your chance, Atlanta—a chance to say, "thank you" for some of the blessings you have received during the past year. You can pay 15 cents for a copy of the paper if you can spare no more. But if you feel you have been generously rewarded during the year you can give $100 or more. There is no limit.

And while you're buying a paper, remember that the seventh annual charity ball will be held Wednesday night at the city auditorium from 9 to 12 o'clock. Tickets are 50 cents each. Harry Hearn and his orchestra will furnish the music.

Miss Becky Davis will be a contestant for "Queen" of the charity ball which will be sponsored by Progressive Young Americans. The girl selling the most tickets will occupy the throne.

Whatever you give today for the papers will go into the general fund to buy Christmas baskets for the poorest families in the city, families who have been overlooked by their friends and welfare organizations, families that are remembered only by the Big Brothers.

There are hundreds of persons in Atlanta who cannot look forward to Christmas as many of you. There is nothing to make them happy. Their tables are bare. They shiver in cold rooms where there is no fire and listen to the whistling of the wind through the cracks in the walls. There is not enough cover to keep them warm at night and they lie awake suffering from the cold.

Some Are Blameless.

The destitute families are not always to blame for their plight. There may have been a reason for their misfortune—one that they could not help. The father may have been taken sick or he may have lost his job because there weren't enough jobs to go around. Fate may have dealt him a horrible blow.

Think, too, Atlanta, of the little children who may have to pass Christmas without a visit from Santa Claus, unless you help. Think of how you would have felt at their age if you had risen on Christmas morning and not found a stocking with at least an apple or an orange or a piece of candy in it.

To Spread Cheer.

On the other hand, picture the little faces that will be made bright, if you contribute generously. Think of them bouncing out of bed and running as fast as their little legs will carry them to see what old St. Nick has left. Atlanta, you couldn't stand to let those little faces be sad.

And so the Big Brothers will be all over Atlanta today to make the job of contributing easier for you. You won't be bothered much. You can just buy a paper, and then on Christmas Day you can eat your turkey and cranberry sauce and plum pudding and know that somewhere in the city your contribution is making somebody else happy.

Louisianans Distrust Elections

Majority Think Recent Votes Dishonest; Doubt Present Regime Will Clean House

By DR. GEORGE GALLUP.

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

Copyright, 1939, by American Institute of Public Opinion.

PRINCETON, N. J., Dec. 16.—A month from now Louisiana political forces will clash in a state primary that may be the most fiercely contested election contest since the days of Huey Long. It will be important to Louisiana because it will determine the fate of the Long machine, headed by Governor Earl K. Long, which has survived the Kingfish by more than four years in spite of investigations and disclosures which have rocked the state from end to end.

Political observers throughout the United States will be watching the results with unusual interest. Does the Long regime still hold the support of the people of Louisiana as it did in Huey's day?

To find out what the real sentiments of Louisiana voters are at this time the American Institute of Public Opinion has conducted an impartial state-wide survey. From the Mississippi delta to the Arkansas line, and from east to west, the Institute has reached a carefully selected cross-section of the state voting population, asking a series of questions on the state government, on the coming primary election and on Huey Long himself.

In no other state in all its four years of experience has the Institute encountered such an amazing situation, a situation that exists in spite of a tradition of democratic government extending over the past 127 years.

The story of what the Institute found, and how the survey was conducted, is told for the first time today and in two succeeding articles in The Constitution.

Leaving for subsequent articles what the people of Louisiana think about the candidates

In the coming election, and how they now regard Huey Long, the survey brings three salient facts to light:

1. The great majority of persons who were interviewed say they think state elections in recent years have not been honestly conducted.

2. The majority have no faith that the present Long regime will "clean house" if it is returned to power next year.

3. A substantial number of voters even say they think that state courts in Louisiana are dishonest. The Institute has no concern whatsoever with the honesty or dishonesty of Louisiana elections or institutions—only with the people's opinions of these elections and institutions. The results in this case give a striking picture of what the public themselves think.

The Institute's questions, which were put to Louisiana voters by resident interviewers and by a special crew of field investigators sent into the state, were:

"Do you think elections in

Louisianans Afraid To Talk. Gallup Investigators Find

By INSTITUTE OF PUBLIC OPINION.

PRINCETON, N. J., Dec. 17.—In the course of its regular national surveys, in which it makes use of more than 700 field investigators in all parts of the United States, the American Institute of Public Opinion occasionally finds people who are unwilling to express their opinions for one reason or another. But the Institute has never found, in any state, on any question, such widespread reluctance to speak and such guardedness in replies as in the Institute's present study in Louisiana.

Time and again, both in New Orleans and "upstate," investigators found doors narrowed to a slit or slammed shut as soon as the purpose of the interviewer's visit was announced.

Poor Apprehensive. Fear of expressing an opinion on the state political race was more common in the poorer districts, and men proved more apprehensive than women, although some women, in the absence of their husbands, said: "My husband has told me not to talk to anybody about state politics."

Throughout the survey an average of one person in every five (20%) indicated that he was afraid to talk for fear of political reprisals or for other reasons, even though voters were given every assurance as to the confidential character of the interview.

A typical statement is that of a New Orleans woman living on a poor street: "Huey Long was the bestest man we ever had, but don't you go writin' any of this down. My husband'd kill me if I ever told anything. There was a man here the other day—and bigger than you—and he told my husband plenty. We're all for Long on this street—every one of us—so don't go askin' me any more." And the door closed.

More than once investigators were threatened with shotguns or held for the local sheriff. The following is from the report of one of the investigators:

"I saw a farm off the road apiece. I got out of the car and approached the door. When I reached the porch stairs the front door flew open, and a tall man strode out cooking a double-barreled shotgun. 'I don't know what you want,' he said, 'but I'll give you just 10 seconds to get back through that there gate.'"

"Huey Was Good." In an introductory question voters were asked whether they thought the influence of Huey Long in Louisiana had been good or bad. One man answered in this fashion:

"Good. Huey was a fine man. He did more for our poor folks in a day than all the others did in all the years. What did they say in them other houses (indicating a row of neighboring houses)?"

Told that some said good, some bad, he exploded: "Why those cheatin' ones! They never—any of 'em—had a job exceptin' for Huey Long and his brother. I wish you'd show me the ones that says he was a bad influence! I'll report 'em tomorrow and they'll sure lose their jobs fast."

"You (indicating the interviewer) are probably a Long man, and you'll probably report 'em before I can, but I sure wish you'd let me do it."

In conducting its survey the Institute talked with more than 2,500 voters in a total of 31 of the state's 64 parishes, and used the same procedures which were followed in state surveys a year ago in New York, Kentucky, South Carolina, Georgia, and Maryland, in which the Institute's average error was less than 2 per cent.

Although a subsequent article will discuss what Louisiana voters think about the candidates, the Institute's study is not by any means a forecast of the way the election will turn out. It remains merely a unique record of the uncoerced opinions of Louisiana voters more than a month before the actual balloting.

The astonishing cynicism and pessimism of Louisiana voters is not, moreover, an indication that a majority of voters will vote against the Long regime. As subsequent stories will show, there is plenty of ungrudging support for Governor Earl Long, especially among the younger voters, many of whom look to the state for jobs, and among low-income voters, many of whom regard Huey, as nearly a saint and see his brother Earl as merely carrying on Huey's work.

The greatest differences are found in the opinions of the various income levels. The least criticism of the Long regime occurs in the lowest income level. Sharpest criticism comes from the business groups and other upper income groups.

A month from now the voters will choose among five candidates—Governor Long, the incumbent; Attorney Sam Jones, of Lake Charles; Jimmy Noy, former henchman of the Kingfish but now an opponent of the Long regime; and James H. Morrison and Vincent K. Moseley. If one of the candidates for governor does not obtain a majority in the primary, the law provides for a run-off between the two leaders.

The story of how voters feel about the primary, and how they regard Huey Long, will be told on Wednesday and Friday in The Constitution.

GARNER ANNOUNCES HE IS A CANDIDATE

movement and is not interested in controlling delegates so as to share in any trade by which another nominee might be picked even if he finds that he cannot win.

Is Third Candidate. Garner's statement made him the third openly receptive candidate for the Democratic nomination.

Paul V. McNutt, federal security administrator, made it known some time ago that he would be a candidate if President Roosevelt did not seek a third term. At St. Paul this week, Senator Wheeler, Democrat-Montana, said that he did not believe the President wanted a third term nor did he think that Mr. Roosevelt should be forced to take the nomination against his wishes.

The Montana senator said that if the President did not run, he would be available for any responsibilities that the Democratic convention wished to place on him.

Friends Applaud News. Most capital comment on the Garner announcement was restrained. Friends were quick, however, to praise the Vice President's record of 38 years of service in the national government.

"The Vice President has a large following," said Senator Holt, Democrat, West Virginia, a frequent administration critic. "He will be a formidable candidate for anyone in the party—and when I say anyone, I mean anyone."

Declaring that Garner "has a great many friends in North Carolina," Senator Bailey, Democrat, North Carolina, added: "His record, any way you look at it, is good."

Foes Withhold Comment. Most of those who have been critical of Garner in the past withheld comment. It appeared certain, however, that just as McNutt's declaration subjected him to attack by elements in his party, which did not favor his candidacy, Garner's action would sharpen the political fire which already has been directed at him.

Long regarded as a potential candidate, the ruddy-faced Vice President was sharply denounced last July by John L. Lewis, CIO chief.

Testifying before the house labor committee, Lewis accused Garner of responsibility for attempts to modify labor legislation.

Charge Becomes Famous. He remarked that the origin of the attacks on the legislation was not hard to find, adding that the opposition "came from a labor-baiting, poker-playing, whisky-drinking, evil old man whose name is John N. Garner."

Lewis said he was against Garner "personally, concretely and in the abstract," asserting: "And I'll be against him when he seeks the presidency in 1940."

Garner made no reply to the Lewis attack, but his friends took up Lewis' word with levity and soon "Evil Old Man" Clubs were being organized.

When asked for comment to-night on Garner's statement, Lewis gave out word that he had nothing to say because his "views on the subject of Mr. Garner are well known."

GARNER ANNOUNCEMENT NO SURPRISE TO McNUTT

CHICAGO, Dec. 14.—(UP)—Paul V. McNutt, himself a candidate for the 1940 Democratic presidential nomination, received the formal announcement of Vice President John N. Garner's candidacy tonight with the statement: "It's been obvious for some time. I have no comment."

WISCONSIN STRONGLY FOR GARNER, CLAIM

MILWAUKEE, Dec. 17.—(UP)—William D. Carroll, chairman of the Wisconsin Democratic state central committee, predicted today that if Vice President Garner entered the Wisconsin 1940 primary, a slate of Garner-pledged delegates would be elected to the Democratic national convention.

Wisconsin Garner-for-President headquarters announced it had received more than 3,000 pledges of support thus far, representing every county in Wisconsin.

ROOSEVELT DECLINES COMMENT ON GARNER

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Dec. 16.—(UP)—President Roosevelt tonight declined to comment on Vice President John N. Garner's announcement of his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for president.

Garner's statement, issued in Uvalde, Texas, was read to the President here by a White House secretary, William Hassett. He reported that there was no comment from the President.

Mr. Roosevelt's refusal to comment on the Garner announcement was a further indication that he was determined to keep his 1940 political plans to himself until he was ready to speak, despite any pressure.

Third-term talk was given impetus in the last 10 days when Ambassadors Joseph P. Kennedy and Joseph E. Davies returned from Europe and issued statements urging the third term.

CITY OF FLINT PLANS TO SAIL FOR HOME

BERGEN, Norway, Dec. 16.—(UP)—Captain J. A. Gairard, of the American freighter City of Flint, today told newspapermen the ship would sail for home "from some Norwegian port as soon as it gets either ballast or a cargo."

STATE PEDIATRIC SPECIALISTS HOLD ANNUAL MEETING

More Than 100 Doctors Attend Discussions; Fulton County Men Featured on Program.

Leading children's doctors from six southern states gathered at the Billmore hotel yesterday for the seventh annual scientific meeting of the Georgia Pediatric Association.

More than 100 pediatric specialists, of whom 20 were from Atlanta, heard technical lectures on the care of children and the treatment of infant diseases. The session was presided over by Dr. L. H. Muse, of Atlanta, president of the state organization.

During the afternoon meeting, Dr. Harold Bowcock, assistant professor of medicine at Emory University, discussed spinal meningitis and its management. Dr. Harry Bakwin, assistant professor of pediatrics at New York University, talked on recent advances in the knowledge of newborn. Dr. Charles F. McKhann, associate professor of pediatrics at Harvard Medical School, reviewed the progress in the control of respiratory infections.

Last night the meeting was turned over to the Fulton County Medical Association's pediatric section. With Dr. Bakwin and Dr. McKhann, the program included also Dr. Edgar Green, president of the Fulton organization.

Other officers in the association include Dr. Leila Denmark, vice president, and Dr. Don F. Cathcart, secretary and treasurer, both of Atlanta. Dr. R. C. McGahee, of Augusta, will be installed as new president in the group's April meeting in Savannah.

JONESBORO TRIALS RESUME TOMORROW

Commissioner Moore, Accused of Malpractice, To Appear First.

Clayton County Commissioner H. Grady Moore, charged with malpractice in office, will be called before a superior court jury in Jonesboro tomorrow morning, Solicitor Roy Leathers said yesterday.

His hearing will be followed immediately by the trials of Commissioners W. S. Lee and Dr. J. R. Wallis, also charged with five counts of malpractice by a November grand jury bent on "civic house cleaning."

Court Was Postponed.

The Clayton term of the Stone Mountain court circuit was postponed for one week last Monday when Moore and Lee pleaded for a continuance on grounds of ill health. Judge James C. Davis denied the petition, but granted them a week if they promised to be ready for hearing at that time.

Juries already have found guilty on three of the five malpractice counts lodged against the entire commission the board chairman, E. C. Cargile and Commissioner W. L. Stephens. Sentence on the two verdicts has been held over, pending the trial of the remaining Clayton officials.

A term of DeKalb county grand jury and superior court, also on the Stone Mountain circuit, scheduled for December 18, has been held over until some time in January or February.

S. D. K. FRATERNITY ELECTS W. N. EASON

Plans Laid for Installation of Officers.

W. N. Eason was elected chancellor of the newly organized John Marshall Law School chapter of Sigma Delta Kappa national legal fraternity and plans were laid for the initiation and installation of officers on Wednesday, December 20, at a meeting of the chapter Friday night.

Other officers are: Henry W. Loard, vice chancellor; Clyde E. Turner, treasurer; Robert E. Champion, secretary; Thaddeus E. Cabok, chaplain; J. J. Elliott, bailiff, and John W. Ward, reporter.

At the banquet Wednesday night, national officers of the fraternity will attend, Dean S. B. Fenster announced. They are: Frank Blackman, Louisville, Ky., grand president; W. Ray Black, Chattanooga, Tenn., southern vice president; L. W. Horning, New York, grand secretary; and Emmett Johnson, Atlanta, grand treasurer. Officers and members of local chapters and faculty members of the John Marshall Law School also will attend.

W. L. MOORE HEADS HOSPITAL GROUP

Dr. L. C. Fischer Named President Emeritus.

Wiley L. Moore, Atlanta businessman, was elected president of the United Hospitals Service Association of Atlanta at the annual directors' meeting Friday, it was announced yesterday.

Moore succeeds Dr. L. C. Fischer, who served as president since the organization's founding in November, 1937. Dr. Fischer was elected president-emeritus for life. He was presented with a silver loving cup in token of appreciation for his past services.

Other officers chosen were: George R. Burt and Dr. G. Pope Huguley, vice presidents; W. D. Barker, treasurer, and Robert S. Hudgens, secretary.

C. J. Anderson, executive director, submitted the annual report.

60 CO-ED DETECTIVES
FIND MONEY THIEF

SIOUX CITY, Iowa, Dec. 16.—(P)—Sixty Morningside College co-eds turned detective en masse and locked themselves behind dormitory doors to find out which one of them stole $25.

The money was taken from Dorothy Long, a resident student. After more than 12 hours of voluntary mass imprisonment, one of the 60 confessed to Dr. Earl A. Roadman, the college president, and returned the money.

★ Laundries ★RIVERS SAYS FOES
'TO GO WITH WIND'Opponents of Post Roads, State Labor Department Receive Most Attention.

Taking "Gone With the Wind" for his text, Governor Rivers yesterday renewed his attack on opponents of his state program asserting in a radio speech last night, "We are determined not to stack our guns until every single one of these ham-stringing, service blocking, self-seekers is gone with the wind."

The Governor centered his fire on "enemies of the program who measure the services of the state by the yardstick laid down by the last state administration." He confined most of his attack to opponents of the post roads program of the highway department and those who fought his plan for creation of a state department of labor.

Rivers said he does not plan to make a speech next week, but hopes for a summation of his series before January 1. Soon thereafter, it is thought, he plans to sound out sentiment in the general assembly on a tax program with the view of calling a special session to bolster faltering general revenues which are being held up now chiefly by impounded highway funds.

The Governor made no direct reference to W. L. Miller, removed chairman of the highway board, who has announced he also plans a radio speech in answer to a previous Rivers attack, but he did fire one barrel at Miller when he mentioned "administrative opposition" to the post roads program. Miller was instrumental in merging the post roads setup with the highway department generally.

W. L. MILLER WINS

highway department, all of its divisions, shops and offices. It is known that Rivers desires to accomplish the permanent ouster of Miller without taking this step but also that he is ready to declare martial law, technically at least, to prevent Miller's resumption of his duties under orders from any court.

The Governor can accept Patten's "resignation" and name a new board member who in turn can be elected "chairman" just as Patten was. Then if another court order is obtained naming the new "chairman" he in turn can resign and still another can be named. In this manner, inasmuch as it requires from two to four weeks to obtain a permanent injunction, the chief executive could "short circuit" court orders from now until the end of his administration.

Governor Rivers left Atlanta immediately after his radio speech at 4:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon and is not expected back until tomorrow morning. The highway wrangle, together with a series of engagements with "Gone With the Wind" visitors, was said to have caused him to leave the city for a brief rest.

Murphy Appears.
The appearance of E. D. (Buck) Murphy, former assistant attorney general under Governor Talmadge who successfully steered Talmadge's martial law proclamation through several court attacks,

Men Are Hosts
But Not So Far
As Doing Dishes

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.
WAYCROSS, Ga., Dec. 16.—The old ditty, "Let the women do the work, while the men stay home and rest," was frowned upon last night when the Men's Bible Class of the First Presbyterian church gave a dinner in honor of the two women's classes of the church.

The men served the meal—but they balked at washing the dishes. To the credit of the males, however, they didn't make the women do it. They employed outside help.

gave rise to the belief in Atlanta that Rivers was ready to invoke martial law over the highway department. In this connection, it was established that the Governor hopes that if martial law is necessary it will be only technical and that Miller will abide by it and not require the definite appearance of troops to keep him out of the chairman's office.

When Talmadge ran the highway department under martial law, he set up the then Commissioner Jud P. Wilhoit as a sort of highway director under Adjutant General Lindley W. Camp, and it is presumed that in the event Rivers follows Talmadge's course, Commissioners Jim L. Gillis and Herman Watson and, perhaps, Patten, would be named to a joint directorate.

The employment of Murphy, now engaged in private practice in Atlanta, was the supposed tip-off on the Governor's eventual plans. It was Murphy who drew up Talmadge's martial law proclamation and made it such that it could not be successfully attacked in the courts.

Patten's Attorneys.
Attorneys for Patten gave notice last night that an appeal to the supreme court would be taken in the injunction case, but whether or not the appeal would be pressed could not be learned. If martial law is invoked, civil courts would be set aside as far as the highway department is concerned.

The permanent injunction was handed down by Judge W. R. Smith, of Nashville; Judge W. E. Thomas, of Valdosta, and Judge M. D. Dickinson, of Douglas. Judge Thomas read the opinion for the court.

He said that inasmuch as Miller had been bodily removed from his office, he still had the legal standing of highway chairman.

Defense Witness.
Major defense witness yesterday was Patten, who declared that after trying for months to heal the breach between Governor Rivers and the board head, he accepted the Highway Department post. He denied, however, that he was exercising any authority as chairman, saying all official acts of the board now required the signatures of himself and Board Members James L. Gillis and Herman Watson.

Murphy asserted "even if Mr. Miller is the rightful chairman, even though he were ousted by force and violence, he cannot obtain an injunction to restrain his successor from exercising the duties of the office."

The defense contention was that the declaration of the Governor that the office was vacant precluded a judicial inquiry into the fact of the vacancy.

Thursday Set.
The three-judge bench set next Thursday for a hearing on two other phases of Miller's litigation. They are a mandamus against Patten and Board Members Gillis and Watson asking why they should not be compelled to recognize Miller as rightful chairman; and a quo warranto seeking to oust Patten and reinstate Miller.

Meanwhile, Miller announced he would discuss over the radio Tuesday afternoon "issues surrounding my position as chairman of the highway board." He is scheduled to speak from 4:30 to 5 o'clock over WSB.

Miller told the tribunal that Patten had consulted him several hours prior to his removal whether he (Patten) should accept the appointment. Patten was named to the board by Governor Rivers December 2 and promptly elected chairman by Board Members James L. Gillis and Herman Watson.

Recounts Ejections.
The ousted chairman also recounted his forcible ejections from office in which he was alleged to have suffered painful injuries in scuffles with guards.

Counsel constantly referred to Miller as "chairman" of the board.

LIONS CLUB ELECTS.
DALTON, Ga., Dec. 16.—Dr. Leo C. Temple has been elected president of the Dalton Lions Club for the first six months of 1940. He will succeed Henry W. Nevin. FARM EXPERIMENTValdosta-Lowndes Chamber
Leases Tract To Operate
Next Year.

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.
VALDOSTA, Ga., Dec. 16.—By virtue of a contract signed this week, the Valdosta-Lowndes County Chamber of Commerce becomes the first organization of its kind in the nation to engage in experimental farming.

Under the contract, the chamber, during 1940, will operate its own experimental farm designed to lead an advanced agricultural program which the organization has scheduled for its principal objective for the year.

The chamber has leased the Davis farm near Barretts, and has employed an operator.

The experimental farm will be operated under the personal supervision of Fred Schroer, and it is planned that a diversification of crops will yield an annual income well above the average for south Georgia farms. Modern planting, cultivation and harvesting methods are to be followed.

Schroer, who was among Georgia's first Master Farmers, has won a nation-wide reputation for his progressive and diversified farming.

Saves Atlantan
From Death

Prompt action by her escort was credited yesterday with saving the life of Miss Georgia Holbeck, 29, of 57 Lafayette drive, N. E., who suffered severe burns Friday night when her gown caught fire at a dance in the city auditorium.

Blake Stewart, secretary to Judge John D. Humphries, of Fulton superior court, wrapped his coat around her and smothered the flames. The floor was so congested few persons witnessed the near-tragedy.

Miss Holbeck, daughter of Mrs. William A. Holbeck, was admitted to Grady hospital. Her condition last night was described as "fair." Police expressed the belief a carelessly tossed match ignited the gown.

FIRE IN GRIFFIN.
GRIFFIN, Ga., Dec. 16.—Fire of undetermined origin, which for a time threatened an entire block in the downtown business area, yesterday caused damage estimated at several thousands of dollars to Johnson's Drug Store, Hill and Broad streets. The loss was partially covered by insurance. Several adjoining stores were damaged by water.

SCOUT HEAD RENAMED.
NEWNAN, Ga., Dec. 16.—Wilkins Kirby has been re-elected for a second term as president of Flint River Council, Boy Scouts. J. M. Molder, of Griffin, is area Scout executive. Local officers named for 1940 include: District chairman, Hamilton C. Arnall; assistant, Wyllys Taylor; second executive board member, Raleigh Arnall; and district commissioner, Joe W. Parks.

THE BOX YOU'RE PROUD TO GIVE.... PROUD TO RECEIVE

For many years Davison's familiar red gift boxes have been Atlanta's symbol of a merry Christmas — like the light-strung trees on Atlanta's lawns, like the reindeer-in-the-sky in Ansley Park. Wherever you see these boxes (and you see them everywhere) it means the promise of something nice inside, a compliment given and received.

DEWEY SAYS NATION NEEDS NEW DOCTOR

Blames 'Zig-Zag' Policies of New Deal for 'Economic Ills.'

NEW YORK, Dec. 16.—(UP)—District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey charged tonight that the "zig-zag" policies of the Roosevelt administration were to blame for the "sick economy" of the nation and said it was time to "change doctors."

He listed the following as "some of the things we must do":

1. "Stop being half-way for a sort of creeping socialism and half-way for private enterprise. Adopt consistent tax policies. Start being wholeheartedly for the enterprise which makes jobs. Declare a firm faith in its future and back that faith with deeds."
2. "Stop making vague, unfounded charges against American businessmen. If any businessman vio-

Evelyn Keyes Will Be Guest At Charity Ball

Evelyn Keyes, Atlanta's contribution to the cast of "Gone With the Wind," will be an honor guest at the Big Brothers charity ball to be held at the city auditorium Wednesday night.

Proceeds from the affair will go toward the Big Brothers fund, sponsored by The Constitution and Atlanta Post No. 1, American Legion.

lates the law, name him, indict him, fine him, jail him.

3. "Begin to move toward actual economy and actual entrenchment of unnecessary public expenditure. Start just a trend toward solvency. Start that trend and show it on the books of the government month by month."
4. "Make secure the relief of the unemployed, the needy and the aged. Adopt policies that will raise our national income so that fulfillment of our social obligations will be no longer dependent upon the hazards of continued borrowing."

ANONYMOUS $1,000 FOR OPPORTUNITIES

asked us not to reveal his name because he enjoys giving anonymously, has assured Mr. E. of a chance at winning back the good standard of living he once had. But he has done more. His gift of $100 for another family has given an added incentive to Atlantans to help that family too.

If Atlantans will only donate dimes, nickels, dollars or anything, we can soon build this nucleus of $100 into enough really to provide the monthly aid that a rather needy but worthy family requires to whip its problems and become self-supporting. (That is the aim of all the Ten Opportunity families.)

Paid Out Monthly.

Of course, neither the $900 nor the $100 will be given the families all at once. No indeed! The Constitution, with the co-operation of the Family Welfare Society, only provides the monthly "balance wheel dollars" that families require to tide them over the toughest spots.

The majority of the families which are "adopted" as the Ten Opportunities at Christmas time are independent before the next year is out and the money originally subscribed to help those families is busy at work helping other, additional families.

That's one of the great points about the Ten Opportunity fund. As soon as one family wins out, another distressed mother or father is aided. Last year 26 families had been adopted at Christmas time but a total of 37 families were helped during the year.

Averaging five to the family, that means—think of it—that your contributions to the Ten Opportunity fund last Christmas helped at least 185 mothers, fathers, sons and daughters. Wouldn't you like to help make it even more this next year?

The anonymous giver who has so materially aided the poor of Atlanta this Christmas has helped them before, and often. He has given many thousands to charity and always anonymously. His heart is good.

Mr. E. Lost by Merger. He sympathized with the case of Mr. E., who was once an executive of a big company, but lost out when it merged with another. He had adopted his dead sister's four children, and his wife had to have an operation. Then he lost their

In the Evening (Or the Morning) Darkies Sing

"In the evening by the moonlight You can hear those darkies sing—"

Not only in the evening, but in the afternoon and morning. In fact, almost any time there was a party during the "Gone With the Wind" festivities, Graham Jackson and his instrumental and vocal ensemble, garbed in colorful ante-bellum costumes, helped to make the occasion merry.

Jackson, Atlanta's outstanding negro pianist, became the favorite musician of Hollywood's stars and officials. At the "Chip" Robert breakfast following the premiere, Jackson played for an hour at the request of David O. Selznick.

It is a true fact that tragedy and desperation are not confined to the poorer sections of the city, as well you people know who live out in the "fashionable" areas.

The Constitution wants this giver to know its appreciation for his big check (the like of which come far, far too seldom), but it also wants the public in general to know that its small donations are as welcome.

Adoption of Mr. E. as Opportunity No. 6, leaves Opportunities No. 2, 3, 4 and 7 still at the mercy of the wolves at their doors. Can't you help them just a teeny bit? Send or bring a gift for the Ten Opportunity families to Hugh H. Trotti, vice president and business manager of The Constitution, who is treasurer of the fund. Don't let the single gift of $1,000 discourage you. Rather, let it encourage you to join in this worthy campaign to keep families off the relief rolls! Give something this Christmas!

U. S. TO BUY SALT PORK AND LARD FOR RELIEF

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16.—(AP)—The Federal Surplus Commodities Corporation reported today it had contracted to buy 50,000 pounds of lard and 216,000 pounds of salt pork for relief distribution.

The agency had planned to buy a larger quantity of the pork, officials said, but offers submitted by most processors were described as inadequate. It asked processors to submit new offers up to December 27.

she had a job paying her enough to live on and keep Walter in school. Now she is in the hospital and likely to remain there for some months to come. In the meantime, there's Walter.

No Kin in Atlanta.

They have no kin nor kin in this town. He has no place to stay. When Mother was carried to the hospital they had to give up the rooms in which they had been living because they didn't have the money to pay the rent. Walter, right now is "boarding"—waiting for Mother to get well.

But there is no money to pay the board for this boy and that is mainly why the $20 a month is so badly needed. The hospital expenses for his mother are being cared for but there isn't money for Walter.

Job Awaits Her.

There will be, of course, when Mother's hip heals and she is able to walk (the doctors say this young woman will recover without undue trouble), because she will go back to her job. It will be open for her, her employer promises.

Walter himself came to the Family Welfare Society (which co-operates with The Constitution in the Ten Opportunities each year), to ask for help. It was the only place his mother knew to send him. Wouldn't you like to help this mother with her son until she gets well and back to work? Won't somebody "adopt" orphaned Walter for a while?

posal for the purchase of certain assets of The News.

"Public power has won; The News, however, pays the price," Milton's statement said. He added that another group "for personal reasons desired" his elimination from the Chattanooga newspaper field.

Supported New Deal.

The News, strong supporter of the New Deal administration and regarded as one of the most liberal papers in the south, said no paper is "worthy of public trust and confidence unless it shall be

VETERAN OPERATOR SIGNS HIS 'THIRTY'

Native of Georgia Ends 30 Years' Service.

DANVILLE, Va., Dec. 16.—(AP) For 30 years James H. Barnwell, as an Associated Press operator, has seen the news of the world march by.

Tonight, at the age of 65, he gave "thirty" on the wires and retired on an AP pension. Barnwell, a native of Warm Springs, Ga., has worked some 50 years with wire services. He began regular service with the Associated Press August 1, 1909, at Galveston, Texas, after service as a temporary employee at New Orleans and at Houston and Beaumont, Texas.

ready to sacrifice itself for what those who direct it believe the public good."

Referring to a previous fight on The News when it supported prohibition under the editorship of his father, who died in 1924, Milton said:

"I shall never forget the things he would tell me then that it is better to lose a newspaper than to compromise with honor and sell your soul."

Milton declined comment on his plans for the future. Under terms with bondholders for immediate suspension of publication, he won two weeks' severance pay for the 149 full-time employees on the paper.

With the closing of The News, the city has the morning Chattanooga Times and the afternoon Chattanooga Free Press. Chattanooga's population is 119,000.

GEORGIAN TO CEASE PUBLICATION TODAY

Temple Graves, noted southern newspaper man, as editor and Fred Seely as founder and publisher.

In a front-page statement on February 5, 1912, the Georgian announced it had been acquired by Hearst. The first issue of the Atlanta-Sunday American, Sunday issue of the Georgian, ran 124 pages, topping circulation records for the southeast.

Assessed valuation of the land and four-story building owned by the Georgian is $186,000. The paper also owns a lot in Greenville county (South Carolina) known as Traxler park, which has an assessed valuation of $50,000.

Severance Pay Promised.

The management of the Georgian announced to its employees tonight they will receive severance pay Tuesday, the amounts depending on the number of years they have been in service.

Employees received the following notice:

"The Atlanta Georgian is publishing its last edition today, and the Atlanta Sunday American will publish tomorrow for the last time, the property having been sold."

"This announcement is made with extreme regret and with full appreciation of what it means to our employees."

"If you will call at the paymaster's office after 2 p. m. on Tuesday, December 19, you will receive your current week's salary, plus a dismissal bonus, which will be calculated on length of continuous and uninterrupted service in the Hearst organization.

"We wish to express our appreciation for your loyalty and past services."

GEORGIAN MARKS EIGHTH MAJOR CHANGE IN CHAIN

NEW YORK, Dec. 16.—(AP)—The closing of the Atlanta Georgian-American is the eighth major change, merger or transfer of a Hearst newspaper within three years.

Other Hearst properties which have ceased separate publication are the New York American (merged with Journal), Omaha Bee-News (sold to Omaha World-Herald), Milwaukee News (consolidated with Milwaukee Sentinel), Washington Herald and Times (leased to Mrs. Eleanor M. Patterson), Syracuse Journal and Sunday American (sold to Syracuse Herald), Rochester Journal and Sunday American (closed), and Chicago Herald and Examiner (merged with American).

In addition, the two Hearst wire services, International News Service and Universal Service, were consolidated in 1937.

Dear Sir:

We want to thank your newspaper for making a dream come true. When things looked black for us and it seemed like we were not going to see "Gone With the Wind" at all, The Constitution worked a miracle at the last minute, and we got our tickets to the opening night of this great historical moving picture.

It is hard for younger people to realize what this means to three Confederate veterans. Words won't tell it. We do want to say, though, that we all were old enough to know that if anybody in the world could help us out, it was the people on The Atlanta Constitution. We have talked about it a lot and believe we have figured out why The Constitution did it.

The Constitution saw Atlanta grow out of the ashes of war, just like we did, and understood how we felt. And of course everybody knows your paper has a reputation for sticking by its friends. No wonder you have got so many of them all over the South. We just wanted to say that we know better than ever now that we have been right all these long years about your fine paper. We wish you long life and prosperity throughout all the future.

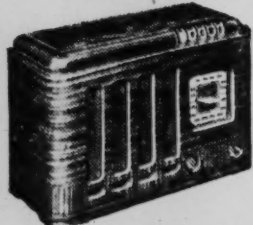

Thanking you again for bringing us an experience of a life-time, we are men would have been their memory yesterday instead of the succession of glittering, triumphant scenes with which their minds were full.

Respectfully yours,

PREMIERE THRILLS FOUR BOYS IN GRAY

Narrow Escape.

It was a narrow escape. What happened was this: . . .

Several weeks ago, when preparations for the premiere were being completed, word was sent to the home, in behalf of Clark Gable himself (so the communication said), that as many veterans as were able to compass the journey would be taken to the premiere as guests of honor. They were even told that whenever they selected from among themselves would escort Vivien Leigh.

It made an excellent story and the newspapers and wire services the country over went into it pretty heavily.

Nothing More Was Heard.

Time went on; things happened, mail arrived regularly at the Old Soldiers' Home. The newspapers were full of the coming event. Stories were heard everywhere of the demand for tickets. But no further communication came from anyone about the veterans' going to the big show.

There was definite gloom. But there was pride, too. Nobody was going to ask for anything. They'd been invited. Well, if the ones who invited them had forgotten, it was too bad.

Came Wednesday Night.
Came Wednesday night, the night before the premiere ball, the night before the arrival of Gable—one of the busiest nights in all history in Atlanta newspaper offices.

Coming events were being checked and the question arose: "What about the old vets—have they been taken care of?"

There was a telephone call to GWTW headquarters. No, the tickets had not been sent. It was a detail which had been overlooked in the excitement. It was mighty late in the day to try to do anything about it now. Every type of pressure, from political to financial, was being exerted from a thousand quarters to get tickets. It looked like the old veterans were out of luck.

Tragedy Loomed.

But the veterans weren't out of luck. The film management was assured it would prove a tragedy sufficient to cast a blight upon the whole occasion. It was told that The Constitution had published the story in good faith, that the aging men (without whom historically there would have been no film) had been told by this newspaper they were going—and that it was the intention of The Constitution to insist and to make certain that they went, in style, as promised.

The incident adjusted itself very satisfactorily.

Despite the early morning hour, the officials here for the premiere telephoned Mrs. Pruitt and inquired how many tickets were needed. "Four," she said. "Four it is," said the official. And four it was, and the grand old boys went down Thursday afternoon to a barber shop and were slicked up.

"The Day" Arrives.

Friday night finally came after a day of keenest anticipation, and the quartet set off about 6 o'clock under the expert care of members of the state patrol, which has headquarters at the home.

They reached the theater. They were escorted through the crowds and lights amid applause. They were announced over the radio. They took their seats well down in front among all the notables. The Governor came down to speak to them. Claudette Colbert kneeled down and conversed gaily. A great fuss was made over them and they were happy.

Just Like It Happened.

The picture itself they declared wonderful and "just like it happened." It was the first movie ever seen by one of them. J. A. Skelton, 92, who, at 15 saw Andrews' Raiders take "The General" from Big Shanty, and he still wasn't quite certain yesterday that the strange experience was reality.

For J. C. Dodgen, 93, and J. T. Pittman, 92, it was the high point of their later lives, both said enthusiastically.

"I never thought of anything like it," declared Mr. Pittman, while Mr. Dodgen, apparently thinking of something in particular, observed, "She sure was good looking!"

Letter Thanks Constitution.

They talked happily. And then they remembered how it had all come about. And so here is the letter typed, after Mrs. Pruitt had listened carefully to their suggestions and embodied all of them in the penciled first draft. A photograph of the letter will be found above.

PRETTY ACTRESS,
TWICE A DUELIST,
PLUNGES TO DEATHFalls 10 Floors From Room of Rich German
of New York Hotel.

NEW YORK, Dec. 16.—(UP)—A pretty Hungarian actress who plunged 10 floors to her death today from the hotel room of a wealthy German baron, left a note which police said read "It's a pity that you are married and have three children."

Hours after blond, 21-year-old Lola Laszlo fell or jumped to the marquee of the Gladstone hotel at 2 a. m. from the suite of Baron Frederick von Oppenheim, police said they found in her compact the note written in a mixture of English, German and Hungarian. The phrases were disconnected but two police deciphered said:

"I lost my last orchid to you."

"It's a pity that you are married and have three children."

Took in Night Clubs.

There were several Hungarian terms of endearment, one translating into "a great love."

Miss Laszlo had returned from an evening in the nightclub belt with the 39-year-old baron. They went to his hotel while the baron packed his bags for his return home to Cologne. He said he laughingly presented her with a toy dog as a Christmas gift and "something to remember me by," before going into another room where he was he said when she fell.

The baron had planned to leave New York tonight, traveling by way of California and the orient to Germany. After questioning at the district attorney's office, he agreed to remain in the city over the week end.

Fought Two Duels.

The young actress arrived in New York last spring to seek a film career. She told reporters she had fought two duels in Budapest, one with an actress and another with a Hungarian writer. Those events, she protested, were of no importance compared with her movie ambitions.

She had recently been dancing in a small nightclub and improving her speech to obtain the Hollywood career she said she had been promised. She did not reveal who made the promise.

Friends of the pretty young actress-dancer said that she was gay in recent weeks, chiefly because of the Hollywood offer. They did not know whether the promise of a job had been withdrawn. She did not seem despondent last night the baron said, and was in especially high spirits all evening.

Her father, Aladar Laszlo, composer, correspondent for a Hungarian newspaper and Hollywood writer, did not believe Lola committed suicide. He said there was "no romance" with the baron.

TEACHER IS GUILTY
IN TEXAS BOMBINGGets 50 Years for Attempt on Secretary's Life.

DALLAS, Texas, Dec. 16.—(UP)—A jury in district court today convicted E. R. Wyatt of attempting to murder his secretary-sweetheart and he was sentenced to 50 years in prison.

Wyatt, a 36-year-old rural school superintendent, was convicted of throwing a homemade dynamite bomb through the bedroom window where Miss Martha Jo Miller was sleeping.

She was aroused by the noise and escaped from the room before the bomb went off.

Miss Miller is a pretty 26-year-old school teacher in Oak Park, Ill., where she fled, she testified, to escape the attentions of Wyatt, a married man with one child. Miss Miller contended Wyatt attempted to kill her because she spurned his attentions.

LIONS TO INSTALL
YULETIDE DISPLAYLittle Five Points Club Continues Custom.

Members of the Lions Club of Little Five Points again this year will install a colorful Christmas display on the campus of the William A. Bass Junior High school, and at 7:30 o'clock Tuesday night Joe Scott, president of the club, is slated to throw the switch to light the various installations. "Merry Christmas" will be spelled out in white letters and Kris Kringle and his deer will ride on one side of the campus while on the other side will be portrayed the birth of Christ, Ed Davidson, chairman of the decorating committee, said.

DESPATCHHEADS NORTH WITH NAZI PRIZE SHIP

SANTIAGO, Chile, Dec. 16.—(AP)—The British cruiser Despatch was reported moving northward off the Chilean coast today with the 4,930-ton German freighter Dusseldorf as a war prize following its capture yesterday off Caldera, 360 miles north of Valparaiso. First reports indicated the Dusseldorf had been sunk instead of captured.

First Nighters' Praise of 'Gone With Wind' Indicates It Will Soar to Record Popularity

Length of Film Held No Drawback to Sustaining Interest.

What did the premiere audience think of the film version of "Gone With the Wind"? This was the dramatic question—and the big news story—yesterday morning.

Would the celluloid translation of Margaret Mitchell's novel meet with approval? How was the acting of Vivien Leigh? Was she a good choice for "Scarlett"? Had the moviemakers done right by the history of the book? What about the length of the picture? The technician? The fidelity to the book?

Here, indeed, were questions that would make news, not only to the motion-picture people, but to the general public as well, the public whose approval or disapproval would mean the difference between success or failure for the film.

The Constitution put a staff of 10 reporters in the lobby of the theater to find the answers to these questions as the audience left the theater. These people were a cross section of Atlanta and other cities.

Here are their comments: John Gifford, 2083 Ridgewood drive: "Magnificent spectacle. Excellent portrayal of characters. 'Melanie' was the most outstanding. Prettiest technicolor I have seen."

Lullwater road: "Wonderful. 'Scarlett' and 'Rhett' were perfect. So emotional I had to quit looking occasionally."

Mrs. Irving Turner, 135 Coventry road: "Marvelous. Followed book nicely but improved on it. Like the way it ended. I feel Margaret Mitchell will write another book."

Bobby Jones, golf king: "I thought it was wonderful. Another 'Birth of a Nation'."

Hughes Spalding, 2002 Peachtree road: "The movie is true to the book and to the south. But it wore me out emotionally."

George McCarty, 3415 Peachtree street: "Wonderful, probably the only picture of which one has heard so much which turned out as one expected."

Miss Mavis Garey, 41 Peachtree circle: "Good as the book. Miss Leigh was most outstanding. The highlight of the picture was when 'Scarlett' left Atlanta to return to 'Tara' after the war."

Miss Margaret Palmer, 40 Woodcrest avenue: "Wonderful. Don't think I can talk about it."

Glennville Giddings Jr., 1585 Ponce de Leon avenue: "Mighty good. Enjoyed picture more than book. 'Scarlett' and 'Rhett' were the most outstanding characters."

Miss Betty Luke, 1314 Piedmont avenue: "Really wonderful. Clark Gable was the best. No one could have done 'Scarlett' better than Miss Leigh."

Dr. Mark Dougherty, 76 Brighton road: "Superb. Wonderfully cast. Very fine comparison with book. Beautifully photographed."

Miss Julia Block, 1317 Peachtree street: "I thought it was grand. Olivia de Havilland to me was the most outstanding."

W. P. Durst, 1543 Peachtree street: "Most remarkable picture. Acting as wonderful as story content. The acting makes up for loss of not getting descriptive content found in book."

Hal Hentz, 2 Muscogee avenue: "Superb. Little disappointed in way picture started but this was overcome. 'Scarlett' was perfect."

Mrs. Lewis Ingram, 486 Claire drive, N. E.: "It is the best thing I ever saw. Why, it was way too short!"

Julian Goldsmith, Briarcliff hotel: "I thought Vivien Leigh as 'Scarlett' was simply marvelous. The whole thing just couldn't have been better. It was all wonderful. And that's what my wife thinks, too!"

Mrs. F. T. Hardwick, of Cleveland, Tenn.: "The picture was fine. We never saw anything better."

James Floyd, of 280 The Prado: "The movie was just like the old south and it stuck to the book. I thought it was grand."

Mrs. Fred McLendon, of Union Springs, Ala.: "It was marvelous. All the actors and actresses, especially Clark Gable and Vivien Leigh, were wonderful. But I didn't think the picture was as good as the book."

T. C. Perkins, 128 street, N. E.: "Gone With the Wind was the greatest thing I've ever seen. It was just what I wanted it to be."

Mary Alice Moore, of Macon: "Swell! It followed the book and all the characters were marvelously done."

Colonel Telamon Cuyler, historian: "It was most startling in its mastery and beautiful art effects. The accents—and in particular those of Belle Watling—were quite correct. It marks a high tide of historical films."

Mrs. Lewis C. Rouglin, 1050 Ponce de Leon avenue: "The picture is certainly a credit to the book. I thought it was grand."

Mrs. Fred Evans, Bartow, Ga.: "Well, it was worth it. I mean, it was so near like the book. It came down especially to see it."

Mrs. W. R. Prescott, 799 Clifton road: "It was wonderful. I made me cry."

Miss Claire Hunnicutt, 876 Inman circle: "It was magnificent. The actors and the scenes were wonderful. It was just as good as the book."

D. J. Mahoney, publisher of the Miami Daily News: "It was so beautifully done. Leigh was great as 'Scarlett' and Gable was excellent as 'Rhett'. All the cast fitted perfectly."

Franklin Garrett, of 908 Juniper street: "I am so overcome with emotion I can hardly express an opinion. It was marvelously acted. Everything was so authentic, even including the houses they used. The color effects were beautiful."

Miss Clara Mitchell-McConnell, 87 Peachtree way: "I agree with all reports that it would be a new epoch in movies."

Mrs. C. C. Hutto, of Newberry, S. C.: "I am left speechless. I Gable, Leigh, de Havilland, Munson Share in Reflected Glory.

Don't think Clark Gable or Vivien Leigh will be criticized at all. They lived up to my expectations."

Frank G. North, 10 West Andover drive: "A marvelous show! Wonderfully staged! I'd almost say that Vivien Leigh stole the show. I am very much impressed by the way the southern characters were portrayed, the correct southern accent, it's so different from allegedly southern productions you see."

Miss Natalie Strickland, of Valdosta: "I think it was grand, marvelous. 'Scarlett' was perfect for her part."

Sam Rumph, of 1582 Harvard road: "I think they did a beautiful job of telescoping the scenes. The sound effects created the right atmosphere."

Jack Law, of Greenville, S. C.: "I think the local color was exactly like the old south. Vivien Leigh was especially good."

W. G. Hastings, Ansley hotel: "I think it's the finest picture made since moving pictures were invented. 'The Birth of a Nation' was the finest up to this time, but this surpasses it."

Mrs. George Reay, Knoxville, Tenn.: "I enjoyed it very much. Everything about it is striking. I came down especially to see it."

Mrs. William I. Hudson Jr., of 362 Redland road: "Like the mayor, I can't find fine enough words to express my reactions."

W. T. Corn, of Cleveland, Tenn.: "Certain parts of the book were left out, but the best parts were left in. I think it's a fine picture."

Mrs. Eddie Rickenbacker, of

New York: "I think it is perfectly magnificent. It was all I expected it to be."

Mrs. H. H. Trotter, of 230 Wilton drive: "It's just wonderful. I think it's magnificent."

Austin Abbott, of 1410 Boulevard, N. E.: "It is the greatest picture I have ever seen in my life. It is greater than 'The Birth of a Nation'."

L. O. Smith, of Decatur: "I don't have any words to express my opinion. I believe it is the best picture ever filmed."

Mrs. S. R. Reams, of 1785 Noble drive: "I think it was splendid. I stayed close to the story, and the characters were perfect. It was all I had dreamed of."

Mrs. R. H. Jennings, of Orangeburg, S. C.: "I think everybody will have to agree that it was wonderful."

Mrs. W. L. Englis, of Ponce de Leon apartments: "I just think it was wonderful. I enjoyed it thoroughly."

Mrs. Charles King, of 439 Tuxedo road: "It's wonderful. Nothing could be grander."

Mrs. J. O. Hightower, of Jonesboro: "It was marvelous. I haven't words to express my feelings. Rhett Butler was the greatest one I've seen."

Mrs. A. F. Todd, of 843 Dill avenue: "It was gorgeous. The whole picture was a success."

Mrs. George Irwin, 1254 Stillwood drive: "One of the finest emotional experiences films have ever brought to an audience. Simply superb."

Lindsey Hopkins Jr., of Miami Beach, Fla.: "It was magnificent, the greatest picture since 'The Birth of a Nation'."

Rufus King, of 2860 Habersham road: "It was one of the finest things I have ever seen. I just can't express my enthusiasm."

Miss Jeanette Johnson, 9 Lakeview avenue: "A really marvelous picture. My only criticism is that little 'Prissy' seemed a bit too modern—not a typical negro girl of that time. But on the whole, a grand picture."

L. Leffler, Beaumont, Texas: "I thought it was wonderful. The best picture since the 'Birth of a Nation'."

Mrs. C. B. McGee, Youngstown, Ohio: "It was a very wonderful picture, carrying the story of the book in a most satisfactory way."

Vincent Townsend, Birmingham: "Swell. The picture has everything one would want."

Carole Orr, Albertville, Ala.: "I thought it was a mighty good show. I enjoyed it all."

J. P. Allen Jr., 215 Peachtree street: "So great that it is hard to find words to do it justice. Vivien Leigh and Olivia de Havilland were the outstanding performers."

Colvin McPherson, St. Louis: "For those who have read the picture should prove highly satisfactory."

Dr. Bruce Schaeffer, Toccoa, Ga.: "Pretty good—fine. What am I talking about? It's great!"

Mrs. Allen D. Johnson, Peachtree Heights: "Wonderful. Entirely up to expectations."

Miss Willie Thompson, 929 Puliam street: "More than I anticipated. Everything about it was perfect."

Frederick G. Storey, Peachtree road: "Splendid. I don't think anyone can find a flaw in it. Acting, direction, photography were way above par."

Mrs. A. B. Conger, Bainbridge, Ga.: "Tragic, but thrilling and entertaining in a wonderful way."

Mrs. W. C. Wardlaw Jr., 93 Peachtree Battle avenue: "There's only one word for it—marvelous."

Mrs. Z. V. Peterson, 314 Haas avenue: "It followed the book better than I thought it would. I was very much impressed."

Miss Katherine Smith, 33 15th street, N. E.: "Perfect. The most beautiful picture I have ever seen—or ever will see."

FILM IS SUCCESS BY KEEPING TO BOOK

equally by Producer Selznick, Director Victor Fleming and — he possibly should come first—the late Sidney Howard, ace screen writer, who took Margaret Mitchell's novel and wove it into a smooth, easy-flowing motion picture script which preserves essentially every event and every dynamic word of the original.

Such a job was accomplished under tremendous difficulties, for "Gone With the Wind" will have a million and more critics—each individual who read the book—and it's pretty safe to say this screen version will please 98 per cent of them.

Only for a few of "Scarlett's" pet phrases is the drama less effective in the reel story than in the real. The unhesitating substitution of "Fiddle-dee-dee" for "Scarlett's" pet "God's nightgown," picked up from her Irish father, Gerald O'Hara, is unfortunate. They do leave Rhett Butler's final salutation to his wife—"Frankly, Mrs. Butler, I don't give a damn!"

However, there is no getting around it. "Gone With the Wind" is wonderful. It is the greatest individual film contribution to the motion picture art since the first flicker.

Miss Leigh Praised.

This is Vivien Leigh's picture. It is hers just as much as the book was "Scarlett's." And Vivien Leigh is "Scarlett," from the moment the picture opens and you see a green-eyed southern beauty gaily leading on the Tarleton Twins.

She may have been born in India and she may be English, but in the picture Vivien Leigh is southern. Her mannerisms. Her speech. Her dialect. It was a happy selection indeed that put her into the difficult role.

Today there is a new star over Hollywood. The Academy Award need look no farther than the first half of "Gone With the Wind" to find the actress whose performance honestly deserves a "Little Oscar."

Clark Gable is Clark Gable—right up until the time "Rhett Butler" becomes a "paw." He's a new Gable then, a Gable completely wrapped up in a part he is playing, a new role for the screen's He-man No. 1. Yes, Clark Gable is "Rhett Butler." They were cast from the same mould.

Leslie Howard Liked.

Leslie Howard walked through the role of "Ashley Wilkes" with the finesse he always shows. He was the dreamer, the weakling whose world died with the falling of his civilization—the aristocracy of the south which was the south of slaves in the cotton fields, the gay barbecues to which the cousins and the friends for miles around came and spent the day and night. A civilization of slave and master which the movie pictures authentically, a civilization in which both classes lived happily bred in tradition—a tradition, the breaking of which, made "Scarlett" the woman she was.

No actress has ever covered herself with more glory in a supporting role than does Olivia de Havilland as "Melanie." Undergoing a make-up change which removes every bit of her natural beauty, Olivia becomes the perfect understanding wife for "Ashley," who can overlook the play "Scarlett" makes for her husband and still love, despite the Peachtree street critics.

And Atlanta's Evelyn Keyes has a role in which she is easily distinguishable. As "Scarlett's" little sister, "Suellen," she shows the world she can act and do it well. Alicia Rhett, the Charleston girl selected for the role of "India Wilkes" during the nation-wide search for a girl to play "Scarlett," is most convincing. You readily gather she despises "Scarlett" with a purple passion.

If anyone comes near stealing any scene from Vivien Leigh—who appears in nearly every one of them—it is Hattie McDaniel, the buxom negro mammy. She's a natural scene stealer and she takes every advantage of her opportunities. And she strictly "mammy" bosses "Miss Ellen's" children around in "kreet" style. Butterfly McQueen as "Prissy" creates an entirely different little negro girl from the one Miss Mitchell wrote, but it's on the strictly good side.

Tom Mitchell as "Gerald O'Hara," and Barbara O'Neill, as his wife, "Ellen," have considerably less prominence in the film than in the story, but their acting fits the descriptions taken from the book. Laura Hope Crews, as "Auntie Pittypat," and faded around. Her role was subordinated, too.

But when it came to the character throwing southern expressions around with a natural air—other than Miss Leigh—the champion is Ona Munson, the "Belle Watling" of the film. Again we find an important book character with a more minor film position, but Ona certainly had the southern dialect down pat.

There is no fault to find with the dialect or the accent. It's not the drawing southern nor middle Georgia and it's not Yankee. For the most part it hits a natural middle road and holds it—there being a perfect blending of all the various accents in a slower, softer delivery that is quite satisfactory. And there are no "you-alls" in the singular.

Color Not 'Perfect.'

I wouldn't say the color is perfectly natural. It still has the technicolor stain but it's the nearest approach to natural tints any picture has yet shown. There are some beautiful shots—the negro slaves in the cotton fields, the slave boys driving the cattle home through the big Georgia pines, the vividness of the burning of the ammunition trains, the loveliness of "Tara" and "Twelve Oaks," the ornateness of "Scarlett's" home in Atlanta built for her by "Rhett," and the gorgeous beauty of the principal characters in the yard and yards of silk which was the story of the old southern womanhood.

Madame Lehmann, on Visit Here, Confides Fourth Book on the Way

Famous Diva Says She Likes Writing, and, Despite Her Singing Career and Homemaking, Has Managed To Find Time Somehow To Pursue It.

By YOLANDE GWIN.
Madame Lotte Lehmann, the opera singer, has become Madame Lehmann, the author.

The famous diva confided during her visit here last week, that she is writing her fourth book.

And the great singer defies the woman who wails "I have no time," for in addition to her writings, she has sung leading opera roles and, in addition, is supervising her home.

Madame Lehmann is a believer in the axiom, "We have all the time there is. Why rush and fret?"

Encoined in the Peachtree Battle residence of her hosts, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hecht, Madame Lehmann discussed her literary life.

"I love to write, and somewhere in my schedule of singing, I have been able to write a novel, 'Eternal Flight,' and also my autobiography, which I called 'Midway in My Song.' I have already finished a book on Australia called 'Singing Neath the Southern Cross,' which is ready for the publisher."

Madame Lehmann lives in Riverdale, N. Y., in a rambling fieldstone house. High upstairs in her secluded study with her maple desk and portable typewriter, while the faces of Beethoven, Brahms and Schumann look down, she taps out another page on her book.

She belied entirely the tradition of the harassed diva interested only in her art. She is not the least jealous of other singers, and added, "A person who thinks only of himself is no real artist."

This season she is singing in 30 concerts and her starring roles in a number of operas at the Metropolitan, which has been her average schedule in recent years. She has traveled countless miles to sing and her golden soprano voice has been heard on every continent but Africa. Her days "off" she spends in her charming home set on a rolling lawn with trees and shrubbery. Her two pomeranians trot at her heels as she enjoys her carefree days at home. She loves her home, it all seems a part of her, and a place where she succeeds in hobbies to her favorite furnishings including many mementos of the Vienna she knew, and exquisite pieces of needlework done by Austrians. The German-born singer's furniture is in storage in Vienna, she says.

Madame Lehmann says that on her stairway there is a tapestry done by an Austrian girl which is a scene from the first act of "Die Walkure," and which is dedicated to the singer as follows: "To Lotte Lehmann, Der Grosse Kunstlerin." There is also a piece with the entire "Erlkoenig" embroidered on it, and a piano throw of satin and lace, with the names of her great roles, "Eliabeth," "Sieglinde" and others in fine needlework.

She is especially fond of the American notes in her home, namely, indirect lighting, and a telephone with five switches at her bedside, enabling her to speak to persons in various parts of the house. She laughs at this and says:

"It makes me feel like the president of a big corporation."

INSANE FELON CAUGHT AFTER SECOND ESCAPE
TUCSON, Ariz., Dec. 16.—(AP)—Brino Len Hanks, phantom-like felon who escaped from a train while being returned to the state hospital at Phoenix, from which he had fled December 8, was recaptured late today.

State highway patrolmen found the man hiding in storage space of a private garage, only seven blocks from the Southern Pacific railway station, where he made his escape several hours earlier.

NAVY TO ASK 25,600 PERSONNEL RAISE

Congress To Hear Increase Will Permit Wartime Forces for All Ships.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16.—(UP). The navy will ask the forthcoming congress to increase its enlisted personnel to 170,600 men, 25,600 more than the present strength, so that all its commissioned ships can be manned at wartime force, official quarters said tonight.

This increase is expected to be included in President Roosevelt's budget, which may call for about $2,300,000,000 for national defense. The navy's high command believes that the present authorized naval enlisted strength, which permits manning most ships at only 85 per cent of full complement, is too low during the present world situation.

Last September President Roosevelt authorized the navy to increase its enlisted strength from 110,000 to 145,000 men, but most of this increase is being absorbed through the recommissioning of about 80 old world war destroyers, oilers, tenders and other craft for neutrality patrol operations.

The proposed increase to 170,600 men will enable the navy to operate all its commissioned ships, including those from the 105 now being constructed which go into active service during the next fiscal year, at their wartime complements to assure maximum efficiency in any emergency.

It was learned that recommendations will be made to increase the marine corps from its present 25,000 man strength to 28,000. When President Roosevelt ordered the September increases in the nation's armed strength because of the limited national emergency, he boosted the "devil dogs" from their previous 18,000 men to 25,000.

The projected increases in the navy and marine corps will leave them considerably short of their full peacetime authorization. The limit is 191,000 men for the navy and one-fourth that number for the marine corps.

CLEVELAND NEEDY ARE TURNED AWAY

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Dec. 16.—(UP)—Hundreds of puzzled relief clients were turned away from two closed district relief offices today, disappointed in the expectation of receiving "full relief" orders.

Social workers were forced to close the offices for the day when lines overcrowded into the streets. Four other district headquarters remained open.

Assistant City Relief Commissioner Sydney Rowley blamed the situation on misinterpretation by family heads who had expected to receive full food orders yesterday.

What! No 188 Stories? Lady Envoy Asks

NEW YORK, Dec. 16.—(AP)—Mme. Magda Tagliaferro, musical "ambassador" of good will from France, is disappointed with the Empire State building.

She thought it was 188 stories high.

Since concert tours are a bit difficult in France now, Mme. Tagliaferro—a native of Brazil—was sent to the United States by the French government and French ministry of fine arts to show Americans (it's her first trip to this country) her excellence at the piano. She arrived yesterday by Clipper plane.

14-YEAR-OLD CHILD BRIDE SECOND TIME

HOUSTON, Mo., Dec. 16.—(UP)—Jennie Lucille Stanton, 14, was a child bride for the second time today.

Her first marriage, to Robert Vestal, 17, ended in a divorce last month and her maiden name was restored. Today she married Ray Johnson, 21, a farmer, who lives near here.

RHETT AND SCARLETT GONE WITH THE WIND

All Stars Leave City Following Premiere But Memory Lingers On.

Atlanta can calm down now. The glamor of Hollywood is no longer in the city.

Clark Gable and his wife, Carole Lombard, accompanied by a group of studio executives, departed on a specially chartered plane for the coast immediately following the premiere.

With them were Howard Strickling, M.G.-M. west coast publicity man, Otto Winkler, his assistant, C. R. Smith, president of American Airlines, and N. K. Millican, west coast manager of the company.

Also leaving at 2 o'clock Saturday morning were Vivien Leigh and Laurence Olivier, who went to New York by plane.

Upon arrival at the Newark airport, Miss Leigh announced her engagement to the English actor who came to the premiere festivities on what had been described as "personal business."

Miss Leigh said the marriage would take place "as soon as possible."

Remaining here now is only

The majority of the Hollywood folks left at 7 o'clock on a special train for the coast. These were Olivia de Havilland, Mrs. L. B. Meyer, wife of the M.G.-M. producer; Mr. and Mrs. David Selznick, John Hay Whitney, Myron Selznick, Claudette Colbert, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Swope, Laura Hope Crews and Ona Munson.

Miss Crews, disappointed that she had been unable to see the sights of Atlanta before the premiere, spent the time between the end of the show and the departure of the train riding through the city's residential districts peering at darkened houses.

Alicia Rhett, the Charleston girl who plays India Wilkes, accompanied her mother to Charleston for a short visit.

Remaining here is only E. B. Coleman and his staff at the "Gone With the Wind" headquarters at the Georgian Terrace.

FURNITURE MAKERS CAUTIOUS, HOPEFUL

Some Feel 1940 Sales Will Exceed Current Year by 20 Per Cent.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Dec. 16.—(AP)—Cautious optimism is the watchword of the nation's furniture makers as they close their books on a 1939 business in the neighborhood of $414,000,000, approximately 20 per cent better than the $345,000,000 volume of 1938.

Now that the war is nearly four months old, leaders in the industry aren't so sure. They are agreed that a general stiffening of the furniture price structure is due next month as a result of increased costs of raw materials but whether this will be accompanied by a greater consumer demand is uncertain.

Frank E. Seidman, accountant whose business it is to assemble facts and figures on the industry, has warned manufacturers against drawing a parallel between present conditions and those of 1914-1918.

"If housing follows the path it did in the last European war," he said, "the furniture industry has little to get excited about as to immediate prospects."

One straw in the wind may be Seidman's recent survey which showed that while retailers bought 25 per cent more furniture from manufacturers in October than in the same month of 1938, consumer purchases during this period were only 15 per cent better. Some of this disparity he attributed to "shelf-filling" on the part of retailers seeking to fill inventories before a rise in wholesale prices occurs.

All sources are agreed that there is a large latent replacement demand for furniture but just when this will be released is uncertain.

1938. Even better days are ahead, many in the industry say, but none will go so far as to predict a return to the $680,000,000 level of 1929.

When the European war broke out last September, some manufacturers said they had discounted its effect in advance and that its actual outbreak "released the tension." Others thought they saw a promise of decidedly better business.

How Naval Battle Lines May Be Forming

To battle stations! This will be the command in the south Atlantic if the Graf Spee attempts to dash past the British battle-ships. But there is a strong possibility the Spee will not have to fight alone. Her sister ship, the Admiral Scheer, with a flotilla of submarines (foreground) is reported steaming to her aid, and the Deutschland, also said to be in the south Atlantic, lurking near by as pictured at the upper right. But even with those formidable craft ready to aid her, the Spee must pass a mighty British cordon, shown near the mouth of the River Platte. Among the warships in the line of steel, or rushing to take battle stations there, are the 10,000-ton British cruiser Cumberland, the 26,500-ton French battleship Dunkerque, the great British battle cruiser Renown, the aircraft carrier Ark Royal, the 3,000-ton British battleship Barham, the British destroyer Hero, and the fast British cruisers Ajax and Achilles, which drove the Spee into Montevideo. Another possibility open to the Spee is to race across the river to Buenos Aires from Montevideo, where she would be safe for 24 hours.

GRAF SPEE AWAITS HITLER COMMAND

after consulting naval experts, finally put the question up to President Alfredo Baldomir late tonight.

Many informed persons believed the Graf Spee would take advantage of tonight's darkness to try to run the gauntlet of British warships outside the harbor if every effort to obtain a time extension failed.

Signs of Activity.

As darkness gathered, the only signs of activity on the Graf Spee, beyond the work of men completing repairs, were occasional puffs from the funnel and the sound of pumps, which have been running since the ship entered the harbor Wednesday night. Observers estimated, however, that emergency repairs would be completed by shortly after 9 p. m., (6:30 p. m., Atlanta time).

Help for British.

Hidden in the haze about 20 miles of Montevideo were the fast British cruisers Ajax and Achilles, which fought the Graf Spee Wednesday and drove her into this neutral refuge with a daring which Captain Langsdorff himself declared was "more than seemed credible."

The 10,000-ton British cruiser Cumberland and the 26,500-ton French battleship Dunkerque also were reported in the Allied cordon, while the great British battle cruiser Renown and the aircraft carrier Ark Royal, steaming from South African waters, were expected at Rio de Janeiro tonight or tomorrow—perhaps to form a second barrier to the Graf Spee's escape.

(The United Press said that among warships waiting outside Montevideo for the Spee was the British battleship Barham of 31,100 tons, with eight 15-inch guns and 12 6-inch guns and a speed of 25 knots. The British destroyer Hero was also reported en route.)

The battered Spee swung around in the tide today and headed directly for passage of the harbor breakwater. In this position it was necessary only for her to hoist anchors and steam half a mile to reach open sea.

Complete Preparations.

As crowds gaped from docks and shores, launches continued to carry officers and German civilian officials between ship and shore.

To all appearances the Graf Spee had preparations completed to speed to sea, but the fuel tanks held the secret of whether she really was ready to go.

German officials have asserted that she took refuge here because she almost was out of oil. British officials, however, say the Graf Spee refueled from a tanker at sea less than a week ago, and if that is true, naval experts estimate her tanks are at least one-third full. She has not taken on any appreciable amount of fuel in the harbor here, although foodstuffs, including at least two tons of vegetables, have been placed aboard her in the last two days.

German sailors methodically polished the cannon, plugged up shell holes and cleared away debris of the first battle. They stripped away the seaplanes riddled by British gunfire, put planks over a huge gap in the port bow and righted and repaired a damaged anti-aircraft battery.

Misses Chances.

On shore, naval experts said the Spee's commander already had missed his two best chances of getting through the British naval patrol. First, by not returning to sea as soon as his 36 dead were landed and fuel and food obtained; second, by not running out to sea this morning under the cover of thick rainclouds. The weather was better tonight.

British officials did not hide their confidence that the Graf Spee has no chance of escaping by chance, which officials said: "Only the greatest miracle can save the Graf Spee if she puts to sea."

In anticipation of seeing a sequel to Wednesday's battle, thousands of Uruguayans made plans to spend the week end at shore areas along the jutting coastline. The American liner Argentina, en route from New York to Buenos Aires, had a chance of getting a "ringside seat." She is off Punta del Este early Monday.

"Front Yard" Battle.

Uruguay's foreign minister, Alberto Guani, sent a spirited protest to both Great Britain and Germany for bringing their battles not only within the Pan-American "safety belt" but into Uruguayan territorial waters.

The protests were accompanied by charts which officials said showed the warships at one time were exchanging shells well within the three-mile limit.

Guani also informed all American nations of the steps he has taken to prevent further "front-yard" battles here.

Officials admitted, however, that the American republics already had agreed they could not act quickly enough to prevent a battle the moment the Graf Spee crosses the three-mile limit on her way out to sea.

Nevertheless, the various American governments, including the United States, are consulting with a view to drafting a joint statement on violation of the 300-mile Pan-American neutrality zone.

Uruguay also has suspended civilian flying to avoid "incidents" during the Graf Spee's stay here.

Dr. Langmann returned to the legation declining to discuss the conference.

United States Minister Edwin C. Wilson, who has kept closely in touch with developments, returned for a second visit with Guani. Millington-Drake returned at 9:45 for another of his many visits to the foreign office.

After that Guani was closeted with his aides.

Second Warship Reported Seen

MATANZAS, Cuba, Dec. 16.—(UP)—Unconfirmed reports circulated here tonight that a British warship had been sighted far off Matanzas, possibly searching for the German luxury liner Columbus.

The 32,565-ton Columbus left a Mexican harbor near Vera Cruz Thursday with provisions sufficient to last 50 days and a large cargo of oil. It has been unreported since.

The vessel's destination was reported to be Oslo, Norway, but it was expected to stop at Havana en route.

Hand-to-Hand Fighting in West

PARIS, Dec. 16.—(AP)—Hand-to-hand fighting on the western front east of the Moselle river, in which French troops repulsed an attacking German company "with heavy losses" was reported tonight by the French command for the first time in weeks.

The evening communique said the attack began early this morning after heavy artillery preparation.

The communique read: "The enemy attempted a raid about 6:15 o'clock this morning (1:15 a. m. Atlanta time) on one of our outposts east of the Moselle river."

"The raid was carried out by a detachment of approximately a company after artillery preparation and was protected by artillery and heavy machine gun fire during the engagement."

"The attacked post defended itself energetically up to hand-to-hand fighting."

"The enemy was repulsed with heavy losses and left in our hands arms and material."

"They succeeded in taking two prisoners, who were able to escape by profiting by our fire and rejoined our lines."

U. S. Destroyers Poised to Sail

CHARLESTON, S. C., Dec. 16. (AP)—Crews of the destroyers Ellis and Cole, here with the naval patrol keeping watch on American waters, were rounded up tonight for immediate sailing.

Aid of police was enlisted in getting the men to their ships. Officers of the ships could not be reached for a statement and the navy yard said it had no information on the sailing orders.

Gaping Hole Still in Spee

MONTevideo, Dec. 16.—(AP)—A gaping hole just above the waterline of the German raider, Admiral Graf Spee was not fully covered at nightfall tonight despite an all-day attempt to repair it.

Neutral naval officers said they believed the German sailors would have a hard job repairing damages affecting the ship's fighting ability.

These authorities said the Graf Spee's stern battery was not functioning shortly after Wednesday's battle began, thus explaining how the British cruiser Exeter could close up to 1,000 yards from the Graf Spee. The guns of the stern battery can reach nearly 20 miles.

Observers said the ship's motors also must have been damaged as the Spee only made 18 knots along the last 50-mile stretch into Montevideo when she was fleeing from the British cruisers Ajax and Achilles.

George Honors Naval Officers

LONDON, Dec. 16.—(UP)—The admiralty announced tonight that King George had appointed Commodore H. H. Harwood a knight commander of the Order of the Bath in recognition of his "gallant and successful action" against the German pocket battleship Admiral Graf Spee.

Harwood was also promoted to be a rear admiral of the fleet, effective December 13. He was on the British cruiser Exeter and in command of the British squadron in the action against the Graf Spee off the coast of Uruguay.

The admiralty also announced that Captains Farry, Woodhouse and Bell, of the Achilles, the Ajax and the Exeter, respectively, had been appointed by the King to L. C. companions in the Order of the Bath.

Germans Assert Exeter Aground

BERLIN, Dec. 16.—(UP)—The German radio reported tonight that the British cruiser Exeter suffered 11 direct hits in the battle with the Nazi pocket battleship Graf Spee.

The radio said that the Graf Spee scored direct hits on the Exeter's bow, putting the gun turrets out of action; on the bridge, setting signal devices afire, and amidships, where the boilers were put out of action.

The ship listed heavily, the radio report said, and had to be run aground on a sand bank to prevent sinking.

There was considerable speculation over the whereabouts of the British cruiser Exeter, badly damaged in the engagement with the Graf Spee. Some naval experts believed the crippled ship was en route to the British naval base in the Falkland Islands and might reach the safety of that base by morning.

(The Falklands are off the southern Argentine coast, about 1,400 miles from Punta Del Este. The Exeter was forced to withdraw early from the fight. How many dead or wounded were aboard was not known.)

Destroyers Seen At Rio de Janeiro

RIO DE JANEIRO, Dec. 16.—(AP)—The Brazilian government-controlled news agency, Agencia Nacional, today distributed a dispatch from Recife, northern Brazil, which said that the British destroyers Hardy, Hero and Hostile had arrived here, taken on oil and food and departed for an unknown destination.

Physicians can draw on 100,000 drugs in compounding prescriptions.

HURRICANE LASHES NORTHERN HONDURAS

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras, Dec. 16.—(AP)—A hurricane which hit the northern end of Honduras caused considerable damage today but no casualties were reported.

At Lacieba the schooner Ondina, loaded with merchandise for Guanaja Island, was wrecked and sunk. The schooner Maria Oliva was wrecked against the Lacieba wharves and her cargo of native produce destroyed.

Spee Could Hurl More Steel Than Adversaries—Palmer

On Form, Contest Was Far From Equal, Says Expert.

By COL. FREDERICK PALMER.
For the North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.

NEW YORK, Dec. 16.—Not before in this war have naval circles, upon whom public silence is imposed, had such a thrill. In common with the rest of us, they had been trying to peer through the fog of censorship, thickening nature's fog, which conceals naval operations on the North Sea.

Gun flashes on the southern seas shot attention away from this realm of mystery and speculation. We wait for further professional details, but the cold fact is that three British cruisers of actually inferior gun-power made it so hot for the Admiral Graf Spee that she ran for cover.

It was three ships against one, but the Spee was the miracle pocket battleship into which German craft had put all its skill and cunning to design a battleship of only 10,000 tons. The "bell" mounds of her six 11-inch guns were supposed to improve accuracy and extend range even to 35,000 yards. The Spee had also eight 5.9-inch guns, equivalent in power to 6-inch.

The British Ajax and Achilles each had eight 6-inch guns and the British Exeter six 8-inch guns. An 11-inch shell weighs 670 pounds, an 8-inch shell 256 pounds and a 6-inch shell 100 pounds. Total weight of metal either side could throw, and the Spee had 4,820 pounds to 3,136 for the British.

Also, the British cruisers were lightly armored and vulnerable to the 11-inch shells. The Spee was supposedly heavily armored and practically invulnerable to 8-inch shells and quite so to 6-inch shells. The 6-inch shells and the 8-inch had not the range of the 11-inch. However, a small offset was that 6-inch and 8-inch guns could fire faster, which is equivalent to saying that a lightweight fighter in the ring might box faster with light blows than the heavyweight with his heavy blows.

Far From Unequal.

So, on form, it was far from an unequal fight for the Spee, and her only danger was that the three cruisers might rush her simultaneously. If she could get them one by one, the result ought not to be in doubt. Reports show she had the opportunity at least to get one first.

There has been much talk about how it has been the Germans and not the British who have shown initiative in this war. There was no lack of it on the British cruisers, terriers against mastiffs, when, as the reports have it, the Ajax, with only six-inch guns, gave chase to the Spee, with her 11-inch armament, as the Spee pursued the French merchant ship Formose. The Achilles, sister light cruiser, with her six-inch guns, came up, and in closing in, got the first crack at the Spee.

It would not have taken many shots—one might have been enough—from the Spee's 11-inch guns with their long range, to put the Achilles and then the Ajax out of action before the Exeter also got inside the Spee's range so her shells could reach the target. The Exeter's word to the Ajax and

How Sea Battle Started

The French merchant ship Formose was sighted by the German Graf Spee and began race for Uruguayan waters. The British cruiser Ajax sped between the Formose and the Spee and laid a smoke screen in which the Formose escaped.

The British cruisers Achilles and Exeter then joined the Ajax in battle against the Spee, the Exeter bearing the brunt of the fighting.

The Spee then sped, still fighting, for Montevideo, pursued by the Achilles and the Ajax, the Exeter limping off because of damage. The Spee reached Montevideo and the Achilles and Ajax took up a watch near by, being joined later by other warships. Deadline for the Spee to leave Montevideo or be interned is today.

Achilles was, in effect, "Leave this to your big brother!"

Mauled Hardest.

Doubtless it was the Exeter's eight-inch shells which mauled the Spee the hardest. The Exeter gave the heavy pounding, and also must have received it, since the Spee evidently concentrated on her. But the Ajax and Achilles, if subject to less attention, kept at it with their six-inch shells. When the Exeter was out of action, they continued the pursuit against the enemy they had on the run.

For the Spee made a running fight of it from the start. Her commander evidently was not in the mood to go down with colors flying. His plan seems to have been to save his ship to fight another time.

All three British cruisers had the speed of the German by about six knots, facilitating their tactical maneuvers in a running fight. As he was centering his fire on the Exeter, there were the Ajax and Achilles back out of their smoke screens, stabbing at the Spee with their six-inch shells. Undismayed without the support of the Exeter, they never let up until the Spee was safe in a neutral port.

There is no gainsaying that the British cruisers outplayed and out-shot the Spee in spite of her 11-inch long-range guns with their hell mouths; no gainsaying that it was a brilliant victory for the British in a real naval battle, gun against gun, without planes or submarines having a part.

May Offer Alibi.

The Spee may offer as alibi that a lucky shot wrecked her control tower; but fire control was not limited to the tower in any battleship of modern times. If the Spee's catapult plane was damaged, she was unable to spot her shots, while the cruisers were able to spot theirs.

The best the German admiralty can claim is a pyrrhic "escape" victory. It has some explaining to do, as the British admiralty had when Lieutenant-Captain Prien slipped his submarine into Scapa Flow and sank the battleship Royal Oak.

Without referring to the British admiralty's denial, the German charge that the cruisers used mustard gas will hardly hold without discrediting German naval prevision. All modern major warships have methods of keeping out gas that have been proved efficacious by practice tests.

Out of their far superior surface navy, the British can easily have enough ships off Montevideo to care for the Spee should she put to sea again. There are reports that the 32,500-ton Columbus and other ships interned in Latin-American ports are homeward bound. They may slip through as the Bremen did, but not by daylight. They cannot openly steam even on the North Sea.

HULL WILL BATTLE FOR TRADE TREATIES

But Behind Scene There Is Talk of Program Compromise.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16.—(AP)—Secretary Hull intends to fight with all his indomitable Tennessee courage for his trade-agreements program at the next session of congress—but behind the scenes there is talk of compromise or compromises.

The talk comes not from Hull himself, but from some high officials who concede that compromise may be necessary to retain the trade-agreements.

Perhaps the most acceptable is renew the trade-agreements act (expiring June 12) as it stands, but for only one year. This, they argue, would carry the trade program beyond election year and provide more dispassionate discussion when it came up again. The act originally was made effective for three years, and has been once renewed for three years.

Another suggestion is to require senate ratification of each agreement.

The administration looks with least relish on this last compromise. Officials say: "How is it physically possible? The Anglo-American agreement alone embraces more than 500 separate products. Agreements are in force with 21 nations. The senate would have to devote a large portion of its time solely to trade-agreements."

Three Polish Destroyers Still Harass Nazi U-Boats

Without a Country at Present, the Trio Roams Seas; Claims Two Enemy Submarines Sent to Bottom and Five Others Dealt With Effectively.

For the North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.
LONDON, Dec. 16.—Men without a home or a country of their own helped save the crew of a British ship blown up by a Nazi mine a few hours out from the coast.

When they were landed, among them was a 16-year-old boy on his first voyage. His ship was the Newcastle collier Sheaf Crest.

But, said the boy, William Lightfoot, "I still think the sea is grand. I have not got the wind up—and I am sticking to the sea."

All but two of the crew of 30 were saved by the Polish destroyers Blyshawica, and a lifeboat.

One of the missing is 30-year-old Captain H. L. Banks. He was on his second voyage.

Brings Letters Ashore.
Earlier, two of the three Polish destroyers in British waters had sped out to the North sea war zone.

This correspondent was the last aboard them before they sailed. In a fast motorboat I brought ashore letters written by some of the world's most gallant sailors. Of those 520 officers and men, only two have had news of their wives, children, parents and sweethearts since the war began.

Though the others do not know whether their loved ones are in concentration camps, are wounded, or have been bombed out of existence, they fight on.

The destroyers, in addition to the Blyshawica, are the Grom and Burza. They mean, in English, Lightning, Thunderbolt and Squall. And they mean it.

Proud of Guns.

Officers and men told me that they had accounted for two U-boats. They believe they have dealt effectively with at least five more.

They have been at war with Nazi planes. They are proud of their dual-purpose guns.

They are proud of the bid they made when war broke out. On that Sunday, while Prime Minister Chamberlain announced Britain was at war with Germany, these three Polish destroyers were steaming at more than 30 knots to join the Allied fleet.

German U-boats and planes were lying in wait for them. But the Poles beat them.

"We have no country now and, at the moment, no shores of our own to defend," a young lieutenant said to me.

"But, when we defend our ship we are defending Poland. This ship and that flag"—pointing to the red and white Polish naval ensign—"means Poland to us."

Only Chevrolet has this EXCLUSIVE VACUUM-POWER SHIFT!

—and only Chevrolet's Exclusive Vacuum-Power Shift has a hidden power cylinder which does 80% of the gearshifting work for you!

Why shift for yourself? Why do it the hard way? Chevrolet's Exclusive Vacuum-Power Shift is controlled from the steering column by an extra short lever—its end right under the rim of the steering wheel, within easy finger reach. The only effort required of the driver is to move the lever; the vacuum cylinder supplies the effort required to move the shifter forks and gears within the transmission. Instead of supplying all the effort of shifting, the driver supplies only one-fifth; the compact, simple vacuum mechanism, positive and unfailing in operation, does the rest.

80% AUTOMATIC—ONLY 20% DRIVER EFFORT!

YOU know the old saying . . . "Appearances are deceiving" . . . Well, nowhere does this apply more fully than to steering column gearshifts in today's automobiles.

All steering column gearshifts look more or less alike. . . . But only Chevrolet's New Exclusive Vacuum-Power Shift acts for itself when you touch the lever. . . . Only this one advanced steering column gearshift is 80% automatic in operation!

You see, Chevrolet's New Exclusive Vacuum-Power Shift has a hidden power cylinder. And this power cylinder goes into action the instant you start to shift gears. It does 80% of the work for you instead of letting you push and tug and do all the work yourself!

29 SHIPS ARE LOST IN WEEK, SECOND MOST DISASTROUS

Toll of 129 Reported in Collision of British De- stroyer Duchess With Unidentified Warship.

Sinking of four more neutral vessels Saturday sent the total of ships reported lost in the 13th week of war to 29, making it the second most disastrous week of the struggle. The 12th week produced reports of 31 sinkings.

The week was highlighted by the dramatic battle between the 10,000-ton German pocket battleship Graf Spee and the lighter British cruisers Achilles, Ajax and Exeter off the Uruguayan coast near Montevideo. Both sides claimed victory in the battle that resulted in the Graf Spee taking temporary refuge in Montevideo.

Of secondary interest during the week was the destruction of the 1,375-ton British destroyer Duchess after a reported collision with an unidentified British warship. The admiralty revised its casualty list yesterday, placing the toll at 129, or nine more than had been reported lost.

Latest victims of the war: Ragni, Norwegian freighter, 1,264 tons, sunk off northeast English coast by a mine, six crewmen missing.

H. C. Flood, Norwegian freighter, 1,907 tons, sunk off northeast English coast by a mine, four sailors missing.

Ursus, Swedish freighter, 1,499 tons, sinking revealed when 11 of crew of 20 arrived at Rotterdam aboard the Netherlands freighter Brinda. Survivors said an "explosion" sank the ship near the English coast.

Germaine, Greek freighter, 5,217 tons, sunk in the Atlantic off England. The Netherlands passenger liner Pennland radios she had rescued crew.

A survey of the week's strife showed 83,757 tons were sent to the bottom with a loss of at least 215 lives. Great Britain was the chief loser with 15 vessels of 51,637 tons.

A round-up of the war to date showed at least 237 ships with a tonnage of 903,158 have been destroyed. Loss in lives rose to at least 2,630 with hundreds more reported as missing and probably dead.

A breakdown of the figures shows submarines and warships have sunk 89 ships, mines 61 and 87 by other causes.

A survivor of the British steamer Huntsman, sunk by the Graf Spee, reported that 84 of his shipmates had been placed on an unidentified German ship which presumably was still roving the seas.

British Search Japanese Ship

LONDON, Dec. 16.—(AP)—The British contraband control today took for examination the Japanese steamer Sanyo Maru which sailed from Rotterdam with a cargo of German potash and machinery.

The examination of the freighter attracted unusual interest because it may turn into a test of the Allied order imposing a blockade on German exports, even on neutral ships.

DISABLED VETERANS TO WRAP PACKAGES

Only Pay Will Be Donations From Patrons During Holidays.

Two disabled veterans, C. P. Tharpe and I. E. Jones, have been given permission to wrap Christmas packages for mailing in the old and new post office buildings.

Jones is stationed in the lobby of the new building, near the Forsyth street entrance. Tharpe is stationed in the Forsyth street lobby of the old building.

Both of the men are experienced package wrappers. Neither is in the employ of the post office. Their only pay is donations from patrons. Wrapping paper, twine, stickers, and reinforcing cardboard are bought and furnished by the men themselves.

The veterans will be on duty from 7 o'clock each morning through December 23.

Finns Smash Great Attack By Russians on the Isthmus

14 Tanks Destroyed, Four Others Drive Up to Positions and Surrender.

By LYNN HIENZERLING.

HELSINKI, Dec. 16.—(AP)—Soviet Russian troops, attacking in force after a 10-day barrage which raked forests on the Taipale river, today were hurled back by Finnish troops after a furious battle, the Finnish army reported tonight.

The Finnish communiqué declared Russia lost "hundreds" of men and 14 of 50 Russian tanks were destroyed. The Finns also said four Russian tanks "drove up to our positions and surrendered."

The attack was aimed at outposts of the Mannerheim line on the Karelian isthmus, which Russia has failed to penetrate since the war began 17 days ago.

Finns Hold Lines.

A few battalions of hardy, khaki-clad Finns near Lake Ladoga, who have endured artillery shells from two sides day and night for more than a week, still were holding the north bank of the Taipale river. Around them, trees have been splintered and the earth torn by the steady pounding of Soviet shells.

Further down the river, toward Lake Suvanto, where the Finns voluntarily withdrew a week ago and permitted the Russians to cross, the Soviet command launched 50 tanks. Only 32 returned to the Russian lines after the battle, the Finns said.

Prelude to Attack.

Two days ago, as I watched from a trench above the Taipale, Russian batteries poured 10 to 15 shells every minute into a small woods on the Finnish side of the stream, apparently the prelude to today's attack. The Finns did not waste ammunition to reply, claiming the Russians were shelling without an objective.

The Ladoga sector has been particularly hot as the Russians can shell Finnish positions from flanking points on the lake, where heavy guns have been mounted on boats.

There are craters 10 feet in diameter in the forest—results of shells from the lake guns.

The Finnish communiqué gave no estimate of Finnish losses in today's fighting.

Finnish shore batteries also sank a Russian patrol ship attacking off the coast of Kotka, the communiqué declared. Yesterday the Finns reported sinking a Russian destroyer in a similar action.

Russian troops were repulsed everywhere except in the far north where Finnish soldiers were retreating near Salmijarvi, the Finnish high command reported, and enemy casualties on several fronts "reached into the hundreds." The communiqué covered yesterday's action.

Await Onslaught.

A decisive battle appeared near at Pitkajarvi, about 12 miles south of Salmijarvi, where dispatches via Norway said the retreating Finns were digging in and waiting for the onslaught of the invading Red army.

Russian tanks, trucks and bombing planes were seen moving into the Salmijarvi sector.

Lakes and a river form a natural barrier near Pitkajarvi which would help the defenders. The Russians preceded their Karelian attack yesterday with "severe artillery fire" and then sent their legions across the frozen isthmus.

Devastating Fire.

They were met by devastating fire which ripped through the ranks of the tanks and broke up the attacks, the Finns declared.

Russian troops were reported fleeing before counter-attacking Finns in the middle of Finland at Tolvajarvi near the frontier. The Finns said the "spoils of war continue to mount" in the Tolvajarvi sector and a battle in the Suomussalmi district is "proceeding toward a conclusion."

A Russian column has been attempting to move across the narrow middle of Finland and cut the country in two since the start of the war.

Vessel Destroyed.

Concerning sea warfare, the communiqué said:

"Enemy naval detachments operated with particular ferocity in the Gulf of Bothnia, launching destroyer and motorboat attacks in the vicinity of the Haapasaari islands where one enemy patrol vessel was destroyed."

Finnish anti-aircraft batteries shot down one enemy plane during the day, the communiqué reported, although there was little air activity on either side.

Finn Rearguard Fights Valiantly

SVANVIK, Norway, Dec. 16.—(UP)—Finnish troops driven back from the arctic coast dug in south of Salmijarvi tonight for an expected major battle with Soviet mechanized units and infantry battering a path southward along the Norwegian frontier.

The clatter of machine guns with which Finnish "suicide squads" fought the Red army from frozen hill to hill; the rumble of Soviet heavy tanks which are now proving effective in the far north and the roar of land mines as Finns destroyed roads along which they retired, gave Norwegian border guards a vivid picture of war which pressed close against their positions.

As the early arctic darkness closed in, military observers said the Russians were now apparently in control of the northernmost coast of Finland and had pushed their lines southward to a point on the Pasvik river below Svanvik.

Reds Pay Heavily.

Finnish sharpshooters and machine gun units were described as making the Russians pay heavily for every step they advanced over the snow-covered countryside in bitterly cold weather. But the main purpose of the Finnish rearguard for the time being was to fight a delaying action while the main Finnish forces were consolidated behind strong defense works south of Salmijarvi, where Norwegian military experts said they believed a big battle was probable Sunday or Monday.

The territory which the Russians have seized is the narrow, bottleneck avenue to Petsamo and the arctic coast between Russia and Norway. On the coast, it is about 25 miles wide and it extends southward for about 35 miles before it becomes wider. Fighting has been in progress in this rich mining area since the war started and now the Russians have advanced about half way down the bottleneck, making some 25 or 30 miles in two weeks of warfare as they attempt to strike southward through mid-Finland toward Sompiojaervi, Rovaniemi and Tornio—some 325 miles away.

Desolated Countryside.

The countryside is desolated. Finnish troops have destroyed houses and set fire to towns; blown up roads and narrow passes and otherwise used every means of delaying the Red army. Finnish patrols west of Petsamo have been harassing the Russians throughout the night as well as fighting across the icy hummocks during the brief daylight hours. They believe they will be able to hold out for a long time in their main defense positions nine miles south of Salmijarvi in the neighborhood of Porochokki.

Finns along the frontier reported that the Russian troops were better equipped than those taken prisoner early in the conflict, indicating that crack reinforcements had been sent into the northern area. They have good tents, some of which are heated, and their guns are much better, the Finns reported.

Nevertheless, the cold continued to work great hardship on the Russians. A number of Soviet soldiers were reported to have advanced to the Norwegian frontier or across it, seeking warmth and food.

There were many unconfirmed reports of Russian soldiers being found frozen to death beneath trees where they had taken shelter overnight.

"Suicide Squads."

One Finn reaching the frontier said that the town of Salmijarvi was an inferno after being set on fire by the Finns. He said that Finnish rear guards, silhouetted against the flames, had remained around the town long after the main forces had retired in order to make certain all the buildings burned.

These rear guard units entrenched themselves, he said, and were prepared to ward off any Soviet forces approaching. He reported that the Finnish rear guard groups were volunteers who had sworn to hold their ground to the last man and that those who volunteered realized that they had virtually no chance of survival.

These "suicide squads," he said, had caused the main Russian forces to swerve eastward around Salmijarvi.

Swedish Air Ace Joins the Finns

HELSINKI, Dec. 16.—(UP)—Two Swedish-speaking Russians were arrested in mid-Finland, reports reaching the capital today said. They were held at Kajana on charges of espionage. Police said they had a large amount of Finnish money and maps of the countryside.

Notice was posted today that the total supply of peas in Finland had been confiscated for the army. The famous Swedish air ace, Captain Rosen, arrived in Helsinki as a volunteer for the Finnish air force. He said that he wanted to "do my duty as a Swedish patriot."

I feel my country, Sweden, is threatened by the Russian invasion of Finland and I help my own country."

He was with the Swedish Red Cross in Ethiopia.

Salmijarvi Said Retaken by Finns

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Dec. 16.—(UP)—Messages from Helsinki tonight claimed that Finnish troops late today recaptured the town of Salmijarvi, on the Norwegian frontier in the far north. The town had been badly burned by retreating Finnish forces, frontier dispatches reported earlier.

Berlin Hails Ciano Speech

BERLIN, Dec. 16.—(UP)—Authorized German quarters tonight greeted the speech of Italian Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano as confirmation of axis solidarity and proof that Allied efforts to alienate Germany and Italy were doomed to failure.

Moreover, it was stated, Ciano's address constituted a strong indictment of the western democracies on the grounds of war guilt and a justification of Nazi policies. Ciano's admission that the Russo-German pact caught Italy by surprise was described as "understandable enough on an ideological basis."

Ciano Reaffirms Devotion to Axis

ROME, Dec. 16.—(UP)—Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano reaffirmed Italy's devotion to the Rome-Berlin axis today, despite Germany's alliance with Russia, which he said took Italy by surprise.

Addressing the chamber of Fascist corporations for one hour and 52 minutes, Ciano gave his version of some of the under-cover diplomatic moves preceding the current war. Italy had two days' notice of the German-

Russian non-aggression pact, he said.

Ciano indicated Italy's displeasure with the Berlin-Moscow agreement and bitterly denounced Communism, but excused Germany. Britain and France, he said, forced Germany into the Russo-German pact by first trying to align Russia on their side against the Reich. He did not refer to the Finnish-Soviet war.

A principal point stressed by Ciano was that Italy intends to keep out of the war, but will safeguard all her interests. Italy is ready at any time to aid restoration of peace.

Hitler Watches War Closely

BERLIN, Dec. 16.—(AP)—Reichsfuehrer Hitler was at work today in the Berlin chancellery, attending to state affairs and keeping a close watch on war developments.

His last known public appearance was at the celebration December 6 of Field Marshal August von Mackensen's 90th birthday. It was taken for granted that Hitler would receive Commodore Adolf Aorens and 20 others of the Bremen crew when they come here tomorrow.

Last Reservists Report in Finland

HELSINKI, Finland, Dec. 16.—(UP)—About 50,000 Finnish reservists reported for service today when the last of the nation's fighting strength was mobilized.

(It was estimated that Finland now has almost 400,000 men under arms.)

The reservists were from 22 to 40 years old. They were not of any special class but were the last group of trained men called up.

Chinese Claim Warship Sunk

SHANGHAI, Dec. 16.—(UP)—Chinese forces on the Yangtze river banks near Kiukiang fired on and sank a Japanese warship on December 12, resulting in the loss of 100 Japanese lives, the official Chinese Central News agency reported today.

Central News said that before placing artillery batteries on the river the Chinese reoccupied the town of Shaho, five miles south of Kiukiang.

At Chungking the Central News again reported that Japanese forces holding Nanning, former capital of Kwangsi province, have been cut off from communication with their bases on the sea by Chinese troops which occupied four strategic towns between Nanning and Pakhoi, South China port.

'Not Waging War'-Soviets

MOSCOW, Dec. 16.—(AP)—Soviet Russia, in an authorized statement on her expulsion by the League of Nations, declared today she was not "waging or interested in waging" war against Finland.

The statement, released by Tass, official news agency, blamed France and Britain for Russia's ousting and asserted army operations in Finland were aimed at the "bankrupt Finnish rulers of the Mannerheim clique."

(Field Marshal Baron Carl Gustaf Mannerheim is head of the Finnish National Defense Council.)

Asserting that the Communist "people's government of the democratic republic of Finland" was the legitimate government of Finland, the statement maintained that Russia's relations with her little neighbor were "peaceful and friendly."

New Advances Claimed by Reds

MOSCOW, Dec. 17 (Sunday).—(AP)—Advances in the Murmansk and Ukhta areas and "insignificant skirmishes" on other sectors of the Finnish front, were announced early today by the Leningrad headquarters of the Russian army.

Needed replacements were taken from other planes shot down by anti-aircraft fire.

France Orders More Planes

NEW YORK, Dec. 16.—(AP)—Six hundred and fifty more Curtiss pursuit planes have been ordered by the French government, says The New York Times.

The order increased to about 3,800 the number of American planes contracted for by European belligerents in the last 18 months.

The total value of the orders placed in this country by foreign governments for planes, propellers and aviation accessories was roughly estimated by The Times at $350,000,000.

Six Polish Ships In French Port

PARIS, Dec. 16.—(UP)—Six Polish trawlers which escaped from the former Polish port of Gdynia have run the German Baltic blockade and reached a French port, it was disclosed tonight. They will be converted into minesweepers. The date of their arrivals was not disclosed.

'Good Old Nev', Cry Soldiers

WITH THE BRITISH EXPEDITIONARY FORCE IN FRANCE, Dec. 16.—(AP)—Prime Minister Chamberlain donned his salmon-fishing outfit today to inspect British troops in the mud and bitter cold.

He wore a brown sport suit, canvas ankle leggings and a rubber coat. Soldiers cheered him lustily on his 100-mile tour.

One cry was: "Good old Nev!"

Finns to Use Captured Planes

HELSINKI, Dec. 16.—(AP)—Resourceful Finns have repaired three Russian bombers forced down near Helsinki and the planes are in shape to be used against their former owners.

Needed replacements were taken from other planes shot down by anti-aircraft fire.

Heavy Gunfire Off Norway

BERGEN, Norway, Dec. 16.—(UP)—Heavy detonations, believed to be gunfire, were heard off the Norwegian coast tonight.

Coastal points west of Bergen reported that minor explosions had been heard this morning. Then at 5 p. m., there was the sound of heavy shooting.

A series of particularly heavy detonations was heard at 6 p. m., but there were no details that might explain the blasts.

Belgian coastal points also reported that firing had been heard at sea off the coast of Belgium, but the ministry of defense said that no information was available on it.

Dane, Four Sons Will Join Finns

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, Dec. 16.—(UP)—Justus Hansen, 62-year-old Dane born in Finland who emigrated to the United States in 1898, passed through Denmark today with four sons en route to Helsinki, where all plan to enlist in the Finnish army.

Abercrombie Cites Georgia's Need For More Public Health Nurses

Director Outlines Varied Work of Service That Aims to Prevent Disease as Well as Aid Persons Who Are Sick.

Citing the work of the public health nurse in Georgia as vitally important in the state program for the prevention of disease and the protection of health throughout the state, Dr. T. W. Abercrombie, director of the State Health Department, points out the necessity for more public health nurses in the state.

He explained that the public health nurse is not an independent worker, but assists the public health physician and the practicing physician in their effort to prevent such diseases as typhoid fever, diphtheria, and smallpox, aid him in endeavoring to reduce the maternal and infant mortality rate, and works to prevent hundreds of the new cases of tuberculosis which develop each year.

He asserted that the public health nurse, who must be a graduate nurse with post-graduate work in public health nursing, carries out a public health nursing program which includes a great variety of services, some of which are rendered to groups of people and others to individuals in the home. The public health

Never Drink On Job, Boys—Moral of Story

CHICAGO, Dec. 16.—(P)—Andrew Klyn, 23, at pistol point, collected $4.15 from George Reese, wine and liquor store proprietor. Then he had a drink with Reese and Reese's wife, Katherine.

One drink led to another, until an hour had passed. By that time, Klyn liked Reese and Mrs. Reese so well he decided to go home with them.

While he was crying, Mrs. Reese sneaked out and got the police. Moral: Never let down on a holdup.

nurse, through scientific information brings knowledge about the prevention of disease and the maintenance of health to the individual home and community.

Important in the group services rendered by the public health nurses is supervision of 3,000 midwives, who attended 23,000 births last year in Georgia. These midwives meet at scheduled times with the public health nurse for instruction, and each year the nurse sends into the state office a report on each midwife with a recommendation that her certificate be renewed for the coming year or that it be withdrawn, depending upon the record of the individual midwife. In addition to the supervision of midwives, the public health nurse visits patients in the home who need special prenatal care and whose condition makes it unsafe for a midwife to care for them.

TRANSATLANTIC BOAT GETS BERMUDA RUN

NEW YORK, Dec. 16.—(P)—The liner President Roosevelt, one of 11 ships withdrawn from transatlantic operations by the United States Lines because of the neutrality act, today began a new service between New York and Bermuda.

Aboard were 150 vacationists and Vincent Astor, a director of the United States Lines, who said he was acting "as a sort of goodwill ambassador."

FOOD COSTS DECLINE 0.6 PER CENT IN MONTH

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16.—(P)—The Labor Department reports that the retail cost of food declined 0.6 per cent between October 17 and November 14. The decrease was attributed in large part to further reduction in the cost of meats, lard and sugar.

The November index was 77.9 per cent of the 1923-1925 average as compared with 78.4 for October and 77.8 for November, 1938.

SON OF HAMILTON, G. O. P. LEADER, HURT

LAWRENCE, Kan., Dec. 16.—(P)—Dan Hamilton, 22, son of John Hamilton, the chairman of the Republican national committee, was injured critically today in the overturning of an automobile on State Highway No. 10.

His companion, John Battentfield, 19, of Kansas City, a student at the University of Kansas, was killed. The car rolled several hundred feet off the highway.

CUTTER, PLANE JOIN HUNT FOR SCHOONER

NORFOLK, Va., Dec. 16.—(P)—Another coast guard cutter and plane joined the search today for the two-masted schooner Centurion, overdue at Wilmington, N. C.

The auxiliary sailing vessel, believed to have two men aboard, notified the passing steamship Dakota Monday that she had lost her propeller, but would try to make Wilmington under sail. She asked the Dakota to notify the coast guard if she failed to reach Wilmington by Wednesday.

The Centurion was last reported about 200 miles off Cape Fear.

JAPANESE CONVICT AMERICAN MISSIONARY

KYOTO, Japan, Dec. 16.—(UP)—The Rev. Luther Tucker, 32, Episcopal missionary of Mount Kisco, N. Y., was sentenced today to four months' imprisonment, which was suspended for one year, after his conviction of charges of spreading false reports and distributing seditious literature. Tucker, who will be permitted to leave Japan, will not be required to serve his sentence unless he is arrested again by Japanese authorities within the year.

BUT NOT TO CLIMB. SAVANNAH, Ga., Dec. 16.—(P) The plea was voiced by the park and tree commission and women interested in the tree of light in Park Extension to all small boys to "please not climb it." It is a 40-foot pine, to which a number of branches have been added for decorative purposes but not of sufficient strength for Tarzan acts.

YULETIDE BUSINESS
HEAVIEST IN YEARS,
GEORGIANS REPORTDepartment Store Sales
Far Ahead of Last Year; Bonuses, Dividends To Spur Flow of Money.

By The Associated Press.
Cash registers of Georgia merchants are jingling a merry tune in the wake of the general business increase that is putting extra Christmas money in circulation.

Department stores report sales far ahead of last year and many say Christmas business is the heaviest in several years.

A number of business houses have announced Christmas bonuses for employees. Regular and extra dividend payments will put money into the hands of others.

Increased employment in railroad shops at Waycross promised merchants in Waycross a heavy increase in business over last year. Merchants said the Christmas rush started earlier this season.

In Atlanta, where 124 new concerns and manufacturing plants were established in the first 11 months of the year, department stores reported both November and December business ahead of last year.

The new concerns in Atlanta added more than 1,000 employees and carry an annual pay roll of $1,641,000.

In Athens, practically all merchants reported an increase, and Christmas bonuses heartened many workers.

Some merchants in Albany reported business about the same as last year, but expected an increase next week. Other houses said their business was ahead of last year.

Thomasville stores, expecting increased holiday trade, stocked their most complete gift stocks in many years.

Shopping started earlier in Moultrie and trade continued lively. Merchants expected sales volume to pass that of 1938 by a considerable margin.

NEWSBOYS' DINNER
PLANS COMPLETEDWill Be Held Next Sunday at Henry Grady.

Plans have been completed for the 24th annual newsboys' Christmas dinner to be held at 7 o'clock Christmas Eve at the Henry Grady hotel, it was announced yesterday.

More than 250 newsboys, both old and young, will report to their various circulation managers at 6:45 o'clock and march in a body to the hotel.

A number of city and state officials have been invited to the party. Following the dinner, the street salesmen will be entertained at the Capitol theater. The annual party is made possible by P. C. McDuffie and a group of business and professional men.

COMPOSER PLAYFrederick V. Bowers Is Star of Stage, Radio.

Frederick V. Bowers, stage and radio star, and for 40 years a composer of popular music, will play his own songs at 12:15 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in the Henry Grady hotel for the annual blind children's Christmas party.

Sponsored by the Atlanta Lions Club, which each year has provided some type of entertainment suitable for children handicapped by loss of sight, Mr. Bowers is a native of Boston and a graduate of the New England Conservatory of Music.

His program will describe, with musical illustrations, the romance of song writing.

He has been featured in vaudeville and musical comedies and is now a factor in the Hollywood composition field.

RESOURCEFUL MISSOURI SETS 4-4-2-1 DEFENSE FOR TECH

It is strange, indeed, that after all these years of plugging for their team to get the coveted bid, certain Tennessee groups now are "firing on" arrangements made by the athletic body regarding personnel for the long haul west to the Rose Bowl.

Certainly, the mere fact that Tennessee has finally got a bid after so many previous disappointments should be enough to make any Tennessean rare back and howl. And I don't mean howl about the plans that are being made for the trip.

It is none of this department's business what the University of Tennessee has decided to do, but the decision to leave the band at home is not at all unusual. It would be a mighty fine thing to be able to take the band, but it would be the exception rather than the rule.

The last time Alabama went west the band did not go along, neither did Duke take its fine band. Georgia Tech did not take its band in 1928. There is a matter of tremendous expense involved.

None of these teams took their entire squads, either. Naturally, while the Rose Bowl looms from a distance as a pot of gold, the expense incurred in transporting the normal squad and other members of the official party is terrific.

They point to what Texas A. & M. is doing. But it's only an overnight trip from College Station to New Orleans. The Aggies can afford to transport a huge party. Georgia Tech is taking its band to Miami. But that, too, is a relatively short haul as compared with the excursion to Pasadena.

Civic groups of Knoxville, it seems, should be proud enough over what Major Bob Neyland and his aides have accomplished, to chip in and help them off the spot. Couldn't blame Neyland right now if he threw up his hands and said, "Oh, what the dickens."

It so happens that it is the customary thing for the Pasadena Bulldog band, a mighty organization, to do the honors for visiting teams. This is not as good as having your own school band, strictly from a "school spirit" sense, but it fills the bill.

As I say, there are enough civic-minded groups in Knoxville to send the band—if they so choose. And it would be a mighty fine gesture on their part. Just seems so odd that after Tennessee finally has got on the trail of that so-called pot of gold at the end of the Rose Bowl rainbow, there should be petty remarks made in connection with what ranks as an outstanding collegiate achievement.

BREAK FOR GARDNER.

Things have worked out fine for George Gardner, who played with Red Barron at Georgia Tech. George has been selected as headlineman for the Tennessee-Southern California game on New Year's Day.

George made his first trip to the coast in 1934—the year Alabama hauled out Howell and Hutson and wrecked Stanford from the air. But George was only a spectator. He was on his honeymoon. Pup Phillips, of Tech, was an official in the game.

Now he is going back, George Gardner is, as an official. And Mrs. Gardner is going, too.

TECH IN TWO BOWLS.

Georgia Tech is going to be in two bowls this time. The Jackets, who, according to reliable report, will wear sky blue jerseys and flashy gold pants, meet Missouri in the Orange Bowl.

Artie Small, captain of Georgia Tech's great cross-country team, unbeaten in two straight years of conference rivalry, and Charlie Belcher, Olympic trackman, will represent the Jackets in the Sugar Bowl track meet.

And it might be added here that Oglethorpe will have a representative at the Rose Bowl. That is, if Ferdinand is still in good standing as an alumnus of the Stormy Petrel institution. Ferdinand will confine his running to a typewriter, unless the Sons of Troy of Southern Cal have other plans.

HE ALMOST MISSED.

Tracey Matthewson, who has roamed the south with a camera since Hector was a pup, recalled an old story of Ty Cobb yesterday. We were talking about Cobb because, in about a week, this correspondent will be heading back to the gold coast for the third straight year with a bowl-bound southern football team. Ty Cobb will be there.

It happened years ago, the story did, down in Burke county around Waynesboro. The colored boys down there always called him "Mister Ty Cobb" and they had a vast respect for his skill with a shotgun. Even his great "eye" as a batsman was not exceeded by his skill in bringing down game.

This day a colored boy approached Tracey Matthewson, who was on the trip, and said, "Mister Ty Cobb ain't shootin' so well today."

"What's the trouble?" Tracey Matthewson asked. "He hasn't missed any yet."

"Nossuh, boss," the colored boy replied, "he ain't missed none yet, but he almost did."

GRANT, BOBBITT AT SUGAR BOWL

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 16.—(P) The New Orleans Midwinter Sports Association, which sponsors Sugar Bowl events, announced today that Bobby Riggs, of Chicago, world amateur tennis champion, will head the list of competitors in the Sugar Bowl tennis tournament December 28-31.

Elwood Cooke, of Berkeley, Cal., holder with Riggs of the Wimbledon doubles championship, also was listed among the entrants. Others expected are Bryan M. "Bitty" Grant, of Atlanta, last year's singles winner; Russell Bobbitt, of Atlanta; Don McNeill, of Gambier, Ohio; Gardner Mulloy, of Coral Gables, Fla.; Henry Prussell, of Seattle; Edward A. Lee, of Berkeley, Cal.; Billy Talbert, of Cincinnati; and Billy Gillespie, of Miami, the national intercollegiate champion.

BANDS ADD POMP TO COTTON BOWL

Dallas Fans Like Clemson; Neely Admits McFadden Looks Good.

By TOM W. MILLER.
DALLAS, Texas, Dec. 16.—(UP) J. Curtis Sanford started out to state a New Year's day football game in the Cotton Bowl, but tonight it appeared that in addition to football he would give the customers the music of 5,000 high school bandmen, fireworks, and a girl show.

Sanford, a young oil millionaire who has promoted the Cotton Bowl for four years, said he was discouraged because he failed to get Tennessee and Texas A. and M. into the same arena.

"We've got two of the best teams in the country, haven't we?" he asked. "Boston College and Clemson are as rough, tough and able as they come, and we're assured of a fine game. But that is just a starter. That 5,000-piece band will be one of the best things this city ever will see. We're getting bands from all over the state; they'll be uniformed, and they'll be led by some of the neatest drum majorettes you can find."

Getting back to football, Sanford recalled that each team had been defeated only once.

Local favorites are offering odds of 4-to-5 and take your pick. The local favorite is Clemson, the Southern conference co-champions.

Boston College has been snowed in the last few days, but Coach Frank Leahy wired that the team would be "primed and ready" another 10 days. At Clemson, Coach Jess Neely said that the workouts were encouraging. Banks McFadden, Clemson's 175-pound back who made several all-America teams, looks particularly good, he said.

Major Bob Neyland Names 35-Man Squad

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Dec. 16.—(P)—Chairman N. W. Dougherty, of the University of Tennessee Athletic Association, said in a statement tonight only members of the football squad "expected to make any kind of contribution to the game" would be taken to Pasadena, Cal., for the Rose Bowl game.

Dougherty also said the executive committee of the association had voted not to send the band.

Major Bob Neyland announced the following 35 players would make the trip, leaving December 21:

Trojans To Resume Grid Sessions Today

Howard Jones Will Prepare for Great Cafego; Rose Bowl Sure Sellout.

By ROBERT MYERS.
LOS ANGELES, Dec. 16.—(P)—Supporters of the University of Southern California would be just a mile more confident about the coming football engagement with Tennessee if they knew the real condition of George (Bad News) Cafego.

No news makes Cafego "Bad News" for true. Howard Jones and his coaching aides won't rest too easily until they learn whether the Volunteers' all-America backfield star of 1938 is ready to play the role of an all-America New Year's Day, 1940.

RIVERSIDE TEAM TO PLAY IN CUBA

Cadet Gridgers Play Two January Foes, See Orange Bowl Game.

GAINESVILLE, Ga., Dec. 16.—According to announcements issued here today by General Sandy Beaver, president of Riverside Military Academy of this city, Riverside's football team has been signally honored by an invitation from the Cuban government to appear in two post-season exhibition games in Havana early in January.

The invitation has been accepted and Riverside's "Blue Battalion" will make its two appearances against Cuban teams as a part of the Cuban government's program to popularize the American grid game with the Cuban populace.

The first game will pit the Riverside Cadets against the Havana Athletic Club eleven on January 3, while the second game will be with the Cuban Navy on January 6. Both games will be played in Havana and will feature the government's New Year's program designed to stimulate interest in American games and sports.

The Riverside players will be official guests of the Cuban government throughout their stay in the island republic.

While special interest centers in the fact that Riverside is the only American school to be invited by a foreign government to participate in a program of this type, a feature of the trip of considerable importance to the players is the fact that the entire Riverside squad will attend the Orange Bowl game at Miami between Georgia Tech and Missouri.

ENGINEERS FIND SCRUBS 'TOUGH'

Pass Defense Weak as Jackets Prepare for Missouri Game.

By JOHNNY BRADBERRY.
Tech played a "game" yesterday with a rugged Red Devil eleven on Grant field as work continued for the Yellow Jackets' Orange Bowl game with Missouri.

The varsity and the substitutes went at it hammer and tongs for an hour on the faded turf of Grant field in one of the hardest scrimmages of the year. The Red Devils and the freshmen combined to form a hard-charging, terrific-tackling team and it was no pink tea for the varsity by any means.

However, the running of Bobby Pair, Bobby Beers, Roy Goree and Howard Ector; the pass receiving of George Webb and Harry Arthur and the downfield blocking of Hawk Cavette enabled the varsity to score several touchdowns and win the "game."

Four of the Jackets were withheld from the drill. Billy Gibson, Johnny Bosch, Butch Aderhold and Jim Wright have not fully recovered from recent injuries and won't be played until they are in top condition.

Cowboy Buck Shaw reinjured his bad knee but will be set to go again in a few days. Charlie Wood, veteran tackle, was also slightly hurt but it is not serious.

Once again it was the work of Pair which brought smiles to the faces of Jacket coaches. The speedy sophomore made the longest run from scrimmage of the day, traveling about 35 yards for a touchdown and continued his fine work on defense. He made several other long runs.

The Jacket defense against passes was not very encouraging. The Red shirts completed numerous short aerials and one or two long ones. Additional work is scheduled for the varsity on this phase of the game this week. The Red Devils have no Paul Christman but if they can complete 'em, what will Missouri do?

The Jackets will leave Atlanta Saturday for Miami. They will arrive next Sunday and will make headquarters at the Flamingo hotel.

Elsie's Cute Knees Kept Under Cover

BARTLETT, Texas, Dec. 16.—(UP)—Elsie Crabtree, the University of Nevada drum majorette, whose dimpled knees provided inspiration to the university football team, was kept under wraps here today although she was the featured attraction at the merchants' Santa Claus parade.

The fame of Elsie's knees was such that the folks came from miles around to see her parade down both of the town's streets, but there was considerable disappointment when she showed in an automobile and not afoot. The best the folks got was a hasty peek over the side of the car.

The original idea was to have a "dimpled knee contest" but the wives of the town's leaders blew the whistle on that one.

Missouri Definitely Not One-Man Team

If Tigers Can't Win by Orthodox Means, They Outthink the Opposition.

By HAROLD CLAASSEN.
COLUMBIA, Mo., Dec. 16.—(P)—If the Missouri football team can't defeat an opponent by orthodox means, the Tigers triumph by outthinking their foe.

Three of their victories the past season are directly traced to quick mental gymnastics by the players and coaches.

Against New York University Pitchin' Paul Christman demoralized the Violets by passing on the first scrimmage play from deep in his own territory. The toss was good for 20 yards and brought the ball to midfield but the play accomplished even a great purpose.

Throughout the remainder of the afternoon the Violet defense was split and their attitude jittery. It was the play that earned Christian the title of "quadruple" threat, one eastern critic declaring the blond Tiger had no superior at running, passing, kicking or thinking.

PLANNED PLAY.
In the Oklahoma tussle, it was a planned play that brought the touchdown victory and Missouri's first Big Six championship. Tiger scouts saw a flaw in the protection Oklahoma gave its punter. All week the team rehearsed a defeated suburban St. Louis High school team.

They permitted Christman to enter Purdue University and the coaches there thought so little of him he returned home in disgust. Cunningham, meanwhile, had entered Missouri and soon converted Christman he should do likewise.

formation where the center surged through the line to block the kick.

Finally the chance came. Oklahoma was forced to punt the soggy ball from behind its own goal and Substitute Center Charles Moser slanted through to tap the ball. It spun high in the air and fell into the arms of Bud Orr, who needed only a step for the tally.

Against Kansas, a lowly club blessed with a pair of offensive-minded ends and an outstanding passer, the Tigers fell into an unrehearsed 4-4-2-1 defense when the Jayhawks started passing down the field.

The threat was halted and Coach Don Faurot thought so much of the idea he is drilling his squad on it in preparation for the Orange Bowl game with the Yellow Jacket aerialists of Georgia Tech at Miami New Year's Day.

CHRISTMAN MAIN THREAT.
Christman, a second-team All-America choice, definitely is the main Tiger threat but the club is far from being a "one man" club. Bill Cunningham, the fullback, was voted the second best fullback in the Big Six this fall in his first season of competition.

Hackneys Trained For the Future

and Alasa Sunny Jim. The four-year-old ponies are being trained for Miss King by Jack Barry. Miss King, right, is shown in her stable apartment holding the Seaton Pippin gold challenge cup won by Lalla Success in 1934, '35 and '36. Three straight wins gave Miss King the cup for good.

Tulane Is Selected Over Texas Aggies

Southwestern Champs Will Face Team of Equal Line Power for First Time.

EDITOR'S NOTE—Bob Matherne, former University of Alabama sports writer and a native Texan, has seen the Texas Aggies three times and Tulane Greenies twice this year in games. Below he gives his prediction on the outcome of the New Year's Day game in New Orleans between these two teams.

By BOB MATHERNE.

GOOSE CREEK, Texas, Dec. 16.—I've been trying to advise some of my good friends in Texas that I am afraid the Texas Aggies are in for a rough afternoon in New Orleans when they play the Tulane Greenies in the Sugar Bowl classic of New Year's Day, but each time I do their retort is in the form of a horse-laugh. Maybe two such laughs!

Out here in Texas, where the Texas Aggies have just won a Southwest conference championship, where football teams year in and year out are ranked the equal (and better by Texans) of most teams in the nation, you can find few folks who see any winner on New Year's Day other than the Aggies.

Somewhat or other, I figure the other way—and I hope the Aggies win. I've seen Coach Homer Norton's ball club play three times this season, against Baylor, Rice and Texas. They have a great ball club, as anyone who reads the newspapers knows. Any team that wins the title in this league must be good! On top of that, the Aggies also clipped Santa Clara and Villanova.

You must remember the Aggies are generally rated the best defensive club and heralded as the No. 1 club of the nation. Two of their players—Kimbrough at fullback and Boyd at tackle—made many, many All-America selections this year.

THREE-DEEP. These Aggies are big and rough and fast, and three-deep or more

HACKNEY MEETS REMILLE MONDAY

A match the fans have been clamoring for — Remille versus Hackney—will be put on Monday night at the Atlanta theater. Promoters Jones and Bettis have lined up one of the most attractive cards for the season for wrestling fans.

Frank Remille, the Birmingham Butcher, and ex-Skull, who bowled over all foes with regularity, while grappling here as a masked warrior recently, will be meeting in Hackney and ex-southwestern light heavyweight champion, and one of the best wielders of the hook scissors known to wrestling.

In other words, the match should be a honey. The semi-windup brings together Bill Jeffries, the Pampas Bull, and Wild Bill Collins, of College Park, in a one-hour time limit, two out of three falls match.

Tony Papalino and Scotty Sullivan clash in the opener at 8:30 o'clock.

Fungi-Sol Invades Sports Arena; Warren Plays Police in Opener.

The fast-moving Atlanta Crackers, who have brushed aside four willing, if not able opponents, this afternoon shoot for their sixth victory of the young basketball season when they meet the speedy Fungi-Sol quintet from Cartersville.

Fungi-Sol, returning the best players of last year's squad and bolstered by several skillful newcomers, promise to make the Crackers show their best stuff. Leading the attack for the visitors will be Blondy Quick, Washington Senator shortstop, and Cubby Culbertson, former University of Georgia athlete.

Shep Lauter, of the Crackers, probably will start the same five which has been clicking thus far. That would be Lamar Murphy at center, and Bob Lieb and Gaby Greenberg. That combination packs a punch and offers a rugged defense.

Judy King Retires Knight Bachelor

Famous Harness Horse Won Hundreds of Prizes, Showed Before 14,000,000 People.

By ROY WHITE.

Knight Bachelor, one of the greatest harness horses of all time, has been retired at Judy King stables on Mt. Paran road, adjacent to the city of Atlanta. A winner of more than $35,000 in cash prizes, 75 gold and silver trophies, more than 300 ribbons, and every championship of any consequence in the United States, Knight Bachelor has easily won his reward of retirement to ease and comfort.

"The Knight is not for sale and will remain 'tops' at my farm as long as he lives. He won his retirement with the best performance of any horse in the show ring and will be given the best of treatment," Miss King said in retiring the champion.

BIG FAVORITE. Knight Bachelor has shown before more than 14,000,000 spectators at crowded shows in New York, Philadelphia, Toronto, Louisville, Chicago, Kansas City, St. Louis, Springfield, Mass., Springfield, Mo., Miami, Syracuse and countless other minor shows.

Miss King's horse began his rise to championship form in England and made such an impression in a Miami show five years ago, he was purchased by Miss King. She knew quality and wasted no time in lining up The Knight for her stables.

Outstanding among the many performances of Knight Bachelor are championships won at Devon, the big outdoor show of the year, and at Madison Square Garden, the indoor championship. Those two national titles have been won several times each, along with many others in midwestern shows.

Knight Bachelor has won more championships than any other horse, all breeds included, in the United States, and it is no wonder that he will be given the best of attention during the remainder of his life of ease.

FAME IS STRANGE. And strange as it may seem, Miss King, a native Atlantan, is far better known in championship circles in the east and mid-west than she is right here at home. She is another Atlantan who has won national fame without the fanfare and acclaim of a champion.

Miss King lives in a modest cottage on Mt. Paran road, adjacent to the most modern stables in the country. She has some of the most capable handlers in the business but takes great pride in feeding, training and caring for her prize-winners, herself.

Miss King has disposed of all of her older horses except Knight Bachelor, and starting next spring she will have a new group. Nine hackneys are in her Mt. Paran road stables now and that number will be increased before another season rolls around.

ALL ARE YOUNG. The new hackneys are all young and Jack Barry, manager of the farms and his corps of assistants,

WEST END HOLDS GOLF EXHIBITION

Dot Kirby, Tommy Barnes Play Louise Suggs, Dannels Today.

Dorothy Kirby, former southern women's champion, and Tommy Barnes, former southern intercollegiate champion, will play Louise Suggs and Charlie Dannels Jr., Atlanta's open and amateur champion, at 1 o'clock this afternoon in an exhibition match on the West End course.

The exhibition will be free to the public, and Paul Ford, president of the club, will referee the match.

Officials of the West End club have planned a series of exhibition matches as conveniently as possible during the winter months, just for entertainment of the city's golf fans. There will be no admission to any of them.

Several weeks ago Miss Suggs and Hook Sandow, the John A. White professional, beat Dorothy Kirby and Charlie Edwards, West End pro, one up in a match on the John White municipal course.

In a warm-up for today's exhibition Dorothy Kirby set a new unofficial women's course record Saturday morning at West End. The former champion had a 38-35-73.

Playing with Kirby was George Berry, Atlanta's junior champion, Edwards, the pro, and Harry Roper.

Hal Spears Wins Bobby Jones Bogey.

Hal Spears won the weekly blind bogey tournament yesterday afternoon at Bobby Jones, although he failed to hit the winning number of 79. He had a 78. S. S. Swilling was second with a 75.

Nine Hit Bogey At East Lake.

W. T. Etzell, H. D. Kline, J. J. Nicholson, Hugh Burgess, W. F. Marshall, A. J. Vance, H. S. Roberts, D. R. Paige and J. J. Connerghy were winners Saturday afternoon in the regular weekly blind bogey on the East Lake courses. The winning score was 71 and there were 60 entries in the Saturday event.

One stroke away from the winners in second place were: Trawick Johnson, R. S. Mather, J. A. Vaughn, A. C. Bromberg, J. L. Morris, Travis Johnson, T. B. Robertson, C. D. Grover, L. W. Hill, H. L. Gilham, A. J. Jones, M. E. Cox, J. H. Layman and H. K. Garges.

Another of the regular weekly dogfights will be played on the No. 2 course this afternoon. Entries must be in the golf shop by noon so that play may start at 1:30 o'clock.

BEST IN BIG TEN. CHICAGO, Dec. 16.—(UP)—Nile Clark Kinnick, Iowa's All-American halfback from Omaha, Neb., was selected today as the Big Ten's most valuable player.

Nelson Takes Lead, Shoots 31 Coming In McSpaden, Miami Winner Last Year, Is Tied With Snead, Guldahl, Kunes for 2d.

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 16.—(P)—Byron Nelson, steady after an almost disastrous start, rolled out his third straight sub-par round, a 68, for a 205 that gave him the undisputed 54-hole lead in the $10,000 Miami Open golf tournament.

Nelson, National Open champion, who is firing for a clear-cut right to the year's professional supremacy, bogeyed the first three holes but came breezing in with a four-under-par 31 on the second nine to forge ahead of the pack.

A new threat emerged during the day when Harold (Jug) McSpaden, of Boston, last year's Miami open winner, ripped off a four-below-par 66 to move up a single stroke behind Nelson.

Sam Snead, of White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., back in the form that made him the most feared professional in the land, hammered out a 67 for 207 to re-enter the first place fight. Also in dangerous contending position at 207 were Ralph Guldahl, two-time national open ruler who scored a 69, and Gene Kunes, the Philadelphia dark horse whose 70 dropped him two strokes off the pace. Kunes had shared the 36-hole lead with Nelson at 137.

Tommy Armour, winner of every major professional championship and still going strong at 46, nailed up a 68 for 208 to stay in the running. Even with him there were Denny Shute, former British open and P. G. A. titleholder who scored a 69, and E. J. (Dutch) Harrison, of Little Rock, Ark., who equalled par 70.

A pair of youngsters, Clayton Heafner, of Linville, N. C., and Ben Hogan, of White Plains, N. Y., shared the 209 spot. Heafner after a 69 today and Hogan after a 70. Bud Williamson, of Fort Wayne, Ind., with a fine 66, and Dick Metz, of Chicago, with a 71, were tied at 210.

Henry Picard, current P. G. A. champion who leads the professional brigade both in money earnings and points toward the Harry Vardon trophy, slipped to a 71 for a total of 211, six strokes behind Nelson in their feud. By winning the tournament, with Picard finishing third or worse, Nelson could excel in both divisions.

WAYNESBORO ALL-AGE WINNER

Georgia's Field Trials To Be Held January 15

Waynesboro, Site of First Event in 1900, Is Again Selected for 1940 Trials.

WAYNESBORO, Ga., Dec. 16.—The annual field trial of the Georgia Field Trial Association will be held as usual beginning Monday, January 15. Four stakes will be run in the following order: Members all age, members derby, open all age and open derby.

The judges will be G. W. Stenberg, of Jefferson City, Tenn., and George Suttle, of Newport News, Va. These gentlemen are well known to all field trial followers and are considered as capable judges of high-class dogs.

The guaranteed purse of $1,000 is paid in the open all age stake divided $500, first; $300, second, and $200, third. In open derby, 75 per cent of the total fees will be divided—50 per cent, first; 30 per cent, second, and 20 per cent third and this purse usually amounts to $500 or better. In the members' stake, silver trophies will be awarded the winners.

The grounds over which this trial will be run are considered very good. In fact, the first field trial was run here over these same grounds in 1900, 40 years ago. The present officers of the association are Fred C. Jordan, president, Atlanta; R. C. Neely, vice president, Waynesboro, and Peyton W. Thompson, secretary and treasurer, Waynesboro.

Last season, open all-age stake was won by Dawn's Highland Bill. The Cavalier won the open derby.

Buy License Early, Hunters Are Urged day" sportsmen by the State Department of Revenue.

License sales so far this season have been much greater than those for any corresponding period, and wild life rangers say that even more hunters will take to the fields if the statewide drought, unfavorable to quail hunting, is relieved by rain.

POLITICS RUINS CONSERVATION

'Science Is Its Friend,' Dr. Mayfield Tells Atlanta Bird Club.

"The greatest enemy of state conservation is politics. The only true conservation is based on long-range policies, and a change of personnel every two to four years paralyzes any planning for the future." This was the keynote of a speech by Dr. George R. Mayfield, of Vanderbilt University, Saturday evening, at the annual dinner meeting of the Atlanta Bird Club, affiliate of the Georgia Ornithological Society.

Dr. Mayfield, a native Georgian, who has been associated with Vanderbilt for 30 years, is a writer of many scientific articles, and is a widely known lecturer on ornithological subjects, went to high school here and attended Emory University. One of the first members of the Tennessee Academy of Science, Dr. Mayfield also was founder of the Tennessee Academy of Science Journal. In addition he is chairman of the Tennessee State Commission of Conservation.

In his talk on "An Adequate Program of Conservation," the doctor declared, "In every state the departments of health, education, highways and conservation should be placed on a merit basis and regulated by civil service rules. If politics is the enemy of conservation, science can rightly be termed the friend of conservation."

"Commissioners of conservation in many states do not recognize the value of scientific research. Millions of fish are being put into streams where they cannot grow or live successfully. Great numbers of quail, deer, turkey and other game are turned loose without any regard for the life conditions which surround them in their new fields. Hawks, owls, and other so-called vermin are often slain, whereas in fact these reputed enemies contribute to the balance of nature. Forests often suffer because those in charge of them have had little training in this field. Natural resources in oil, iron, coal and other minerals are wasted by lack of knowledge and, worst of all, our precious soil, being washed into the streams and down to the ocean by failure

In Dixie's Fields and Streams

Brown bundles of feathers, fleet cotton-tails and chattering squirrels provide targets for about 90 per cent of the hunting done by Georgia marksmen each year. In other words, these three favorites, along with doves, make up our every-day hunting.

In the higher classes of the art comes big game hunting, such as deer and turkey, and last but not least, though probably the most trying and elusive is migratory waterfowl. Winged honkers and fast-darting ducks will entice over 3,000 Georgia marksmen to marshy blinds during the present season.

Figures based on the sale of migratory waterfowl stamps indicate this number, which will be nearly a 50 per cent increase over last season's total sale. This indication shows that Georgians are demanding a greater variety of targets to test their gunning. And test it is when they pit their skill against the winged visitors from northern regions.

Lakes in the north Georgia section have proved one of the best local haunts for geese and ducks this season. Others have found good shooting in some of the many large rivers of the state, such as the Chattahoochee, Flint, Savannah and other rivers. Probably the best waterfowl shooting in Georgia, however, is found along the marshy inlets and sounds of our coastal section. This territory lies more along the natural fly-ways of the birds.

Shooting grounds in other states which are more suited to migratory game draw numerous local sportsmen. Among these are Reelfoot lake in Tennessee, the ever-famous Lake Mattamuskeet on the eastern coast of North Carolina, and the many duck clubs on Florida's gulf coast.

SPORTING PROPOSITION NOW.

Waterfowl shooting is an art within itself. Necessary federal regulations have eliminated shooting from speedboats and mass killing of the game. It is strictly a case of the hunter locating himself in a natural or artificial blind so that he will be invisible to the sharp-eyed fowl.

When this is accomplished, it's a question of waiting until a flock comes your way. Woodcock and snipe are the most common. Shooting is restricted to the period from 7 a. m. to 4 p. m. Nobody knows this better than the ducks and geese. Many hunters, entering the blind around 6:30 a. m., look forward to a day of real shooting as they watch gray wings circle overhead awaiting the zero hour.

Ducks, flying in that "V" formation without a care in the world, seem to disappear as if they were phantom flocks when the 7 o'clock period arrives. So when a straggler appears on the horizon and you want goose for Christmas dinner, you can bet you had best hold close to the blind.

If the Honk! Ah honk! Honk! of your guide can pull him in, your heart will beat like a bass drum. But hold on—keep steady—But wait. If he will only light, your chance will be much better. True enough, you have to be ready to let him have both barrels if he doesn't decide to join your company. Once he settles on the water, take it easy. Be sure that more are not coming.

Then take your best shooting position with a bead on him the minute those gray wings spread and those black webs clear the water. Give him everything that load of 12-gauge No. 2's will do, and when he folds those wings and returns to the water with a "ker-plunk" you can feel a little easier over that gray gander for Christmas dinner.

The ranger recently was attempting to catch bird hunters on a posted area when he stumbled into a liquor still in full operation.

The stiller fled over a hill. Douglas yelled for him to come back, explaining that he was only a wild life ranger, not a "revenooer."

He stormed into the bird hunters and set off the alarm.

A. K. C. Stops Subsidy

Cash Awards to Member Clubs Discontinued for 1940. Atlanta Dog Show Set March 29-30—Truck Driver 'Grabs' a Deer—Clark Gable a Boxer Fancier.

By Melvin Pazol.

Just at the time that the Atlanta Kennel Club announces that dates for its annual show will be March 29-30, comes the announcement in the American Kennel Club Gazette that cash awards at 1940 member shows will be discontinued, and as a result there will be no national competition to decide the outstanding American-bred dog for 1940.

The A. K. C. ruling, forced by the uncertainty of future registrations due to the wars in Europe, means that member clubs will miss the parent organization's annual contribution of approximately $13,000 to the prize lists. For the last five years the A. K. C. has distributed between $60,000 and $70,000 in cash awards, offering as much as $185 at a member show in an effort to promote home breeding. The announcement says that "it may be possible to continue these prizes in 1941."

Registrations for 1939 have already shown a slight drop. As of November there were 67,150, whereas registrations for the same period of 1938 were up to 68,200. Should this trend continue the A. K. C. would lose in fees the approximate amount of the annual awards.

Back to the Atlanta Kennel Club: Show judge has not as yet been selected. Being considered are Ed McQuown, of Springfield, Ohio, and James Walker Trullinger, of New York. Mrs. Emma Loest, of Kansas City, Kan., and E. W. Leach, of St. Paul, Minn., are under consideration for superintendent of show.

The Southern Boxer Club will have its specialty show in conjunction with the Atlanta Kennel Club event. Officers of the Atlanta club are: William G. Kaliska, president; A. K. Adams, vice president; John F. Clegg, secretary-treasurer.

Clark Gable (who left town yesterday) is a boxer fancier. He owns several good boxers, according to H. Morgan Milner, secretary of the Southeastern Association of Kennel Clubs and a director of the Atlanta Kennel Club.

Members of the Atlanta Field Trial Club paid a fitting though somewhat left-handed tribute to Bill Klinepeter and the work he has done as secretary of the group when they overrode his objection and forced him to ac-

SCOTT 'SALUTES' THE SETTERS

Major Trammell Scott, astride his white charger, Home Run, 'salutes' the setter breed again today.

Setter People Obtain What They Requested

Or So Charges Trammell Scott, Who Declares "Per Cent Breeding" Brings Strange Results.

By JACK TROY.

It is no fault of this department that Major Trammell Scott, one of the outstanding bird dog men—and pointer fanciers—happens to be quick on the trigger.

That the Major is "sharp" in rebuttal is entirely native with him, and in no way is this department to be confused as a collaborating agent. That is, the setter people ought to know this before we go any farther.

The latest episode in the pointer-setter argument showed a picture of a strange-looking black and white animal and a pointer. Charlie Jordan, of Monticello, sent it in with appropriate remarks as to the pointer breed.

Today, bowing from his white charger, Home Run, the Southern

TENDERFOOT TALES

To most people Bay swamp would be a dreary, lonely wilderness. Bay swamp is really not a swamp at all. It is low, flat land that borders the river for miles. When the stream is in its normal bed, Bay swamp is merely a wide belt of forest land, studded with virgin trees. The gray shafts of oak and gum and poplar stand like columns in some lost cathedral. The soil is alluvial and rich but supports no other life except those magnificent patriarchs of the forest.

Throughout generations the river has changed its course. Where the stream once ran is a series of bays and lakes. Dead lakes by the thousands remain there throughout the winter months.

WHEN THE RIVER OVERFLOWS.

When the river overflows its banks and spreads from hill to hill, Bay swamp becomes a vast wooded lake. Then all life which is not aquatic must take to the tree tops or the hills on either side. Those hills form a boundary for the swamp. They are not really hills, but high plateaus, covered with sedge and pine trees, cut with black water creeks and narrow thickets of cypress bushes, bay trees and gallberry.

Bay swamp and its environs is one of the finest habitats in the state for wild turkey. The big bronze birds are really there, too. But they are the most sagacious of all our North American game birds, and lucky is the hunter who brings one back from this desolate corner of the state. Sometimes a flock feeds through the swamp, scratching under the leaves for acorns. Occasionally they leave the swamp and forage back into the hinterland behind the sharply sloping bank of the plateau. They always return to the high trees at night to roost.

I shall never forget a single minute of the ten days I hunted in Bay swamp. It was the most difficult and heart-breaking vacation I ever had. Day after day I found places where turkeys had been. Day after day I found deer tracks which came to the very back door of our camp. Huge flocks of ducks flew out of the dead lakes and bays and approached. Each night I came home empty-handed. Occasionally Brad or I brought in a rabbit and once or twice we went after quail. We did not lack fresh meat when we wanted it, but those turkeys simply could not be located in the proper place at the proper time.

TIME'S A-WASTING—AND NO TURKEY.

One morning Brad and I discovered that the time allotted to our vacation was almost gone. Neither of us had brought a turkey back to camp during the ten-day period. We had boasted too loudly and too long at the office. Unless we made good, 12 dreary months of jibes and scorn faced us. I could hear them talking now, calling Brad "Old Turkey Pete" and not even my vivid imagination could pick out a name for me.

We decided to devote our last two days to killing a gobbler. If, at the end of that time we were unsuccessful, there would be only one course open—the river. We did not dare face that gang at home.

We outlined our plan. Below camp an old logging road came down the plateau to the river. Below the road was a favorite turkey roost. We had seen signs which led us to believe that many afternoons the turkeys followed this road to the edge of the swamp and flew from there into the tall trees. I was to take my seat where this road came to the bluff. There I was to wait until Brad had crossed the plateau many times, in an effort to drive the birds out of the sedge and pine lands into the swamp.

The sun was sliding swiftly toward the western rim of the world when I took my seat at the junction of the road and bluff. The afternoon was so still that every sound of the forest and river seemed magnified. The whistle of wings overhead told me that ducks were on their way upriver to roost. Somewhere below a squirrel chattered noisily, and deeper in the swamp came the doleful baying of another squirrel. I peered carefully in the direction of every leafy rustle because I knew that an old turkey gobbler could stalk through the woods like the shadow of a ghost.

WELL-HIDDEN FROM BIRD.

And then I heard him! He had left the road and cut through the brush to a point at least 100 yards below where I sat. At first I thought the bird had seen me and left the road, but I was too well hidden. No turkey would leave that road. I decided that it was Brad, on his way to the edge of the swamp.

I yelled and after a few seconds he answered. His answer sounded less like a turkey gobbler than did my own call and I wondered if he recognized my voice. I yelled again, softer. His movement through the grass and brush had stopped. When he replied I suddenly realized that he thought I was a turkey and was stalking me! I resolved that if we could not kill a turkey I was going to make the most of this fun, so I settled myself and waited.

The brush and trees and grass were so thick that I could not see 30 feet, but he could not see me either. He continued to work his way toward me, very slowly, both of us talking in a language neither of us understood. I was enjoying myself hugely and thinking what a wonderful tale this was going to be when he returned to the office when I suddenly realized that any little movement on my part might bring a load of No. 2 shot in my face. He might even shoot in the direction of one of my throaty clucks. This game had to come to an end.

"Don't shoot!" I called. "It's me!"

I put my gun down and climbed to the top of an old log where I could see over the brush and get an excellent view of the dis- appointment on Brad's face. When I raised up, there was an alarmed "Quack!" and a big gobbler roared upward through the trees. It was he who had been stalking me instead of Brad. My gun was ten feet behind me leaning against a bush and I did not even make a move toward it.

I hesitate to tell this story, even now. If any of the boys in my office ever thought I was that hunter... WOW!

Tech High Bans Further Rough Work for Jacksonville Game

SMITHIES STAKE PERFECT RECORD IN FLORIDA CITY

Drills Slated Monday and Tuesday, Then Lay Off for Christmas.

By ROY WHITE.

Tech High's football team will practice Monday and Tuesday afternoon at Piedmont park, suspend activities until after the Christmas holidays and work out five more times next week in the final preparation for a New Year's charity game with Jacksonville's all-stars at Jacksonville.

"There will be no more rough scrimmages," Coach Tolbert said Saturday. "Four months from the middle of August to now is plenty of football for any group, so the rough work is over, except for the game."

Particular attention will be given Monday and Tuesday to blocking and pass defense, two departments of play which did not measure up to standard in the final two games of the season.

Tech High has been weak in breaking up passes all year and since the Jacksonville team January 1 will be composed of stars from all the Jacksonville schools, it is likely that plenty of passes will be fired against the Smithies in that Kiwanis Club charity game.

Coach Tolbert indicated his regular backfield, Ben Cogburn, quarterback, Billy Paschal and Forrest Smith, halfbacks, and Frank Reinold, fullback, will start against the all-stars. The line also will remain intact, according to present plans, though there may be one change at game time. Paschal is well known to Jacksonville fans, having played in two charity games. He was the star for Tech High last year when Andrew Jackson was held to a 7 to 7 tie score.

Tech High has a perfect record, two ties and one victory, in post-season games at Jacksonville, and Coach Tolbert with his best blocking team in many years is more than anxious to maintain that record.

The Smithies will leave Atlanta early Sunday morning, December 31, and will not have any time in Jacksonville to practice before the game Monday afternoon, January 1.

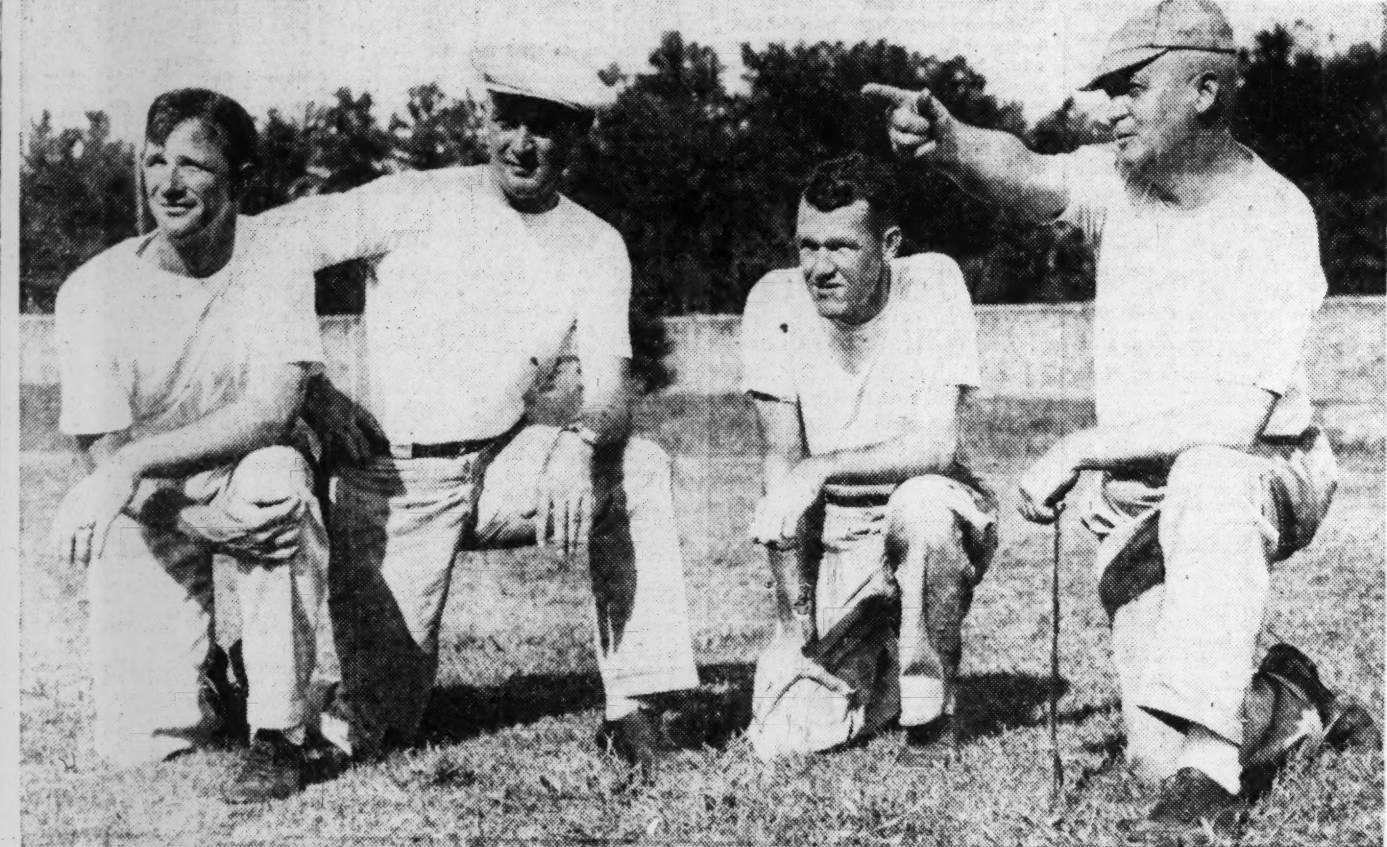

Columbus Duel Seen In Tech-Ga. Rivalry

COLUMBUS, Ga., Dec. 16.—(AP)—Columbus fans expect a real campaign to develop between Georgia Tech and the University of Georgia in basketball this season. But here the games will become something of a "Lewis-Kirkland" rivalry.

Carlton Lewis, All-G. I. A. A. forward, plays with the Tech varsity and Dan Kirkland, All-G. I. A. A. center, plays for Georgia. Both are Columbus lads. Already the fans are in the midst of a verbal campaign which awaits settlement on the courts.

MAYBE ALEX IS SAYING---'OFF YONDER WAY IS ORANGE BOWL'

Here's Tech's coaching staff which will array its talents and players against Missouri January 1. A testimonial dinner will be given the staff Thursday night at the Athletic Club. The coaches, left to right, Bobby Dodd, backfield;

Mack Tharpe, line; Roy McArthur, "B" team and scout, and Coach Alex (The Old Man), himself. Alex seems to be pointing in the general direction of the Orange Bowl. Hey, Coach, it ain't polite to point!

TECH COACHES TO BE HONORED

Alumni's Appreciation Dinner Set Thursday Night at A. A. C.

An appreciation dinner for Coach Bill Alexander and his staff will be given by the Georgia Tech National Alumni Association Thursday night at the Atlanta Athletic Club, Secretary Jack Thiesen announced yesterday.

Plans have been completed to make it one of the finest parties of the year. It will be strictly informal and all Tech alumni and friends are invited to attend. Tax is $2 a plate and Thiesen is taking reservations.

There will be only one speech—but it will be a good one because Colonel Bob Jones will make it. After the colonel speaks, no one else feels capable of putting thoughts into words.

The entire coaching staff, including Alexander, Bobby Dodd, Mack Tharpe, Roy McArthur and Norris Dean, will be present.

The idea is to honor those responsible for the Jackets' best season since 1928, which brought to Tech an invitation to play in the Orange Bowl game on New Year's Day in Miami against Missouri's passin' Tigers.

Pictures of some of the Jackets' big games of the season will be shown at the conclusion of the dinner.

AUBURN CAGERS.

AUBURN, Ala., Dec. 16.—(AP)—Coach Ralph Jordan, in dismissing his Auburn basketball squad for Christmas, notified 12 Tigers to return December 27 to begin preparations for Louisiana State January 5-6.

Conference Coaches Select Alex as 'Best'

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Dec. 16.—(AP)—Thirteen Southeastern Conference football coaches polled by the Nashville Banner gave a plurality vote to William A. Alexander, of Georgia Tech, for the best conference coaching job of the season.

Alexander, with six first-place votes, was followed by Allyn McKeen, of Mississippi State, with four. Ab Kirwan, of Kentucky, with one first place vote, ranked third and Major Bob Neyland, of Tennessee, also with one first-place vote, ranked fourth.

Alexander was praised for taking a squad rated as no better than sixth or seventh in the conference and winning every league game played to wind up in a three-way tie with Tennessee and Tulane for the conference championship. Losing only to Duke and Notre Dame, the Jackets received a bid to meet Missouri in the Miami Orange Bowl New Year's Day.

at every position. They like it, in fair weather or mud!

You're probably asking, dear reader, what all this guy, knowing all this, to step out and climb out on a limb with Tulane.

Well, it's like this: I saw Tulane beat Fordham, and also watched the Greenies sock the Crimson Tide from my old Alma Mater, Alabama, and I've said from the first that the Greenies had something that could measure the Aggies any day.

Just what it is, I can't say exactly. The nearest I can say is that Tulane has a mighty rough team plus McCollum and White at tackle.

Coach "Red" Dawson has what the experts like to call a power team. The Greenies didn't throw many passes against Alabama, none against Fordham. Whether they can or not, I really don't know. And don't much care as long as they have Kellogg, Barker, Hays, Krueger, Glass, Gloden and Nyhan around to carry that ball.

"Jarring Jaw" Kimbrough, of the Aggies, is a tough hombre, who wallops that line plenty. Thomason, Aggie halfback, blocks as few backs have been known to block. Moser, Price, Jeffery, Pugh and Connater are other fine backs at Aggie land and Connater's punting will be of the brand that will have spectators wondering if it is really true when they see him punt.

INDIVIDUAL STARS. But the Greenies won't yield.

Of course, it's your money and this is just one man's opinion. But when the Aggies meet the Greenies, it will be the first time this year that the Aggies will be meeting a club equally as powerful on the line as they are, are equally as confident, and you know you never saw a Tulane club and Tulane rooters that weren't confident of winning the ball game.

So I give you, and this may be treason in Texas, the Tulane Greenies in New Orleans on New Year's Day against the Texas Aggies.

Tulane won't present a better guard than Robnett, of the Aggies, and very little tackle play will be shown better than that of Boyd's. The Aggies' ends are light but stood the gaff well this season. How they will fare against those big ends and tackles of Tulane is another question.

BUTTS GIVES 29 GRID LETTERS

Spring Practice Will Start for Bulldogs in January.

ATHENS, Ga., Dec. 16.—Coach Wallace Butts today announced letters would be awarded 29 members of this year's football squad, the largest number to be given at Georgia in many years. The Bulldog mentor announced letters would be given 13 seniors, 12 sophomores and four juniors. Manager Julian Halliburton, of Macon, was also given a major "C."

Coach Butts said plans for starting spring football had not been completed and could not set a definite date.

The university is closing Tuesday for Christmas holidays and will not reopen until January 2. It is probable that spring football will begin about the middle of next month.

Seniors receiving letters are Alex McCaskill, John Stegeman and Knox Eldredge, ends; Charlie Williams, tackle; "Smiley" Johnson, Walter Wilfong and Abner Simonton, guards; Bob Salisbury, blocking back; Captain Vasssa Cate, Oliver Hunnicutt and Dooley Matthews, wingback; Billy Mims, tailback, and Jim Fordham, fullback. McCaskill and Stegeman both are eligible for another year of football but each has indicated he will not return in 1940.

The lettermen: Manager-Julian Halliburton, Ends—Alex McCaskill, Green Keltner, James Skidmore, John Stegeman, Knox Eldredge and Tommy Malone. Tackles—Charlie Williams, Lee McKinnitt, Dooley Matthews. Guards—"Smiley" Johnson, Winfred Goodman, Walter Wilfong, C. B. Guest, Abner Simonton. Centers—Tommy Witt and Steve Hughes. Wingbacks—Bobb Nowell, Bob Salisbury, Woodrow Brown. Blocking back—Captain Vasssa Cate, Oliver Hunnicutt, Dooley Matthews. Tailbacks—Howard Allen, Cliff Kimms, Billy Mims, Hank Covert. Fullbacks—Jim Fordham, "Spider" Nelson.

SOLD TO PELS. COLUMBUS, Ohio, Dec. 16.—(AP) Sale of Earle Browne, outfielder and first baseman, to the New Orleans club of the Southern Association was announced today by the Columbus Red Birds of the American Association. The purchase price was not disclosed.

game the same time Butler is, has starred all season and in the main his stellar blocking has been responsible for Johnny's headline feats.

"George Cafego has been handicapped by injuries and of course hasn't performed as notably as he did last season. But it is reported that he will be in perfect shape for the California engagement. If he is, then the folks out there will understand why he was on practically every All-American eleven selected in 1938. Hitting on all six he and Guard Bob Suffridge are some pair, the latter pulling out and leading him on his touchdown parades."

Gardner would offer no predictions relative to the ultimate outcome of the New Year's Day classic. He has not seen Southern Cal.

"I do know, however," he says, "that the gens of Troy will face a mighty fine football team—resourceful, fast, plenty hefty with a plethora of reserves and one of the best coaches in the country. And speaking of reserves, it has been said the Trojans will wear down the Vols as they did Duke last year. That I doubt. Tennessee can keep a fresh man in action every minute."

Champions Tie 8 Records; 4 Straight Pennants Is One for Books.

By GEORGE KIRKSEY.

NEW YORK, Dec. 16.—(UP)—As he fits champions, the New York Yankees were the leading record-breakers in baseball last season. In a lean record-breaking year the Yanks broke or tied 24 marks, according to the official American league averages released today. Only 46 assorted records were written in the books by the American league in 1939 whereas a year ago 64 new marks were set.

The Yanks contributed the following new records:

*BROKEN.
Major league, 11.
American league, 2.
World Series, 3; total 16.

*TIED.
Major league, 7.
American league, 1; total 8.

The most important of the new records was the Yanks' feat in breaking the American league record and equalling the modern major league record for four consecutive pennants. The three World Series marks set by the Yanks were:

Winning the World Series in four straight games with a batting average of only .206; winning their fifth World Series in four straight games, and fewest men left on base in a 4-game series, 16.

Six of the major league records smashed by the Bronx Bombers were home run standards. The Yanks broke the home run record for a single game with eight and for a double-header with 13. They hit three homers in an inning 10 times during the season, wiping out the old mark for that feat. Other home-run marks made by the Yanks include 100 homers or more, 18 years, 15 of them in succession, and leading the league in homers for the 20th time.

The outstanding individual record made by a Yankee was Atley Donald's 12 straight victories, a new mark for a first-year pitcher. Saddest record contributed by the Yankee machine was Lou Gehrig's consecutive game mark of 2,130, which came to an end when the big first baseman had to step down because of an insidious spinal disease.

The only two important major league marks in which the Yanks didn't figure were pitching records, Clint Brown, White Sox, appeared in 61 games as a relief pitcher and Lefty Grove, Red Sox, extended his record for the best earned run average to nine years.

and ever-dangerous Cherry Foster will also see service as will Johnston and Gene Warlick, fighting guard.

The main game will start at 3:30. In a preliminary, Warren's undefeated Crimson Bulldogs will oppose the Police Department team at 2:30.

FARM HOUSING PLAN LAUNCHED IN STATE

Strauss, Hamilton, Cox and Others Inaugurate Federal Program.

THOMASVILLE, Ga., Dec. 16. (P)—Nathan Strauss, national administrator of the United States Housing Authority, gave his approval here today to a new government experiment in farm "shum-clearance" which probably will make Thomas county, Georgia, the first county in the nation beginning a federal rural housing program.

Following a conference with farmers and landowners, Strauss said he would recommend the project to President Roosevelt.

"Thomas county," he said, "is one of the first counties to show interest in the program which would incorporate 200 farm units here at an average cost of $1,984.

Objective of Plan.

"The plan, it is hoped, will stop the ceaseless moving to and fro of families seeking better living conditions on farms and thereby stabilize farm labor."

Prior to the visit of Strauss today, George B. Hamilton, chairman of the Georgia Housing Authority, said the contemplated project would be the first of its kind in the nation and would call for expenditure of approximately $500,000 and construction of 200 single-family farm dwellings, each replacing a ramshackle, substandard structure.

Hamilton Praised.

Strauss, introduced by Hamilton, praised the Georgia chairman for his work on the housing problem, and said that slum conditions existed in the north just as in Dixie. He said Representative Eugene Cox, who spoke briefly was "one of the most powerful figures in the halls of congress."

"I hope the year 1940 will mark the turning point in the growth of the countryside," Strauss said.

Honor guest at a luncheon given for housing officials and local leaders by Hamilton prior to the conference, Strauss and Hamilton were guests tonight of Colonel W. Fred Scott, of Thomasville.

POLICE CAR IN ROME GETS TWO-WAY RADIO

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.

ROME, Ga., Dec. 16.—Police Chief C. I. Harris announced today that permission has been received from the Federal Communications Commission to make equipment tests on a new two-way radio unit installed in a police cruising car here.

For the first time since broadcasting facilities were provided for local police, officers will be able to transmit messages from cruising cars to headquarters. The first such unit was financed through a policeman's ball held recently at the city park clubhouse.

Additional units will probably be installed early next year, and radio-equipped patrol cars of the sheriff's force, county police and officers at Lindale and Tubize also are expected to be provided with new transmitting units for closer contact with the Rome broadcasting station.

HOSPITAL TO HAVE TUNNEL

Arrangements to convey underground its whole personnel, patients, staff and executives in the event of war raids is being made by the Ramsgate General hospital in London. A tunnel, which will be finished before autumn, is being driven through the chalk starting with a ramp from a hole in the hospital grounds.

DRIVER IS KILLED
PASSING ON CURVE

Georgian's Car Rips Through 12 Posts, Turns Over Seven Times.

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.
CHATSORTH, Ga., Dec. 16.—(P)—Fate Harrison, 24-year-old WPA worker, of Crandall, was killed late this afternoon when the automobile he was driving plunged off the road eight miles north of here and turned over seven times. Corporal W. F. Hudspeeth, who investigated, said the accident occurred when Harrison attempted to pass another car on a curve which bent to the right, on United States Highway 411. He passed the other vehicle, they said, but the speeding car ran off the left side of the road and ripped through 12 fence posts. It came to a halt 345 yards from the point it left the road, they reported. Harrison's neck was broken.

MRS. CHARLES COX

Was Former President of College; Rites To Be Held Tomorrow.

Mrs. Charles C. Cox, daughter of the founder of Cox College and a former president of the school, died last night at her residence in College Park. She was 74 years of age.

A member of one of Georgia's most prominent families, Mrs. Cox had spent her entire life in forwarding the work of education in Georgia.

Only a few days before her death she had left her sick bed to go to the polls to vote for the bond issue that was to insure retention of the old Cox College properties for a College Park civic center.

Father Was Founder.
Her father, Milton E. Bacon, was the founder of the Southern Female (Cox) College, founded only two years after Wesleyan College, the nation's oldest institution of higher learning for women.

A few years after Mr. Bacon had sold the properties to Charles C. Cox, she married the purchaser, and throughout the remainder of her life devoted her time to the furtherance of the project.

When her husband died in 1905, she served for several years as president and until the institution closed its doors in 1922 continued her affiliation with the school. She resided at 223 West Cambridge avenue, College Park.

Funeral Rites.
Funeral services will be held at 11 a. m. tomorrow from the First Baptist church of College Park, which she served for many years as a leader in Sunday school work.

The Rev. Dr. James L. Baggett will officiate, assisted by Dr. M. L. Brittain, president of Georgia Tech, Dr. B. D. Gray and Dr. L. E. Roberts.

Burial will be in LaGrange, under the direction of H. M. Patterson & Son.

COST OF PREMIERE
PUT AT $100,000,
BUT NONE OBJECTS

Departing Officials Now
Convinced That Atlanta
Knows How To Stage a Real, Bang-Up Opening.

There is one item of expense in connection with Hollywood's most expensive production about which not one word of protest will be raised by anybody—the estimated $100,000 that it cost to stage the star-studded premiere of "Gone With the Wind."

And if there were any doubts in the minds of the movie moguls about Atlanta's ability to handle the situation, they have been effectively and permanently removed.

Points Made Clear.
These points were made clear yesterday by departing officials of both Selznick International and Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, who were lavish in their praise of the city's reception of their stars and picture.

E. B. Coleman, who was in charge of all advance arrangements for M-G-M, drew his first deep breath in just about three weeks at the GWTW headquarters in the Georgian Terrace hotel and pronounced he was "completely satisfied."

"I must confess to some anxious moments when I first realized just how big this celebration was going to be," he said. "But I can see now that my worries were needless."

Nothing Wrong.
"Not a thing went wrong. Nobody was hurt. The crowds were well behaved and perfectly handled. Everybody was considerate. And I think the Atlanta police under Hornsby and the others who assisted them did a truly magnificent job from start to finish."

Coleman is to go from here to Miami for a short rest and to assist in preparing for the opening there next month.

TOLD TO USE FEAR IN NLRB, CHARGE

Ex-Employee Declares Official
Advised Him To Intimidate Industry.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16.—(P)—House investigators received testimony from a deposed regional director of the National Labor Relations Board today that he was instructed officially to make industry "fear" the agency and was ousted because he insisted on impartial administration of the law.

The witness was James P. Miller, now a labor relations counselor at Cleveland, who said he was forced to resign last May as the board's regional director in the Ohio city. The reason given by the board, he said, was that he had attended a "champagne dinner" given in New York by a lawyer who had cases pending before him.

"Goon Squad."
The advice to make industry fear him and the board, he said, came from Fred G. Krivonos, a special examiner in the board secretary's office here, and was given when Krivonos was "inspecting" the Cleveland office.

Miller described Krivonos and Robert Gates, another examiner, as a "goon squad" which he declared was sent to regional offices "any time you disagree" with Nathan Witt, the board secretary.

While Miller was present, the house committee accepted for record a report which Krivonos made on Miller prior to the latter's resignation.

The report said that two regional labor relations counselors at Cleveland believed "Miller was making bids in every direction for a juicy job with industry."

"Does Industry..."
Miller then testified that he had never sought a job with any company while with the board.

Miller, recounting the circumstances of his advice from Krivonos, said they first had a discussion of petitions from independent unions which he declared Krivonos said should be "put in the ice box" and forgotten for a while. "Then he wanted to know 'what's your position here?'" Miller asserted. "Does industry fear you and the board?"

"I told him that they respect us. He told me that was the wrong position and said 'you should make them fear you and the board.' I said, 'Fred, nuts.'"

FULTON COLLECTS
$2,000,000 TAXES

With Only Two Days Till
Deadline, But 45 Per Cent
Are Paid.

With but two days left before the deadline for payment of 1939 state and county taxes, the Fulton county tax collector's office yesterday had collected approximately 45 per cent of the expected revenue of nearly $5,000,000. Collections late last night totaled slightly more than $2,000,000, with $4,978,977 expected as the yield on approximately $270,000,000 worth of taxable property.

Actual collections were more than $400,000 ahead of last year, but because of the new budget law which provides that the 1940 budget shall not exceed 99 per cent of 1939 revenue, immediate sale of delinquent tax accounts has been ordered by the county commission.

PIERCE STOCK MEN
MARK ANNIVERSARY

Russell and Gibbs Address Gathering at Black-shear Market.

BLACKSHEAR, Ga., Dec. 16.—(P)—United States Senator Richard B. Russell and Congressman Ben Gibbs, of the eighth Georgia district, lauded Pierce countians for their efforts in behalf of a greater livestock development in Georgia at a celebration here yesterday in observance of the first anniversary of the Pierce county stockyard.

A crowd of several thousand persons applauded the congressmen when they pledged their efforts toward keeping this country out of the present European conflict.

Abbot Nix, Athens attorney and one-time candidate for Governor, presided as master of ceremonies and introduced the speakers.

Following the speaking, a barbecue was served from tables in a grove in front of the stockyards.

Taking advantage of the fact that a large number of stock buyers were represented at the anniversary auction, farmers began bringing in cattle and hogs early in the day. W. N. Bridges, yard manager, said total offerings brought nearly $15,000.

During the afternoon, Senator Russell and Congressman Gibbs inspected the coastal flatwoods development near Waycross in company with a committee from the Waycross Chamber of Commerce, headed by R. B. Zachry.

The project includes 40,000 acres of forest and pasture lands on the fringe of the Okefenokee swamp, and in the center is located Laura S. Walker park, where winter national guard maneuvers are being held.

Presentation in All-Star Series.

By MOZELLE HORTON YOUNG.

With all Atlanta literally walking on air after the two-day "Gone With the Wind" festivities, it was grand to have the joint concert of Bidu Sayao and Ezio Pinza as one more gala and brilliant occasion before getting back down to normal living again. Their concert was at the city auditorium last night, one in the All-Star series.

The beautiful Brazilian songbird, Bidu Sayao, and the great Italian basso, Ezio Pinza, were happy selections for a joint concert, for their voices and their personalities were so well contrasted.

The audience liked them both tremendously, and recalled each of them practically an equal number of times.

Pinza opened the program with a classic group. His delivery of "Torelli's 'Tu lo sai,'" and Legrenzi's "Che fiero costume" showed to advantage the versatility of his art, and a finely delivered aria was the "Register Aria," from Mozart's "Don Giovanni."

Of Sayao's first group the two that were superlatively lovely were Mozart's "Alleluia" and the aria "Caro nome," from Verdi's "Rigoletto."

Before intermission and at the close of the program the two artists sang, first, the duet, "La ci darem la mano," from Mozart's "Don Giovanni," and at the end, the duet from the third act of Mozart's "The Marriage of Figaro," "Crudeli perche finora," and won ovations for each.

After intermission each artist

RAILS TO CROSS STEPPE

A railway line is now being laid across the Caspian steppe. It will link the northeastern coast of the Caspian Sea with the Orsk railway, thus providing for the Emba oil and Caspian fish the shortest outlet to the industrial centers of Soviet Russia.

Sings for Joyous Yule

Miss June Raines will sing in the city auditorium Wednesday night so that poor children may have a big Christmas. She is the vocalist for Harry Hearn's orchestra, furnishing the music for the "Big Brothers" annual charity ball.

ATLANTA, GA., DECEMBER 17, 1939.

Opportunity

One week from tomorrow is Christmas Day. Two weeks, and New Year.

For the next seven days opportunity, unrivaled, knocks at the doors of Atlanta. It is opportunity to assure, on the calendar of the coming year, at least one bright, personal recording. Opportunity to cut the diamond of the New Year so one facet, at least, will shine with luster that will not dim until the full roster of the 366—it is Leap Year—days has been called.

At this season of the year the hearts of sensitive men and women turn to charity, the giving out of personal surplus of goods and cash so that others who lack essentials of decent life may, for one day at least, find all their hungers filled.

There are many channels for the giving of Christmas charity, all of them fine, all inspired by that loveliest of all the stories of mankind, the story of the Nativity and of the Wise Men who came bearing gifts for the Christ Child. Our gifts at Christmas-time are symbolic of those ancient offerings of gold and frankincense and myrrh. What finer symbolism for Christian givers can there be than the gifts for poor and lacking ones. Did not the Christmas Child Himself say "inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me."

The opportunity that knocks today, and through the coming week is more, however, than charity. It is charity and faith and hope, united into one.

It includes that charity which is more blessed to give than to receive. It includes, too, new hope for the recipients and practical faith in human rehabilitation.

It is the Ten Opportunity campaign which is conducted this year, as for almost a score of years, by The Constitution. It presents, for the blessing of Atlanta, a list of worthy, but unfortunate families. Fathers stricken by accident or illness that impairs them as wage earners; mothers struggling under bitter handicap to raise their little families into useful citizenship; boys and girls who know, too often, what gripping hunger means and who face a future handicapped by undernourishment and lack of even chance, if someone does not bring aid.

Each of those families has a good chance to rehabilitate itself and to re-establish its home as an independent unit in the homes that make Atlanta, if its fragmentary income can be reinforced, for the next 12 months, by a few additional dollars given by fellow Atlantans who understand and who can extend the essential help. It may require, for one family, only $25 a month. Another may need $50. Whatever the need, it has been carefully analyzed and studied by trained workers. All is ready, in each case, to start the task of rebuilding broken lives, except the money that must come, in the form of cash or check or pledge for a year, from all of you who read and who can spare something. Your capacity for giving to this cause may be limited to a single dollar. It may be $10 or $100 or $1,000. Whatever the amount, it is needed. Your one dollar bill, united with others' gifts, can take care of one of these Opportunity families for the year. Or your check for $300 may be sufficient, alone, to meet a family's need.

It is, beyond argument, the most constructive form of Christmas giving. It provides not only a full dinner for Christmas Day, but it fills otherwise empty hearts with hope and opportunity for all the year to come.

God save ye, at this Christmas time. And may your gifts, like the frankincense and myrrh of the Wise Men, old, bring to human hearts in sore need, new faith, new hope and wisest charity.

Even if Russia were little, she would be wrong.

To pass the long evenings, miniature billiards are being played on London dinner tables. No voices are advised not to try the masse with a meat ball.

Those European place names become tougher, but not for us. We gave up trying years back, on learning that Christlania is pronounced Oslo.

And now, the great premiere of "Gone With the Wind," with all its attendant glamor and excitement and color, has passed into Atlanta history. It, too, like the events in the picture and the book whose story it tells, is but memory, a thing "gone with the wind."

Yet, in memories of the event there is a vitally important contribution to the future of the city, just as the memories of heroism that have come down through the generations since Sherman left the city in ashes have contributed so much to the city of today.

It is doubtful if anything has given so much to Atlanta as has this book by Margaret Mitchell and the picture it has inspired. For, beyond argument, the two days of "premiere" enthusiasm witnessed the greatest resurgence of that intangible asset so peculiar to this city it has been known, nation wide, as the "Atlanta spirit."

High dignitaries of the motion picture field, accustomed to first showings staged with all the adroitness of the most expert publicists, stared in wonder at the Atlanta event. They did not need to send their artists in ballyhoo for this occasion. The city simply rose up, en masse, took it out of their hands and made the occasion a spontaneous outpouring.

There was so much of Atlanta in it that it had to be this way. The Atlanta of today sat, Friday night, inside the theater and saw recreated before their eyes, the Atlanta of 75 years ago. They saw what is, without a doubt, the finest achievement of the screen art. They saw marvelous performances by a perfect cast and they saw a picture that was, more than any picture ever made, reality restored.

For the perfection of the occasion as a whole, there is not an individual in the city who is not due praise. The most famous stars of the modern screen came here and received all the public acclaim possible anywhere. Yet they escaped unscathed from the enthusiasm of the crowds. The city took them to its collective heart and they must, always, cherish the memory of the welcome extended here.

Mayor Hartsfield proved the perfect example of a southern host and, beside and behind him, were all the officials, city and state, as well as private individuals, who demonstrated that southern hospitality and southern courtesy is still more than a name.

Comment on the production, as a picture, is impossible. It takes rank as the greatest ever made. But for Atlanta to consider it as a picture only, is impossible. For it is, so emphatically, Atlanta herself. An Atlanta, true, that has passed forever into pages of history, but an Atlanta that furnished the ashes from which this modern metropolis sprang.

And it should provide the inspiration for an Atlanta of the future filled with new civic enthusiasm and mounting to ever greater and greater achievement.

Atlanta feels sincerest gratitude to all, from producer to humblest worker, who had part in making this picture.

Margaret Mitchell has done something, for her city, surpassed by none of the great citizens who came before.

British Tradition

Drake and Frohisher and Nelson must have smiled and lifted a toast in Valhalla as they watched the cannonading off the Rio de la Plata this week when English ships and English sailors cornered a terror of the seas and drove her speeding into a neutral haven to lick her wounds. It was in their best style that the battle was drawn and fought. Little ships, superior seamanship and deadly marksmanship. Steel nerve and daring against greater power, again victorious.

It long has been believed by navy men that only the five speedy battle cruisers of Britain and France could emerge victorious against the pocket battleships. Or that a cruiser squadron aided by an aircraft carrier's complement would be necessary. That three small and old ships accomplished the task is a tribute to the traditional English seamanship and marksmanship.

The Exeter played in the sea battle the same role that Nelson and the small squadron under his immediate command played at Trafalgar, drawing the fire of a mightier foe to design ultimate defeat by another unit. The cruiser, far outmatched, nevertheless forced the commander of the Graf Spee to concentrate his fire upon the lone vessel, while the Achilles and the Ajax, both smaller than the Exeter, poured their fire into the German cruiser.

The Graf Spee now is in Montevideo harbor, a refuge which probably will not be left for the duration of the war. Even if repairs are speedily completed, it is safe to assume the cruisers of the British South Atlantic squadron have been boiling up the Argentine coast for the River Platte, and not beyond reason that the French battleship Dunkerque, the British battle cruiser Renown and the aircraft carrier Ark Royal are within hailing distance. The Dunkerque and the Renown both can match the Graf Spee in speed and gunpower. The Ark Royal is the newest of Britain's carriers—one the Germans claim to have sunk. So that the chances are the German raider will choose internment rather than certain destruction. Then it will be one down and two to go. The Deutschland and the Scheer are still out.

A slow leak is detected in the McNutt boom since Ickes cast a hard eye in its direction. And yet our learned savants dismiss the death ray as a myth.

For the first time since the Civil War, a bullfight is held in old Madrid. They have been all this while coaxing the bull from under the grandstand.

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH MCGILL.

HAVING SEEN THE PICTURE—

But, it is gone. Beautiful in technicolor, the screen began to unroll:

"There was a land of cavaliers and cotton fields called the Old South . . .

"It was the last tableau of feudal days, the last ever to be seen of knights and their ladies fair, of master and slave . . .

"Look for it only in books, for it is no more than a dream remembered, a civilization gone with the wind."

But is it? The picture does not defy words. It is a tremendous, emotional picture.

When it was done Margaret Mitchell, standing before the premiere audience, said:

"I am sure most of you have a wet handkerchief, as I have . . . Most of them did."

If all of the old south is gone, why do they say of us that we are "different?"

Most of the tangible things of the old south are gone. That is true. The old civilization, as it existed on the plantations, is gone. Something remains.

It was not all slavery or plantations or banjo tunes or hoop skirts.

THE MYTH OF THE SOUTH

Just before seeing the picture I had read Josephus Daniels' very excellent book, "Tarheel Editor," a book all southerners should read. In it there is this paragraph:

"The myth that the south had only three types: luxurious slave owners, poor whites and negroes, had little foundation in fact. . . . In the whole south, out of a population in 1850 of 5,000,000, just 340,000 whites owned 3,800,000 slaves. Less than 300 planters in the whole south owned 200 negroes or more; 2,300 owned between 100 and 200; some 20,000 owned up to ten; 77,000 owned one slave each. . . ."

Only in the deep south, that is to say, the cotton states which really brought on the war, was there a deep gulf between the slave-holding and the non-slave-holding people.

North Carolina, Tennessee, Virginia, Arkansas and Kentucky are southern. The border states are not essentially different in the sense they do not possess the same tradition of the other southern states.

There is something left of that old south. It is a mistake to say it is gone with the wind. It is not to be defined. It is an intangible thing. It is not a matter of saying, "You all" or of slurring the letter "R." It is something in the convolutions of the brain; in the cells; in the blood; in the tissues.

It has not gone with the wind. Perhaps it is best it has not so gone. Perhaps it is best for the nation the south has retained more of the original qualities of America. Having escaped large foreign populations; having been treated by the government of the United States as a colonial possession; something remained.

It is not "Tobacco Roads" or convict camps or the K. K. K. It is something else—something vital. It is a strength. The south has something left from the old days.

Who can say what it is?

THE PICTURE

By all means see the picture. It is, I think, one of Hollywood's best jobs. They followed the book. Indeed, they did a better job than that. They gave emphasis to the features of the book.

Rhett Butler does not just go away. He says, "My dear, I do not give a damn what you do." And walks away.

There is no sugar in the picture. Vivien Leigh steals the picture. She is Scarlett. Clark Gable is Rhett Butler. Vivien Leigh was, or is, Scarlett. She does the greatest job of interpreting a part that has ever been done on the screen.

This English girl, whom a few stupid persons said should not have been selected for the part, plays it as no one else could have played it.

Margaret Mitchell said, after the picture, that Selznick had picked the perfect cast. He shook hands with her, gratefully. He did. It was perfect.

The great jobs in my opinion, were by Vivien Leigh, by Olivia de Havilland and by two negro women, Hattie McDaniel, as "Mammy" and by the girl who played "Prissy." Gable was, of course, superb. He is a very great actor. He was an actor in this picture. The four named were so much the characters they were more than actors.

I saw Bobby Jones, the greatest golfer of all time, after the picture.

"I am worn out," he said. "Nothing has ever taken so much out of me as that picture."

It does that.

It is worth your money. Do not wait until it comes to your neighborhood theater. That is a year away.

See it. Weep over it, as you will. And then come away and think—

Has all of the old south "Gone With the Wind?" It has not. And this picture comes opportunely. It will prevent any possibility of it's so going.

The Female

Of the Species.

This morning let us take off the inhibitions imposed by remnants of gallantry which may remain and pass a few scathing remarks about the female of the species. Kipling, you recall, asserted she is "more deadly than the male." Experiences last Thursday, when Clark Gable, Carole Lombard, Vivien Leigh and all the other stars of "Gone With the Wind," paraded through Atlanta, indicated strongly that the female is also more impolite, inconsiderate and cruel than the male.

As an inconspicuous onlooker, more interested in the actions of the crowd than in sight of the stars themselves, innumerable little incidents were noticed in which it was, time and again, some woman who shed all regard for the safety, comfort, or rights of others.

When the crowd did endeavor to help others, it was, nine times out of ten, a man who sought to assist.

But the climax came in the crowd at the Georgian Terrace, when the stars were being introduced from that open-air platform. A group of girls, apparently in their twenties, behaved so badly it would be inconceivable, if you hadn't seen it, yourself. And the saddest part of it is that, by their appearance and dress, you'd take them to be ladies, if you met them under normal circumstances.

It was near the windows of the florist establishment, at the corner of Peachtree and Ponce de Leon. Just a few feet west of Peachtree, around the corner.

Solid Humanity.

The crowd was so dense it was a solid mass of humanity. The plate glass windows of the store actually bulged inward, under the pressure but by some grace of fate, did not break. There wasn't an inch of space between individuals, the only variation being in the degree of pressure from those around you.

Several women collapsed and some were on the verge of fainting. There were a number of children, in the crowd, and they were in really serious danger of being crushed.

Suddenly, from the rear, this group of girls came fighting and tearing and forcing their way into the mass of humanity. The leader, a blonde, had a fixed grin on her face, almost maniacal in expression.

Women were hurt by her drive and a little boy who was in her path was so ruthlessly crushed aside he began to cry. The whole crowd at that point was filled with, and expressed, indignation, but it had no more effect on the brazen creature than if they had been inanimate objects in her path.

She ploughed so far, of course, and no farther. For the pressure, 31

A SOUTHERN REVIVAL.

We have been having a revival in Atlanta this week—a revival of the Old South. Of course, Margaret Mitchell is responsible for this elaborate parade of the past.

In 1927, says Mr. Justice Roberts' decision, "the respondent put into effect a plan of employee representation known as Representation of Employees." The preamble of the plan stated that its purpose was to give employees a voice in respect of the conditions of their labor and to provide a procedure for the prevention and adjustment of future differences.

The plan was revised in 1929, 1931, 1934, 1936 and 1937, but there is no evidence that it did not work well. Justice Roberts says:

"Elections were arranged for by the management representatives but, in so far as possible, were conducted by the employees themselves."

"A procedure was established for the adjustment of individual employee grievances, whereby, in event of failure of settlement, notice was to be given to the president of the company."

TO CONFORM WITH ACT

In 1937, certain changes in the plan were made to conform with the National Labor Relations Act. Justice Roberts further comments:

"It is uncontradicted that labor disputes have repeatedly been settled under the plan; that since 1937 no labor dispute has caused cessation of activities at the respondent's plant; that overwhelming majorities of the election of representatives, whereby the election of representatives, that the company has never objected to its employees joining labor unions; that no discrimination has been practiced against them because of their membership in labor unions; and that neither officials, nor superior employees not eligible to vote in the election of employees' representatives, have interfered, or attempted to interfere, or use any influence, in connection with the election of representatives."

"After the board's decision and order had been promulgated a referendum was held at which a sweeping majority of the company's employees signified by secret ballot, their satisfaction with the plan as revised in 1937 and their desire for its continuance."

Again he says:

"Prior to the adoption of the Wagner act the plan did not run counter to any federal law, either in conception or administration. The respondent, however, concedes that sundry features of the plan, as then formulated, conflict with the provisions of the statute."

"Both employer and employees so recognized when they undertook the revision of 1937 for the purpose of bringing the plan within the spirit and the letter of the act."

The court noted:

"The court below agreed with the respondent that, as the committee had operated to the apparent satisfaction of the employees, as serious labor disputes had not occurred during its existence; and as the matter at an election held under the auspices of the committee had signified their desire for its continuance, it would be a proper medium and one which the employer might continue to recognize for the adjustment of labor disputes."

Nevertheless, the supreme court held:

"In applying the statutory test of independence it is immaterial that the plan had in fact not engendered, or indeed had obviated, serious labor disputes in the past, or that any company interference with similar administration of the plan had been incidental rather than fundamental and with good motives. It was for congress to determine whether, as a matter of policy, such a plan should be permitted to continue in force. We think the statute plainly evinces a contrary purpose and that the board's conclusions are in accordance with that purpose."

UP TO CONGRESS

In other words, congress passed a lousy law. The supreme court is not a legislative body. The labor board may be badly administered; but that is the business of the President and congress, and not of the supreme court. This decision throws down a similar case which are before the court or may arise out of lopsided labor board decisions right into the lap of congress, where it belongs. They passed the bill. Let them change it.

Of course, the workers who supported the plan at an annual election have nothing to say. They're pawns. The labor board switches workers out of company's unions, independent unions, AFL unions into John L. Lewis' CIO at will, and the law stands firmly behind their whimsical decisions. If the workers don't want to pay the CIO treasury for the right to work, let them go on relief. Apparently, that's the law, too.

Next to the worker as an individual, the real sufferer in this situation is the American Federation of Labor. When it deserted the traditional policy of Sam Gompers and went into politics, it allowed its powerful voice of protest to be softened into a mere affirmation of the trickery of the politician. And what is the result? The National Labor Relations Board has been acting as the legalized arm of its competitor, the CIO, while through Thurman Arnold, part of the government itself is setting out on a juridical campaign to smash some of the most powerful AFL unions, those in the building trades.

Some businessmen may enjoy the spectacle of some labor unions getting a dose of the foul medicine which the administration has shoveled out to American business. These businessmen may

LABOR ENSLAVED

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

The facts concerning the National Labor Relations Board vs. Newport News Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Company, as appearing in the decision of the supreme court of the United States on December 4, 1939, is of tremendous importance.

"In 1927," says Mr. Justice Roberts' decision, "the respondent put into effect a plan of employee representation known as Representation of Employees." The preamble of the plan stated that its purpose was to give employees a voice in respect of the conditions of their labor and to provide a procedure for the prevention and adjustment of future differences.

PURPOSE CLEAR

But there can be no joy in Thurman Arnold's persistent efforts to smash organized life in America. First, he went after business groups; then he went after advertisers; then he went after the American Medical Association; now, he is going after the building trade unions of the American Federation of Labor. It is clear that his purpose is to increase the administrative authority of the government of the United States and to weaken those organizations of Americans which express group opinion and group life.

When we add Thurman Arnold's activities to those of the National Labor Relations Board, the future picture becomes clear: one labor organization, government controlled, to which all workers must belong, and no organizations of Americans independent of the government—because they may be punished under the Sherman anti-trust law.

In the milk case, the supreme court held, in a decision written by Chief Justice Hughes, that laws passed by congress did not give the producers and distributors of agricultural products immunity from the Sherman anti-trust act, because the subsequent acts did not specifically so state. But the NRA, the AAA, the Department of Agriculture all encouraged price-fixing and operating agreements and businessmen acted accordingly. Now, along comes Thurman Arnold and tells them that in the administration of the act, they acted badly—and the supreme court upholds him. All that a businessman can ask is the perennial question: Who's looney now?

ON THE RECORD

By DOROTHY THOMPSON

Neutrality is not the absence of a policy. It is neither withdrawal from the world nor indifference to what goes on in the world. It is not the abrogation of rights. Its purpose is not to tie a nation's hands and make it impotent during foreign wars and until the wars are over.

And it is, like every other national policy, one which needs to be supported and defended.

A nation adopts a policy of neutrality for exactly the same reasons that it adopts a policy of war: namely, for the preservation of its territory, institutions, interests and ideals.

Neutrality does not assure any nation of peace. The best example of this fact is Finland. Finland was neutral, in the fullest sense of the word. It was more neutral than Czechoslovakia, or Poland. These countries had military alliances with other and greater powers and were not, therefore, wholly independent. It was more neutral than Rumania, or Italy, or Turkey, for the same reason. It had commitments from no one and commitments to no one. It strove to maintain peace and friendly relations with all of its neighbors. It declared no war, and it is still neutral in the war between major powers.

Nevertheless it is fighting for its life.

For it has been invaded by another nation making the monstrous assertion that it is not at war with Finland but is only "protecting" its government (set up in Moscow) to "liberate" the oppressed Finns.

For DEFENSE OF NEUTRALITY

When, therefore, Finland appeals for aid, not to one party or the other of the belligerents in the war, but to the entire world, she is appealing for the defense of her neutrality; she is appealing for the right to remain at peace; she is appealing for the right to have her territory turned into a battleground and her ports and fields turned into naval and air bases for warring powers.

A neutral policy is designed to limit the areas of war and to maintain and defend, in those non-belligerent areas, the greatest possible degree of normal, peaceful activities.

At one time the people of the United States claimed the oceans of the world for the right of non-warring nations, under the policy, "Freedom of the Seas in Peace as in War." We have retreated from that position because in the past we have failed to defend this concept of neutrality against violation, and with blood. Now we have gone so far in the other direction as to assert that the high seas belong exclusively to belligerents in any zone where they may be fighting, and we, as peaceful traders, must remove our ships from that zone. History will reveal whether, thereby, we have made in the long run a contribution to neutrality and peace.

But this much would seem certain: If neutrality turns out to be an invitation to aggression, a self-imposed blockade, a position of impotence, a relinquishment of rights, a registration of panic and general paralysis, there will finally be no neutral nations.

For the weak ones will be drawn into war by assault, and even those that are now strong will eventually fall prey to the combination of economic strangulation and, finally, intolerable provocation, which are the political weapons of the modern war-makers.

STANDARD BEARER OF RIGHT TO PEACE

The United States is the only strong neutral nation on earth today. Its power, position and prestige make it the standard bearer of the right to peace, of the right to neutrality, of the right to life in the world at large.

This position gives us the opportunity either to let civilization go by default and intrust our future to the victors of this war, or play the greatest role in the world in checking the war and leading this earth again to peace.

This is as much our critical moment in history as it is the critical moment of the belligerents. How we act will determine whether, in the future, we shall enjoy the respect of ourselves and of others, or whether we shall take a back seat in history.

We are the strongest neutral nation, but we are not alone. With us are others who are not alone. With us are others who are not alone. With us are others who are not alone.

EUROPEAN NEUTRALITY

The still neutral nations of Europe represent as high a standard of living, material and cultural, as any on earth. They represent as high a stage of political and social advancement as any on earth.

Holland, and the Dutch Empire, which has consistently maintained the open door to all traders; Sweden, whose social organization puts our own to shame; Denmark, whose agricultural economy, popular education and serene culture are a way in advance of most nations; Norway, poor but free, a nation, who has deserted alliances for independence and assumed the duty not to provoke; Switzerland, the oldest political democracy in Europe and the only country that has solved the nationality problem—these, and all the nations of South America, look to us to help them stay at peace.

I think that without any alliances with any one, we should demonstrate our solidarity with these nations—demonstrate it; not say it.

The trade and therefore, the prosperity of all these nations has been, and will be seriously injured by the blockades and counter blockades of the belligerents.

The weaker they become, in an economic and military way, the more likely they are to have their neutrality violated. The more likely they are, also, to fall a victim to disintegrating forces working upon them from within.

Therefore we should aid them and in a grandiose way, economically, financially and in the fortification of their defenses.

It is in our own interests to do so. We have most of the world's gold buried in Kentucky, and if all the rest of the world is forced, through poverty and the prodigious drain of war, to revert to primitive barter, and we are simply stuck with our gold, we may as well leave it there for ever, dig it up to make bangles for the unemployed as cheap as tin.

Its economic usefulness depends upon its being used as a medium for the international exchange of goods. To lend it to the belligerents will, we think, involve us on one side or another in the war. But we should lend it—and under most favorable terms—to the neutrals, right now.

FREE SEAS FOR NEUTRAL TRADE

If we want to make neutrality popular, attractive and safer, we should make especially favorable and preferential trade and tariff agreements with the neutrals.

We should develop our markets with them and theirs with us, developing here, and collaborating to develop in South America, increased room for our products, increased national economies, and increased markets for our own exports. The aim of strengthening all truly neutral nations, rather than the usual conventions and traditions of trade, should be kept in mind.

And, with our great power, to free the seas, even in war zones, and even to the extent of conveying our ships for strictly neutral trade.

This would mean pledges among the neutrals that products among the neutrals should be wholly for home consumption, or for re-shipment to neutrals, and would not find their way to belligerents. This does not mean to Finland. Finland is not a belligerent, but a violated neutral.

We should also make it clear that if any neutral is attacked—defining as neutral not nations with alliances, but precisely those nations who, like ourselves, have avoided alliances—the United States will continue to regard it as a nonbelligerent and will support it in its defense. This is not a political, moral, economic, industrial and financial strength of the United States. There will be no application of the cash-and-carry clause and no refusal of credits, because we shall be assisting in the defense of neutrality. And such a bloc would be in maintaining the prestige of neutrality.

Thus we would begin, without entangling alliances, to strengthen a block of independent nations on four continents, committed to nothing except the right to live at peace and to pursue the most normal conditions, maintaining together the standard of civilization in this appalling world.

Such a bloc would be a continual peace demonstration and would exercise an enormous attraction for the world. And such a bloc would wield very great political influence—immediately, and even more in the future.

Georgia.

I wonder if the sky is blue
In Georgia land today,
I wonder if the daisies sing
Because they're feeling gay.
I wonder if the cotton fields
Are blooming—rose and white—
I wonder if the old house gleams
In Georgia's golden light.

I wonder if the sun shines bright
On the smiling faces of the folk,
If life goes on serenely and sweet,
Without much strife or care.
I wonder if the neighbors still Dare to go to say "hello" and
And linger on the great, wide porch,
Where fragrant breezes blow.

There is no fairer place on earth
Than down south in Georgia land—
Land of peace and rest.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. — Men who are finicky about their "Greatest Job In the World"

By DAVID J. WILKIE.

DETROIT, Dec. 16. — (AP) — Around the offices of Chrysler Corporation they sometimes call him "the servant in the house," the man who knows more about the personal affairs of 70,000 families than any other individual.

He is 61-year-old Charles T. Winegar, officially "personal director" of the corporation, but actually counselor to the husbands and wives and children who make up the families of the people who work in the office and factory of the numerous units of the big motorcar corporation.

Winegar, one time lawyer, who abandoned the legal profession for the important business—"the greatest business in the world," he calls it—of ministering to human beings and human needs, has an office in the old Dodge plant in suburban Hamtramck.

For the past week the office desks and tables have been piled high with children's dresses, dolls, small toy cars and the like. Tomorrow these and additional thousands of similar pieces designed to revive the faith of small children in Santa Claus will be assembled in the Chrysler Jefferson avenue display room to be distributed among the families of Chrysler workers in this area.

CHRISTMAS GIFTS BY THOUSANDS

There will be 3,000 Christmas stockings loaded with gifts amounting to 2,000 dolls, supplied by the corporation and dressed by woman employees and wives of workers; there will be hundreds of the small carts, each containing two gifts suitable for small boys, and the home-made dresses intended for youngsters up to 14 years of age.

The older boys have not been forgotten, either, for there has been the privilege of fashioning the carts out of materials and with tools furnished by the corporation. These youngsters, between 12 and 15 years old, sons of employees, are members of the Boys Craft Club, part of what Winegar and his associates in the sociological work like to call the "tomorrow department."

To Winegar, tall, slender and soft spoken, there is something considerably more important than just the assembling and distributing of Christmas gifts in this annual undertaking.

It is but a "seasonal" manifestation of work he carries on throughout the year.

"PROBLEM OF HUMAN NEEDS"

Winegar doesn't like to talk about himself or about his achievements, but you don't have to talk with him more than five minutes to realize he is intensely interested in his job of promoting the welfare of his fellow human beings.

"This problem of human needs," he explains, "will be with us indefinitely. The hope and the conviction we have is that out of the minds and hearts of those we serve, might we not expect to believe a better and finer attitude toward the business and civic and spiritual life of the nation will come."

Administering the sociological work of a corporation with 70,000 workers is no small job, but to Winegar it is a lifetime vocation, that he discovered as he was nearing middle age.

"It may take you the greater part of your life to find the thing you're interested in as a lifetime career," he said, "but ultimately you will find it. I found it after 38 years of groping—the problem of human needs."

CARED LITTLE FOR THE LAW

Winegar is a native of Escanaba, Mich. He was graduated in law from the University of Michigan in 1904, but makes no secret of the fact he cared little for the profession. "I was of what you might call the 'curbstone' variety," he explains.

Winegar joined the Dodge Brothers corporation, later the key unit of the vast Chrysler interests, in 1915.

"My law training came in handy occasionally," he says, "when some of the folks around the offices needed legal papers drafted, but my interest was in the future of the individuals who worked in our offices and factories. The results of our labors in that direction have been very real and justified in the expense and effort that have been devoted to the work."

Winegar's post as "personal director" has nothing to do with employment in the various Chrysler plants. That function is handled by an entirely unrelated department.

CALLS IT "PRIVILEGE"

His responsibility—or as he terms it, his "privilege"—is the administering of all welfare and sociological work connected with Chrysler activities. He is also head of the Chrysler Industrial Association, which fosters recreational and cultural activities, looks after the employees' life and health insurance and, in general, helps individuals and families in emergencies.

A group of nurses, operating under his direction, make periodic calls on the families of all the workers.

"We know the family condition of practically every employee," Winegar explains. "Not infrequently a Chrysler worker who is 'not doing so well at home' will come into my office with a grievance—real or imaginary. Usually, I refuse to talk with him until he brings his wife along. Then we talk things over and usually they go home much happier."

"AMBITION OF A BOY"

Winegar believes, with his associates, that "the ambition of a boy is to be a man and to do the things that men do," and almost all of his efforts among the young sons of Chrysler workers, spring from that philosophy.

"To enable the boys to realize this ambition," he says, "we have the 'crafts groups' which represent an experiment in bringing together boys, men, machines and tools

A Country School Principal Says:

By H. H. LUMPKIN,
Principal Mauk Junior High School, Mauk, Ga.

With the impending problem of whether Georgia teachers are going to eat after January 1, it is rather difficult to keep in the foreground an appalling situation which should be Public Unemployed Problem No. 1 in the country schools of our state. These thoughts to follow will be nothing new to teachers and school men who have talked, discussed and studied them for several years. But to the laymen of Georgia I hope they come as an eye opener to a weighty need.

It is, indeed, pathetic the amazingly large number of boys and girls who drop out of school in the rural sections between the first and ninth grades (ages 6-15), and the inadequate preparation the school has given them for living a life. Bryan found that in the state of Georgia (city and county) nearly one-half (49%) of those pupils who enroll in the first grade finish the fifth. This decrease is gradual as another survey shows that only 63% entering the seventh grade go to the ninth. In our junior high school here at Mauk, (1st-9th grades) we have in the first grade this year 17 pupils—in the ninth there was only one, who was a transfer, so we just sent him on to the county high school. Taking this as an average there have been 16 out of 17 pupils, or 94%, who have fallen by the wayside.

Our eighth grade does better. Out of 20 who started in the first grade we now have 9 in the eighth, which means that 55% have stopped school between the ages of 6 and 14. As far back as I have been able to trace there have been only 3 Mauk pupils who have gone to college. (Mauk school is no exception but is used as an average example.) This brings up several questions. Why is the mortality rate so high? What tools have the schools given these 94 out of 100 boys and girls to fight the battles of life? Which is more important—the one who goes on or the 16 who drop out? To the boys and girls who get the advantage of only a few years in school how may the schools use this short time to the best advantage in training them for a satisfactory community life? What barriers stand in the way of a practical education today?

There are many reasons why so many rural elementary pupils stop school. Without comment here are a few:

1. An inadequate curriculum designed for entrance to college.

2. Grading system which gives slower pupils an inferiority complex.

3. Promotion system causing a slow pupil to stay in the grade with younger boys and girls.

4. School attendance law is not enforced.

5. Indifference of parents toward education.

6. Lack of methods of earning an adequate living by parents, forcing children to become breadwinners.

7. Lack of a closer relationship between home and school.

DOMINATED BY TRADITION.

For so many years our schools have been dominated by tradition and college entrance requirements. The teacher training institutions of today are doing a fine job of training teachers out of the traditional method of teaching, but the fault lies in the fact that very little has been done to sell the idea to the public. Since the public, after all, are our bosses the schools must still have every day 30 minutes for reading, 30 minutes for "riting," and 30 minutes for "rithmetic. Any variation from that will bring the complaints pouring into the principal's office. The 94 per cent of our ninth grade has gone out into the world with no idea of earning a living, being a good citizen, cooking, nourishing foods, making the home attractive, or progressive community planning.

All they have is just a smattering of words, figures and signs. All right, what can we do in our country junior high schools?

First and foremost, the country schools must shift their emphasis from the so-called "cultural" or ornamental type of education to practical education. Agriculture is the chief occupation of the people in the rural communities. The chief aim of our school, then, should be to improve agricultural life, for practically all of the adolescents who quit school fall back on the farms as farmers or housewives.

In 1935-36 only 600 of Georgia's 6,149 schools taught agriculture.

Letting boy nature work to its own ends.

Besides supplying wood, metal, leather and other materials, Winegar's department has established a "Library of Tools" from which the youthful workers can draw what they need just as they get books from the public library.

Many of these tools, such as lathes and jigsaws are power driven. All are exactly suited to the job to be done in order that the boys may have the satisfaction of working with "grown up" equipment.

WORKSHOP AT HOME

"We give the boy a workshop in his own home, by loaning him these tools," Winegar points out. "It takes the boy off the street; it brings him closer to his father and we find that by bringing him close to an expert craftsman, we are giving him the desire to accomplish things—to do things with his hands. Incidentally, we never have lost a single hammer, screw driver or chisel through this program."

What Winegar's associates think of him is perhaps best illustrated by the inscription on the fly leaf of a book on his desk.

"To an understanding friend and wise counselor," it reads, "with a thought that keeps recurring—"

"... that best portion of a good man's life—his little nameless unremembered acts of kindness and love."

There are 16,000 boys of Chrysler families eligible for the "tomorrow department."

"To co-operate with them," says Winegar, "is the biggest business in the world."

ture and these only offered it in high school. To show how much a course is needed in this community as in all others in Georgia, Hartman and Wooten found and stated in "Georgia Land Use Problems" that two-thirds of the land area of Georgia is unsuited to the production of cultivated crops. In our particular community there is only a narrow strip (about one mile wide) that is suited to the growing of crops. This one mile, as reported by one farmer, will produce about 3-4 of a bale of cotton to the acre; yet get out of this area and except for small patches it will take more than five acres to produce a bale.

Between Mauk and Butler, a distance of 12 miles, there are three houses—the rest is sand and scrub oaks. Erosion has been so prevalent that just across the railroad there are several gullies our school house could be dropped in and hid, and so deep that a drunk fell in one a few years ago, breaking his neck. Too, here, as in other sections of Georgia, old King Cotton is the one money crop that we traditionally hang onto as the only savior. And with competition from foreign countries, tariffs, substitutes for cotton, and more suitable sections of the United States for growing cotton the school needs agriculture in the grades to teach diversification. We do have plenty of sand and clay. If the schools of the state could inspire another Carver to find and develop uses for these then we would have served a useful purpose and found a vocation. Agriculture should employ every man in this school community, yet a second ranking profession among our patrons is WPA. The number employed is astounding.

TRAINING OF GIRLS

Homemaking is the occupation all our girls expect to follow some day. What kind of homemakers will our girls make with such a limited education? (And even if this is not Kentucky, I have had two school girls in the past year to school to marry at the age of 13.) Surely the girl should be taught to keep an attractive house, plan and cook nourishing meals, care for the family welfare, and patch the husbands' overalls.

Science should be taught to the extent of a meaningful understanding of natural science to better work with the laws of nature, and to appreciate the beautiful in our environment.

Sufficient reading for the pupil to want to read for the purpose of keeping up with general affairs in the state, nation, world, and for entertainment.

Enough English to be able to express themselves well, especially in oral form.

Arithmetic—To know enough to be able to improve and keep in repair the things about the home.

Health—Good personal health, clean homes, first aid, community health.

Industrial Arts—Skill in intelligent and practical use of the hands so as to improve and keep in repair the things about the home.

Leisure Time—To learn to enjoy spare time through other methods than having to spend money, pitching a drunk or playing poker.

Music—An appreciation of rural music, music that they can enjoy, and songs that they can take part in.

BARRIERS TO EDUCATION

Now, what barriers stand in the way of practical education today? Here are listed a few. You, dear readers, are the ones to remove them. We, as teachers, are helpless.

1. No matter what may be said about teachers being in politics it is simply a fact that teachers' jobs are political jobs. The people and local trustees hold our destiny. What they want we have to give or get out, no matter how little or how much they know about school situations. (I have some interesting facts to write on this next time.)

2. Lack of funds in country schools. Here at Mauk, as in most rural schools, we do not have one dime to set aside for maps, globes, art material, manual arts equipment, lectures, books, trips, camp improvement, etc.

3. Teachers' salaries are so tied up in politics that much of the teacher's salary and thought which should go to solving problems must go to worrying about the grocery bill, the rent, clothes, how much longer school is going to remain open, etc.

4. Lack of knowledge of parents about educational methods.

5. Short school terms in country schools.

6. Low salaries fail to attract the best talent to enter the teaching profession.

Education in Georgia must face the issue: 60 to 94 per cent of the future men and women in our state must be neglected. What shall we do? The teaching profession is ready to go. We are waiting on the laymen.

Senator Has Plan For Highway Board

Editor Constitution: To my fellow members of the general assembly: I call for support in an effort to end such deplorable conditions now existing in state affairs as affect the Highway Department.

My idea is that this condition can be permanently ended only through the election of the highway board by the people of Georgia and making this board amenable only to the people.

The state could be cut into three districts with one member eligible from each district and a provision could be made that a member could not succeed himself or to any state office for a period of four years. Result, the highway department's exit from politics and also from its domination of the state or the Governor's domination of it.

As I Was Saying

By DANIEL WHITEHEAD HICKY.

MEMORY OF MOROCCO

There was no shade in all that stretch of land,
In all that burning stretch of land no shade,
Save where a culture circled over the sand
Or camels in a panting cavalcade.
Rested where no tree grew, nor twig, nor leaf,
Then with the falling darkness journeyed on Followed by dogs that whined their torrid grief,
Sniffing across the wastes for carrion.
So might the heart beneath the sun of Time
Lie barren through the years and cry aloud
For the green tree of Love to root and climb
Above it, spreading branches like a cloud,
Unheeded, watch with stony failing breath
Above it there, the cooling wind of death.

The other day, passing a florist's window, pausing to watch him unpack and arrange a shipment of orange blossoms air-mailed up from Florida, my thoughts flew back, strangely enough, to Casa Blanca, in French Morocco, where I purchased the last bunch of the blossoms that I can remember.

It is an active little seaport, comprising something like 300,000 inhabitants, and naturally when a large ship slides into port many Arabs come down from the near-by hills and outlying desert spaces, swarming about the city like flies, their dark eyes shining, their mouths gaping in astonishment at visitors from the new world.

True, for a while one is surprised to come upon an occasional very modern (French or English) shop—the latest creations in the way of gowns from Paris; the newest in men's clothing imported from Bond street; the finest of perfumery shops. But, strolling over into the older portions of the ancient city one is completely lost from the outside world.

Here, as in Algiers, is the ancient Kasbah, or bazaar, filthy and smelly, but glamorous in its own peculiar way. Down the narrow zig-zagging streets one sees a family of Arabs driving a pair of oxen; swung across each back, or dangling at their sides, a dried carcass of goatskin filled with water, for it is very scarce back in the sandy wastes that are their home.

BLIND MAN BEGS BAKSHISESH.

A blind man cries monotonously from his dirty, ragged garments, his hand outstretched for bakshesh—anything one will toss his way. His child, or a friend, sadly strums a weird strident instrument to make the scene even more pitiful.

From shop to shop as one passes the brightly colored offerings, wide-eyed Arab girls and swarthy-skinned young men peer from the doorways, beckoning potential customers within their dimly lighted aisles. The odor of baking bread, of steaming raisins, of citron, permeates the air; the aroma of boiling sheep flesh, of stewing chickens, or Arab delicacies one invariably passes up, despite their tempting appearances.

Here and there are jewel shops, glittering tapestries and hand-woven rugs for sale; coral and blue leather goods elaborately hand-embossed; knives and scimitars the sellers will swear to you were only that morning wrested from treacherous desert tribes, some still with the blood of recent conflict fresh upon them.

THE ARAB STORY TELLER

Small, intricately carved ivory cigarette boxes are laid before one's eager eyes, silver wares inlaid with turquoise and garnets; delicate fans and powder boxes; leopard skins and honey-colored beads.

But on one particular square of the Kasbah one comes upon a herd of Arabs, pressed together as closely as a flock of wind-driven sheep. Their eyes are intent, their ears bent forward, listening, shutting out the noise and turmoil around them, their nostrils oblivious to the nauseating odors of the streets, the swarming populace. They are bent toward the story teller—an old Arab, his face wrinkled with perhaps a century of strife and wandering, his gnarled fingers ex-

4th Corps Officers Are Hosts at Dance Honoring Miss Jones

Officers of the Fourth Corps Area, United States Army, and their wives, were hosts at an elaborate dance given last evening at the Officers' Club at Fort McPherson in compliment to Miss Betty Fitch Jones, lovely debutante daughter of Colonel and Mrs. Clifford R. Jones.

One hundred and twenty guests assembled for the dance in the club ballroom which was beautifully decorated with quantities of all flowers arranged against a background of tall palms and ferns. Receiving the guests with the debutante were Lieutenant General Stanley D. Embick, commanding general of the Fourth Corps Area, and Mrs. Embick, Brigadier General Robert O. Van Horn, president of the club, and Mrs. Van Horn, and Lieutenant Colonel Clifford R. Jones and Mrs. Jones.

Arrangements for the dance were in charge of Colonel Chester R. Haag, club entertainment director. The post orchestra furnished music for dancing. Punch was served from huge silver bowls surrounded by poinsettias and white chrysanthemums.

Miss Jones chose for the occasion a beautiful gown of pale pink satin, designed with a hand-tucked bodice. A cluster of purple orchids graced her shoulder.

Among the guests were the members of the 1939-40 Debutante Club and their escorts.

Miss Arden Honored At Buffet Luncheon

Miss Elizabeth Arden, charming New York visitor who was entertained extensively during the "Gone With the Wind" festivities, was central figure at a luncheon given yesterday by her hosts, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Rothenstein. The party was held at the Regenstein home on Springdale road, and assembled a group of friends of the honor guest, including the society editors and feature writers of the three Atlanta newspapers.

Luncheon was served buffet style from a beautifully appointed table in the dining room, which was covered with a crimson satin cloth and centered with an arrangement of white roses and white snapdragons. The appointments were in silver, conchabola holding tall white tapers.

The reception room of the Regenstein home was beautified for the occasion with Christmas greens and poinsettias.

Miss Mary Edna Spell To Wed Mr. Newton.

MILLEN, Ga., Dec. 16.—An announcement of unusual interest is made today by Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Henry Spell, of Swainsboro, of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Mary Edna Spell, of Millen and Swainsboro, to Albert Sidney Newton, of Millen. The marriage will be solemnized at an early date.

The bride-elect was graduated from the Swainsboro High school and since completing a commercial course she has been affiliated with the Georgia Power Company. For the past several months she has been in the Millen office of the company.

Mr. Newton is the only son of John Cleveland Newton and the late Mrs. Ruby Aycock Newton, of Millen. He was graduated from the Millen High school and received a bachelor of science degree from the University of Georgia in 1931 and was a member of Pi Kappa Phi fraternity.

He has farming interests in Jenkins county, where he and his bride will reside after their marriage.

Members of 'Adopt an Orphan for Christmas' Club Go Shopping With Their Guests

At the left, Mrs. Gene Smith, organizer and leader of the "Adopt an Orphan for Christmas" Club, takes the two little girls, Gladys Greer and Marie Williams, who will be her guests for Christmas, to town on a shopping tour. Here they are consulting with Santa Claus in one of the city's leading department stores as to what he shall bring Marie and Gladys on Christmas morning. At the right, Mrs. Wayne Gatlin, another enthusiastic member of the club, goes shopping for toys with small Melvin Poplin and Dorothy Williams, who will be her guests for Christmas. All four children make their home at Hillside Cottages and would have no special Christmas pleasures except for these charity-minded young women. Mrs. Smith has planned a grand Christmas party for all the children who will be adopted by club members. The party will be held from 11 to 1 o'clock next Friday morning at the Druid Hills Golf Club, and there will be a huge Christmas tree with presents for everybody and refreshments served. Mrs. Smith will be assisted in entertaining by her mother, Mrs. E. L. Roberts; Mrs. Wayne Gatlin, Mrs. Lawrence Holsinger and Mrs. Guy Tarrace.

Plaster, president, presiding. The "harmonica band" of Lena Cox school gave a program of Christmas music. Mrs. Robert Rankin, chairman of public welfare, presented Knox Walker, who urged that all eligible citizens pay poll taxes and register this year, and that the P.-T. A. make an issue of the problems we are faced with in this state which are vital to the health, education and general welfare of all children in Georgia.

Ira Dodd, chairman of juvenile protection, said, "Crime among juveniles has come as a direct result of being truant from school." "The Fulton county council should investigate the flimsy compulsory attendance law. Seventy-five per cent of the children at the industrial farm are there for stealing."

Mr. Dodd introduced Mrs. Forrest Coons, one of the teachers at the industrial and vocational farm near Hapeville. Mrs. Coons invited the public to visit the school and gave a day's program for a boy in this school, whose ages range from 8 to 17 years of age.

Miss Virginia McJenkins, library service, stressed that committees be appointed in each school for summer reading clubs, and that each child belong to a branch of the public library nearest to them. Lakewood school had the largest attendance.

Formwalt.

A Christmas musical program was presented at the Formwalt P.-T. A. meeting.

The Atlanta civic orchestra rendered a musical program. The Harmonica Club presented a program and the mothers' chorus sang. The school chorus sang, and a play, "The Spirit of Christmas," was given by Miss Blossom Tucker's class.

Mrs. Grace White's class presented an acrostic showing the meaning of Christmas.

The announcements were that Mrs. A. Crocker's study class would not meet on Thursday and that the mothers' chorus would meet Wednesday, with Mrs. Dan meet after Christmas.

Spring Street P.-T. A. To Sponsor Christmas Play on Monday Evening

The children of Spring Street school, sponsored by the P.-T. A., will present a Christmas play, with music furnished by their orchestra and chorus, Monday at 7:30 o'clock.

The program consists of: "Little Piggy-Wigg," pizzicato from the Sylvia Ballet, by the high-low kindergarten; rhythm band, "Parade of the Wooden Soldiers," "Santa Claus Is Coming to Town," by the high-low second grade; Christmas dances of foreign lands; by the high-low second grade; "A Visit to Icy Cape," a play by the high-low second grade; "Cross Patch Fairies," an opera by the high-low third grade.

Bass P.-T. A. "The Nativity" will be presented in the Bass auditorium Monday at 7:30 o'clock for the parents of Bass students and friends of the school. The cast of 60 will be assisted by both the glee clubs and chorus of 200 voices, directed by Mrs. Jane Butterfield.

The orchestra of 50 pieces, under the direction of Arlie Richardson, will open the program with a melody of Christmas music, and also will accompany the audience in familiar Christmas carols.

"Co-operating with all civic organizations in an effort to make Christmas a happy time for those who otherwise would have no Christmas, Atlanta Council of P.-T. A. has contributed in time and work toward this end," stated Mrs. R. A. Long, president.

Mrs. Long, in a special Christmas message to council members said: "At this Christmas season I am sure that every mother and father in our community joins me in wishing for 1940 a happier and more peaceful year."

It is not amiss at this time when we are celebrating the birth of the Prince of Peace throughout the world, that we should join hands as we seek a peaceful way of life, whether or not we subscribe to the doctrine of the coming festival.

"My personal wish for each one of you who loves children and wishes them well is that the coming days may bring sustaining faith and love."

Kirkwood. The Kirkwood P.-T. A. met recently in the school auditorium with Mrs. C. S. Winter presiding. Miss Elizabeth Silvey, the principal, gave the devotional. Mrs. R. C. Midgour gave a report on the meeting of the Atlanta Council of P.-T. A. Mrs. C. E. Winterle read the president's message.

"Living Greeting Cards" was the skit presented by Miss Ennis' third grade. The fifth and sixth grade chorus, directed by Miss Braselton, sang Christmas carols.

The school orchestra played several selections. The P.-T. A. presented the teachers with wall brackets and pots as a Christmas gift to be used in their redecorated rest room. The grade count was won by Mrs. Nash's sixth grade and Mrs. Long's second grade.

Hapeville High. "Modern education stresses developing every phase in making the child grow into a well-rounded and useful citizen," said Paul West at the recent meeting of the Hapeville P.-T. A.

"Especially at this Christmas season, we should teach every boy and girl three appreciations," he added, "appreciation for a Christian home; appreciation of ideals of service to his fellowman, and appreciation for peace." Mrs. C. W. McMullan rendered vocal selections.

Miss Josie Lawson presented two of her pupils, W. D. Pope in a xylophone selection and Carolyn Wheelchel in a piano selection. Miss Lawson gave xylophone selections. An exhibit was held in the school library of the dolls dressed by the home economics girls for Christmas. The prize for the most attractively dressed doll was won by June McCumber. Ed Baker's room won the attendance prize.

Goldsmith. Goldsmith P.-T. A. held open house for the parents and friends of the school recently. After visiting the rooms and admiring the Christmas decorations and handiwork, the guests gathered in the auditorium and were entertained by the sixth and first grades with a Christmas play, "Helping Santa Claus."

Santa Claus' helpers showed the first Christmas, sent the light of peace to all the world, sent Christmas greetings, sent Christmas presents, inspected Santa's toys and sent a message of cheer to all the world.

Lilburn School. After a brief business session at the recent Lilburn P.-T. A. meeting, Mrs. George Lamar introduced the program committee. Mrs. Joe Shaffer, who presented the guest speaker, Colonel B. B. Zellars, assistant attorney general for the state of Georgia. He spoke on "Youth in a Modern Community."

Mrs. A. G. Walker announced the grade mothers will buy a mimeograph machine for the school. Sixth grade won attendance prize. A Christmas program was presented by the children of the second and third grades. Refreshments were served by the hospitality committee.

Home Park. "The Wise Choice of Gifts for Children" was the theme of the talk given by Miss Betty Hamilton, of the Carnegie library, at the Home Park P.-T. A. meeting in the school auditorium. Mrs. Bob Corley presented a Christmas program. Attendance prizes were won by low-6, Mrs. Oliver, and high-1, Miss Jenkins, as teachers.

Ella W. Smillie. Ella W. Smillie P.-T. A. and preschool recently held a joint meeting with Mrs. B. M. Brodie, program chairman, presenting Mrs. R. A. Long president of council. Mrs. Long spoke on "Friendly Homes Combined With Obedience and Guidance." Mrs. A. S. Chasin, council representative, gave a report on the last council meeting.

A musical program was presented by the school band, directed by Charles Bradley, and accompanied on the piano by Jack Almond. Mrs. A. A. Lipshutz, president, presided.

Forrest Avenue. Forrest Avenue P.-T. A. meeting was in the form of a Christmas program and social hour honoring the daddies and working mothers. Miss Adelaide Setz, principal, introduced Miss Ida Jarrell, who spoke on "The Right Selection of Toys for Children." Miss Marion Lampkin presented pupils of the high grades in Christmas carols. A story was told on the Christ of Peace by Mrs. John A. White.

The patrol boys thanked the P.-T. A. for their new raincoats, hats and boots. Three pictures have been bought for the school from the art exhibit. Gifts were presented to Mrs. J. R. Dollar, president, and Miss Adelaide Setz, principal, from the P.-T. A. Grade prize went to Miss Lottie Jacob, low-3, and Miss Marion Lampkin, high-4.

Joel C. Harris.

Joel Chandler Harris P.-T. A. met recently. Mrs. N. A. Caldwell gave the devotional. The first grades and the kindergarten presented the program, a Christmas play. The sixth grades led in a community sing of Christmas carols. The Harmonica Club rendered several Christmas selections. Attendance prizes went to Miss Christine Woodburn for upper grades and Mrs. Douglas Lyle for lower grades.

Haygood. Highlights in the Christmas program at the Haygood P.-T. A. were a reading by Miss Louise Jenkins and a discussion of the "Influence of Music on Children" by Miss Ruth Wiegand during which she directed the singing of a group of carols by the chorus from the fifth and sixth grades.

A count of the mothers present gave the prize to Mrs. G. L. Keith's class.

J. Allen Couch. Mrs. Clyde Campbell presided at the Couch P.-T. A. meeting held in the school auditorium. The treasurer reported a balance of $27.64 in the bank.

A committee has been appointed to work with R. B. Penn on park and library projects in the community.

The tacky party recently sponsored by the P.-T. A. added $8.55 to the treasury. Mrs. Charles Butler presented Miss Rainwater, principal, and Miss Sally Gardner, secretary, with a Christmas gift from the J. Allen Couch P.-T. A.

Miss Rainwater announced an exhibit of articles made by Miss Persons' children, and attention was also called to the auditorium seat which the children of Couch school gave in honor of H. J. Penn, their representative on the board of education.

Teachers who told of the accomplishments striven for in the different grades were Mrs. Annis Phillips, kindergarten; Mrs. Evelyn Witherspoon, primary grades; Miss Theresa Edwards, intermediate grades; Miss Marie Anneberg, upper grades.

Miss Clemmie Willingham's class and Camp Fire Girls put on a skit on "Giving and Gift Wrapping." This class also won the dollar prize given by the P.-T. A. for having the greatest percentage of attendance. The grade chairman, Mrs. Starnes, won the prize for the largest number of mothers present for the grade.

Fulton Council.

Fulton County Council P.-T. A. met Wednesday, with Mrs. Dan meet after Christmas.

Mrs. John Callahan Feted at Tea By Bainbridge-Brinson W.C.T.U.

By Mrs. Mary Harris ARMOUR, of Atlanta, Editor, Georgia W. C. T. U.

One of the most beautiful of the pre-Christmas functions in Bainbridge last week was a reception at the home of Mrs. Charlie King by the Bainbridge-Brinson W. C. T. U. for Mrs. John Callahan on her 75th birthday. Mrs. Callahan is one of the most beloved of W. C. T. U. members, having entered actively into the work of temperance when a girl of 15, and for 60 years her activities have been unceasing.

A host of W. C. T. U. comrades and other friends were present in addition to her two sisters, four children, four grandchildren, and her seven great-grandchildren. The seven great-grandchildren were dedicated on this occasion as white ribbon recruits. Mrs. Mary Scott Russell, state president of the Georgia W. C. T. U., performing the brief but impressive ceremony. One gift presented her was a gold pin set with pearls presented by Mrs. Mary Scott Russell on behalf of the state organization as a token of their appreciation of her long and effective work. The most appreciated gift was a certificate of life membership in the Georgia W. C. T. U. presented by her seven great-grandchildren. Speakers were Mrs. Mary Scott Russell, of Atlanta, and Mrs. Ethel F. Russell, of Tallahassee, former president of the Bainbridge W. C. T. U. Mrs. Ethel Russell told a thrilling story of the beginning of the work in Bainbridge and how 12 women launched a campaign against the saloons, taking for their slogan "Decatur County Dry in 1907," and led to glorious victory. She said: "The women of the national organization are undaunted by defeat and are going out with the same crusading spirit to marshal the hosts of Christian women in America in another great victorious fight for God and home and native land." She introduced Mrs. Mary Scott Russell, who painted a vivid picture of the recent centenary convention of the national W. C. T. U. at Rochester, and said in closing "W. C. T. U. women are all born color blind. We see only the green light which says 'Go forward.' We are blind to the red stop signs on the prohibition highway. We sometimes have to detour, but then an intensive educational campaign is launched and we soon find ourselves on the main highway going forward." All were then invited into the dining room, where a delicious salad course was served. The table was a picture centered by a gaily decorated and brilliantly lighted Christmas tree. The entire house, indeed, was made festive with Christmas greens and holly supplemented by white roses, carnations, gladioli and chrysanthemums.

Mrs. C. C. McGinty, of Augusta, president of the 10th district, sends an account of her last district meeting held at Asbury Methodist church, Augusta, on Wednesday. Program as follows: Devotions, Mrs. G. A. Winn; scripture, "Let not your heart be troubled"; solo, Mrs. Ollie McGhee, "My Cathedral"; greetings, Mrs. J. B. Jeffcoat, Augusta; response, Mrs. L. Wyatt, Greensboro; address, Solicitor George Hains, "What Part Alcohol Plays in the Crimes of Augusta and Vicinity"; legislative and Christian citizenship departments and calendar of laws to come before congress in 1940, discussed by Mrs. J. L. Caldwell; playlet, "What Is Iota Sigma?"—Mrs. R. M. Ballard, Mrs. Helen Brodler and Mrs. Jane Watkins. Mrs. McGinty adds: "Solicitor Hains' address was fine. After

LeCroy-Hardy Betrothal Told

MARIETTA, Ga., December 16. Announcement is made today by Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Harvey LeCroy of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Esther Frances LeCroy, to James Paul Hardy, son of Mrs. J. A. Hardy, of Atlanta, and the late Mr. Hardy. The marriage will be solemnized the latter part of this month.

Miss LeCroy is the sister of

Miss Dorothy Cox To Wed Mr. Black

Interest centers in the announcement made today by Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Cox, of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Dorothy Cox, to H. L. Black Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Black. The marriage of this popular couple will be solemnized on February 11 at 4 o'clock at the Inman Park Baptist church. Rev. S. F. Lowe will perform the ceremony.

Miss Cox attended the Atlanta public schools and was graduated from Girls' High school last June. Her mother was, before her marriage, Miss Janie Jay, of Social Circle, daughter of J. E. Jay and the late Mrs. Estelle Pannell Jay. On her paternal side she is the granddaughter of Mrs. Nan Pickle Cox, and the late George W. Cox, of Social Circle.

Mr. Black attended Boys' High school and Georgia Tech Evening school and Draught's Business College. He is the brother of Billy Black. The groom-elect's maternal grandparents are the late Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Mills, of Barnesville. On his paternal side he is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Black, of Murphy, N. C.

Following the marriage of this couple they will reside in Atlanta where, the groom-elect is affiliated in business with the Georgia Power Company as a field engineer.

John T. LeCroy, Joe S. LeCroy, George LeCroy, Alton and Glenn LeCroy, all of Marietta; Mrs. Marshall Crowe, of Atlanta, and Miss Annie Lee LeCroy.

Mr. Hardy has four brothers, Jesse, Fred, Walton and W. B. Hardy, and two sisters, Mrs. James Jarvels and Miss Luma Baby Hardy, of Atlanta.

Miss Isobel Cain And Mr. Bullock Will Wed Dec. 29

Of sincere interest is the announcement made today of the wedding plans of Miss Isobel Cain, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Cain, and Charles Cornelius Bullock, the nuptials to be solemnized December 29 at 7:30 o'clock in the evening at the Kirkwood Presbyterian church.

The Rev. James Smith, pastor of the Kirkwood Presbyterian church, will officiate in the presence of a large gathering of the families and friends of the young couple. Presenting music will be William A. Fleming, Jr., organist, and Miss Jeanette Bullock, sister of the bridegroom, soloist.

Miss Cain will be given in marriage by her father and she has chosen Mrs. James Fisher, another sister of the bridegroom, as her matron of honor and Miss Georgia Hunt as her maid of honor. The bridesmaids will be Miss Mary Ann Davis and Miss Margaret Ewing. James Fisher, his brother, Candler Butler Jr., Bill DeLoach and John Long will be groomsmen.

Miss Cain and Mr. Bullock have been honored at a number of pre-nuptial parties recently and continue to be feted. On December 21, Miss Margaret Ewing and Miss Georgia Hunt will be co-hostesses at Miss Hunt's home on Piedmont avenue at a kitchen shower for Miss Cain.

Mrs. A. H. Cain will compliment her daughter on December 24 with an open house at her home on Moreland place. Assisting in entertaining will be Mrs. James Fisher, Misses Mary Ann Davis, Georgia Hunt, Margaret Ewing and Mrs. Mary Bowling, who will keep the bride's book. On December 28, Mrs. Cain will also be hostess at a rehearsal party honoring Miss Cain and Mr. Bullock after the rehearsal wedding.

Methodist Board of City Missions Outlines Many Phases of Its Work

The Atlanta Methodist Board of City Missions, composed of representatives from the Woman's Missionary Societies of the Methodist churches in the Atlanta district, has, since 1895, employed workers to carry on various phases of city mission work and has the distinction of being one of the oldest social agencies in Atlanta.

The first mission was established in 1902 near the Fulton Bag Mills, at that time known as the Elsas-May Mill, with Miss Rosa Lowe as resident leader and Miss Mary Echols in charge of the day nursery. It was known as the Methodist Home Settlement and housed a children's dispensary, day nursery and a night school. Miss Lowe worked in harmony with the city warden in doing relief work. Miss Mary Dickinson, now with the Atlanta Tuberculosis Association, began kindergarten classes at the settlement in 1903. Miss Viola Coussart, known as the first trained public health nurse in Georgia, came in 1905 to make the fourth resident worker in the Methodist Home Settlement. The original Wesley Community House site purchased by the Atlanta Methodist Board of City Missions in 1928 is at 342 Richardson street, S. W., and is the worthy successor to the old "Settlement."

Dreams Come True. The account of the goals realized at the Atlanta Wesley Community House in 1939 might well be headed "Dreams Come True." The members of the Atlanta Methodist Board of City Missions have dreamed for several years of enlarging the grounds and adding the equipment that would make the Wesley House a great community home. This year, under the leadership of the president, Mrs. W. E. Letts, the board has more than doubled the size of the Wesley House property and is well on the way toward equipping it to serve every member of the community. At lot 160 by 205 feet and a 14-room house were recently bought, adjoining the original community house property. The lot has been fenced in and graded so that the playground for the neighborhood children has been greatly enlarged. The exterior of the house has been completely renovated and the interior decorated. Five rooms have been furnished as an apartment for an Emory University theological student and his wife to do part-time work at the Wesley House. Other rooms have been equipped as game rooms, club rooms, cooking class rooms, and a woodwork and handcraft room to accommodate the girls, boys and adults of the community. A three-room house on the rear of the lot has been converted into a beautiful nursery school where the very young children receive elementary training for molding Christian character. A Boy Scout hut has been made from a small reconditioned building. Several with the city warden in doing relief work. Miss Mary Dickinson, now with the Atlanta Tuberculosis Association, began kindergarten classes at the settlement in 1903. Miss Viola Coussart, known as the first trained public health nurse in Georgia, came in 1905 to make the fourth resident worker in the Methodist Home Settlement. The original Wesley Community House site purchased by the Atlanta Methodist Board of City Missions in 1928 is at 342 Richardson street, S. W., and is the worthy successor to the old "Settlement."

at the Commercial Illustration Studios in New York during the fall. He will return the first week in January.

Miss Margaret Carson will arrive Thursday from Lynchburg, Va., where she is a student at Randolph-Macon, to spend the Christmas holidays with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sam M. Carson, at 112 Inman circle.

Epworth W. M. S. Plans Harvest Day.

Epworth Methodist W. M. S. will hold their annual Harvest Day service today. This service will take place at the church. This service will take the place of the regular evening worship. The meeting will open with the audience joining in singing "Come Thou Fount of Every Blessing." A prayer of thanksgiving for the year's work of the society will be given by the Rev. E. W. Jones. Mrs. T. Willis Fowler, president of the auxiliary will give a short message of the origin and meaning of Harvest Day. Special music will be rendered by Mrs. W. A. Barksdale. The devotional message for the evening will be given by Mrs. E. L. Graydon. A general report of the year's work will be the presentation of a life membership to the W. M. S. to Mrs. M. D. Duff, beloved worker of the auxiliary. The service will be closed with the installation of the officers for the new year by the pastor, Rev. G. Hamby Barton. Others taking part of the program will be Mesdames Olin T. Lester, E. A. Ferguson, L. P. Johnson and members of the Young Women's Circle.

ing, woodwork, handcraft, music, dramatics and wholesome directed recreation in 28 organized groups with an enrollment of 502. The unorganized activities of the resident workers embrace community visiting, emergency relief and maintaining a lending library. The enlarged facilities call for an ever-enlarging program of work and the funds from the 1940 Wesley Community House Association Membership Drive will be used to carry on a program designed to benefit the entire community.

Has No Indebtedness. The Atlanta Wesley Community House has been operated this year on a budget of $4,350 for regular expenditures according to Mrs. J. A. Manget, treasurer. In addition to this sum, $2,500 has been paid for the new property and $1,591.05 spent for improvement. There is now no indebtedness on the community center. The funds for doing this splendid piece of work were raised through an associate membership drive whereby any person could become an associate member of Wesley Community House for one year by contributing $1 or more. $1,300 was raised in this manner and the Brannen Foundation matched this amount. The North Georgia Conference W. M. S. also contributed $1,000 to the community house fund this year.

Wesley House is a character building institution in a crowded community with the nearest municipal park two miles away. It is staffed by efficient Christian workers. Miss Mary Lou Bond is the head resident; Miss Louise Weeks, girls' club worker; Miss Rosamond Johnson, nursery school teacher and director of primary work; Wm. S. Steele, part-time worker with boys' and men's clubs and Mrs. Wm. S. Steele, assistant worker with children and young people. Part-time workers include Miss Edith West, piano teacher from the Atlanta Music Study Club; Mrs. Maurice Morris, Smith-Hughes cooking teacher; and two WPA teachers for the adult classes in current events. The program includes Bible study, cooking, sewing,

Mr., Mrs. Arkwright Give Annual Party At 'Pinebloom'

White spruce trees, gleaming white candles, holly and mistletoe and old-fashioned foliage arrangements combined to transform Pinebloom into a veritable Christmas fairyland yesterday when Mr. and Mrs. Preston S. Arkwright entertained at their annual Yuletide egg nog party.

A group of prominent Atlantans gathered for the event which was a colorful and enjoyable climax to the "Gone With the Wind" festival, and which gathered a number of prominent visitors in the city.

The massive entrance to the home was garlanded with smilax centered by large red oolichth bows and clusters of holly and mistletoe. In the entrance hall old-fashioned arrangements of pine, holly and other green foliage was used, while in the drawing room white spruce trees, silver to achieve the snow effect, stood as massive and effective ornaments. Smilax was garlanded over the room and was combined with silver and white cellophane. Tall white candles gleamed throughout the home and in the dining room silver and holiday red were used in effective arrangement. Gold and green decorations were arranged in the sun parlor and throughout the entire home the spirit of the Yuletide season was carried out.

Mr. and Mrs. Arkwright were assisted in entertaining by their sons and daughters, Dr. and Mrs. Glenville Giddings and Mr. and Mrs. Preston Arkwright Jr. and Miss Dorothy Giddings and Glenville Giddings Jr. Mrs. Arkwright, the hostess, was handsomely gowned in a black velvet model with a deep bertha of cream lace, and she wore a cluster of orchids.

Miss Wilbanks Weds John Eubank.

The marriage of Miss Adelia Wilbanks, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Virgil Wilbanks and John D. Eubank, was solemnized recently at the home of Rev. and Mrs. Lester A. Brown, in Decatur.

The bride was gowned in a costume of royal blue velvet with which she wore a matching hat and black accessories. A shoulder bouquet of sweethearts roses and lilies of the valley completed her costume.

Mrs. Eubank finished high school at Baldwin, Ga., later graduating from a business college in Atlanta.

Mr. Eubank is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Eubank, of Appling. After graduating from Leah High school, Mr. Eubank attended the University of Georgia and Mercer University. He is now connected with the Georgia Public Service Commission.

Prior to her wedding, Mrs. Eubank was complimented with a series of parties. After the ceremony the young couple left for a wedding trip and on their return will reside at 364 Brooks avenue.

Miss White Weds J. Smith Kirkland.

PEARSON, Ga., Dec. 16.—The marriage of Miss Edna White to J. Smith Kirkland, of Port St. Joe, Fla., was solemnized recently at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. O. White. Rev. L. L. Batis performed the ceremony in the presence of a large number of relatives and friends.

Miss Leah Sutton, of Axson, presented a program of music. The improvised altar in the living room was banked with palms and ferns and floor baskets of white chrysanthemums. Seven-branch candelabra holding burning white tapers completed the decorations.

Guests for the occasion were W. L. Roberts and J. C. White Jr., Mrs. W. L. Roberts, sister of the bride, was matron-of-honor. She was gowned in blue crepe with which she wore matching accessories and a shoulder spray of pink roses.

The bride entered with her father, by whom she was given in marriage. They were met at the altar by the groom and his best man, Burman L. Ray, of Savannah, brother-in-law of the groom. She was gowned in a light blue tulle gown with which she wore accessories to match and a shoulder bouquet of Talisman roses.

After the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Kirkland left for a wedding trip, and upon their return they will reside in Lufkin, Texas.

To "Satan" Andrews 35 years in the Iowa state prison at Fort Madison has meant the entrance of 10,000 men. "Satan," whose formal name is Charles, is the prison photographer besides being "Prisoner No. 8734."

On October 29 he checked the record to verify his 35 years under the custody of the state. Among other things he found that on October 17, 1939, prisoner No. 18734 had been checked into the institution. On that day, 35 years ago when "Satan" went through admittance formalities he was ushered into a gas-lighted cell, sharing a cellhouse with 496 other inmates.

"Satan" has had a lot of time for many things besides photography, and in a cool calculating sort of way has figured a rate of admittance of .782272 of a man per day.

"It's been quite a heel-cooling," he adds.

PRIVATE WORK AHEAD OF PUBLIC BY $10,000,000

Eleven Months' Figures in Atlanta Area Show Tremendous Gains.

Private ownership leads in the valuation of construction contracts awarded throughout the Atlanta metropolitan area, with an unquestioned 11-month margin of nearly $10,000,000 beyond the contracts under public ownership.

The monthly summary of local construction activities, prepared by Ralph M. Hairston, the Atlanta manager of Dodge Reports, pointed out that the total valuations of private contracts topped the public totals in 10 of the first 11 months. This indicates a favorable local trend, rather than a spurt in one or two months. In some localities a single large project could influence the relation between the private and public totals.

All contracts for work and materials awarded by private ownership in the Atlanta metropolitan area during the January-through-November period reached $16,065,000. Last year the corresponding private contract level was $11,425,000. A gain of 40 per cent has been recorded for the 11 months of 1939.

Dodge Reports comments that contracts are actual signed commitments for action and usually reflect construction business conditions more accurately than permit grants.

The best month of this year for private construction in the Atlanta area was October, followed by June and July. The low point was August.

Public construction contracts, awarded by federal, state and local governments, amounted to $6,195,000 in the 11-month period. That is 112 per cent ahead of the total at the same point of last year, $2,923,000. In this classification, the highest total was recorded for September, with June and October following. The lowest level was reached in May.

Mr. Hairston concludes his summary with a glance at the future. The outlook for 1940 points to an average pick-up of 11 per cent in privately owned construction throughout the 37 states east of the Rocky mountains. At the same time, public construction is expected to move ahead with only 1 per cent. Present indications are that the Atlanta metropolitan area will participate in the advance.

Perkinson Jr., Estate of Hannah M. Lynch to J. E. Collum, southeast corner Richardson and Fernwald streets, through Howard Watkins.

HOLC sold to J. B. Thomason 360 Kelly street, $2,000, and 1096 Wylie street to A. C. Milcolm for $1,850, both sales having been made through the co-operation of Draper-Owens Company.

Over One Million Dollars Per Day For Repair Loans

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 16. More than a million dollars a day in modernization and repair loans were reported to the FHA for insurance during the 60 business days ended December 4, Federal Housing Administrator Stewart McDonald announced today.

McDonald reported during these 60 working days numbered 149,027 in the amount of $80,360,170 or an average of nearly 2,500 each day. In November alone, 63,903 loans were reported in the amount of $24,485,511, the largest number of loans insured under Title 1 of the National Housing Act in any one month since April, 1936.

These figures reveal, Mr. McDonald said, the extent to which home owners, farmers, and small businessmen are taking advantage of the FHA's modernization and repair loan program. To carry the figures still further, an average of more than 300 home owners, farmers and businessmen are improving their properties each working hour.

One of the most interesting features of this heavy volume of loans, the administrator said, is the fact that this business is now bringing in a substantial income. Loans reported during the 60-day

Pretty Street View of New Homes in Emory Grove

Above shows some of the modern and attractive homes recently built in Emory Grove, on North Decatur road, near Emory University. Thirty-eight new homes have been erected there within the past ten months, involving around $250,000 in the development. John J. Thompson & Co., realtors, are exclusive agents for the property.

HOMES SELL FAST IN EMORY GROVE

New North Decatur Road
Subdivision Involves $250,000 Development.

On a heavily wooded tract of approximately 26 acres lying on the south side of North Decatur road, about three blocks east of Druid Hills schools and Emory campus, one of the prettiest and quickest home developments around Atlanta has taken place.

Within the past 10 months, since building was begun on the tract, known as Emory Grove, 38 homes have been erected, or will be completed soon, as several are now being started. These homes are of five and six rooms, just as modern, conveniently arranged, attractive and well built as architectural skill could suggest. They are sold as fast as completed, where buyers of lots are not building homes for themselves, and involve around $5,000 to $6,000 each, or sometimes a little more. Thus something like $250,000 is involved in the development.

Emory Grove is being developed by L. Neal Smith, John J. Thompson and Company, realtors, being exclusive agents. "These homes are being either purchased after completion or built by and are being occupied by a very high type of young couples, who are starting on their first housekeeping venture," said Mr. Thompson.

Princeton Way is a pretty horse-shoe curve that extends from North Decatur road, winding back into the road. On it may be attractive homes have been erected. The view on this page shows some of the type of homes on this street. In the center has been left several acres to be developed into a park for the residents of the subdivision, and a little later, when all have moved in, this work will be left largely to them as to its development and improvement.

All improvements are down in the subdivision, each lot has ample frontage and depth, and practically all are covered with delightful shade.

All the houses in this development are of new construction, being built on 18-inch granite foundations, with eight-inch exterior brick walls, steel casement windows built in the walls. All are equipped with automatic gas furnaces, automatic gas water heater and exhaust fan for the kitchen, and all other modern equipment, including patented roll-up spring garage doors. About two-thirds of the area has been sold, leaving quite a number of excellent lots yet to be disposed of, but Mr. Thompson does not believe he will be long disposing of the remainder.

A few of the recent sales in Emory Grove have been made to Mr. and Mrs. Augustus J. Polhill, Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Heidler, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Lambert, Mr. and Mrs. P. W. Meoller, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Glass, Mr. and Mrs. Walter G. Hall, Mr. and Mrs. Mills E. Gay, Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Sutton, Mr. and Mrs. Bryan W. Fleming, Mr. and Mrs. Frank T. Penny and Miss Dorothy Penny.

BULL TEAMS WITH MULE
Paul Williams, of Towana, Pa., boasts of an unusual team of a 7-year-old bull and a 6-year-old mule—a supposedly irreconcilable combination—doing general work on his farm. Williams says the team has worked together peacefully for four years.

period earned a premium of $1,200,000 which the FHA will use to pay operating expenses of the Title I program, together with offsetting possible losses incurred.

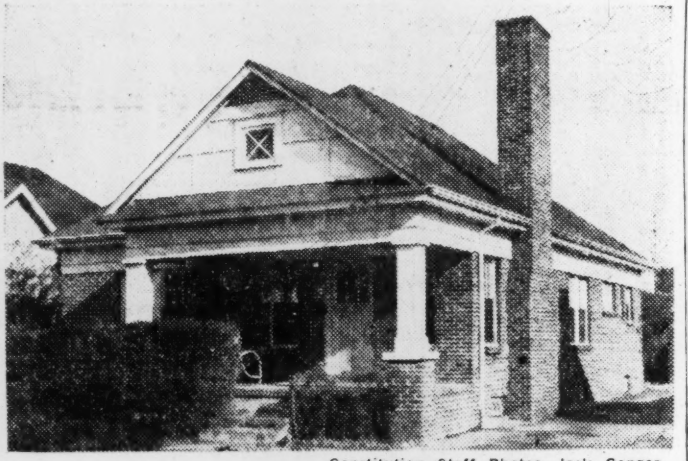

Billion Spent in Repairs.
Since the beginning of modernization-loan insurance operations some five years ago more than $2,250,000,000 home, farm and business property owners have spent in the neighborhood of $1,000,000,000 in property improvements. These figures, which represent only loans insured by the FHA, do not represent total improvements to properties undertaken as a result of the FHA program. Thousands of other property owners have been interested in home modernization and repair by the FHA program and have carried out improvements without financing them under the FHA improvement-loan insurance plan.

Here is a pretty home just completed in Emory Grove, and sold to Mr. and Mrs. Mills E. Gay. John J. Thompson & Co., realtors, are exclusive agents for the subdivision.

Another attractive home recently completed in Emory Grove and purchased by Mrs. Frank T. Penny and Miss Dorothy Penny. It is one of many built within the past few months in this pretty wooded tract, being developed by L. Neal Smith, and which is handled exclusively by John J. Thompson & Co., realtors.

Attractive brick home at 827 Durant place, N. E., purchased by Mrs. Joseph Shuman from National Bondholders Corporation for an unannounced consideration. Tom Faison, of National Realty Management Company, Inc., handled the sale.

'Rebuild America,' Is Battle Cry; Half Million New Homes Is Goal

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16.—Nearly half a million new homes are going up this year in the nation, breaking all residential building records for the past 10 years.

"Rebuild America" is the battle cry of the building trades and America is responding by building 450,000 new homes this year in comparison to 347,000 last year and only 62,000 in 1934, figures assembled by the National Home Builders' Bureau show.

But even more significant, economists say, are the indications that the construction industry at last is filling its long-expected role of leading the way back to prosperity. One authoritative view on this trend is voiced by John D. Biggers, president of Libbey-Owens-Ford Glass Company and former administrator of the federal unemployment census.

"The building materials industry confidently expects 1939 to mark a 10-year peak in home construction. The building pace in the first nine months, coupled with reports from real estate boards that twice as many building lots are being sold, forecasts such a record," Mr. Biggers said.

"New homes erected last year sheltered almost 1,500,000 persons, itself a record since 1929. Yet, for the decade, home building did not even catch up with the increase in population, let alone with new home needs due to fire, flood and obsolescence. There remains a great need for new homes. The economic value of activity directed at fulfilling this need is seen in the fact that 41 cents of the 'building dollar' goes to the construction of the home, and a considerable portion of the 59 cents spent for materials pays wages of other workers in mills, quarries and factories."

Building dollars are buying more space and quality, construction engineers report. Bargain prices on materials hold true in nearly every field—glass, metals, plastics, wood products and masonry units. What were once luxury items are now commonplace. Mr. Modest Income can

ANNUAL MEETING OF REALTY BOARD

Dinner at Athletic Club at 6:30; Reports and Election of Officers.

The annual business meeting of the Atlanta Real Estate Board for the year will be held Monday evening, December 18, at the Athletic Club.

The president of the board, W. J. Hogan Jr., will be host to all board members at 6 p. m. and dinner will be served promptly at 6:30. Immediately following dinner, there will be a brief meeting, consisting of several short reports, election of officers, etc.

A large attendance is expected.

Dodge Reports Show Good Record of Residential Building in Southeast.

A good record of residential building was developed in the southeast during November, according to Ralph M. Hairston, the district manager of Dodge Reports. The valuation of the month's contracts moved over the level of November, 1938, with a favorable margin of about $4,000,000.

Contracts awarded during November for all types of residential building in the southeast were valued at $13,444,000. In 1938, the November contracts were at $9,518,000.

The building business schedule for 1940 maintains the more-active interest in one and two-family houses.

Home Owners' catalogs predicts that $983,000,000 will be spent next year for materials, equipment and labor to be used in building one and two-family houses throughout the 37 states east of the Rocky mountains. The publication's "educated guess" includes a favorable margin of 9 per cent over the expected 1939 final figure of $905,000,000. It is significant that new homes to be built to order for the occupancy of the owners will be more numerous next year.

Readers of The Constitution who are planning to build homes for their own occupancy during 1940 can secure personal copies of Home-Owners' Catalogs without charge or any other obligation. The one-volume library of home building information is available to all families whose homes will be built in this area at costs of $4,000 and more. It will be sent postpaid to those who qualify on application to the publishers, F. W. Dodge Corporation, Atlanta.

LIPSCOMB-ELLIS SALES ARE $20,600

Five Homes Are Included in List of Month's Transfers.

Lipscomb-Ellis Company, realtors, announce sales closed during December totaling $20,600 as follows:

No. 720 Alamo street, S. W., $2,750; J. Robt. Hinton to Kelly B. Harris for a home.

No. 810 Moreland avenue, $4,750; L. E. McCracken to E. C. Tate for a home.

No. 837 Boulevard, N. E., $4,000; Penn Mutual Life Insurance Company to Mrs. Eva Key Pearce and Mrs. Peggy O'Neal Pearce for a home.

One-half interest in Fulton county acreage (43 acres), $3,100; Mrs. Rosalyn B. Veazy to T. Cliff Mason for an investment.

No. 208 Dauphin street, $3,500; Mrs. W. W. Veal to L. V. Couch for a home.

No. 1095 Sells avenue, S. W., $2,500; Mrs. Irene P. Abrams to Mrs. Frank Albest for a home.

These sales handled by Messrs. George S. Hames, J. L. McCall, S. Baldwin, C. R. Thrasher and W. T. Davidson.

Confine Buildings To Eight Stories, Says Nelson

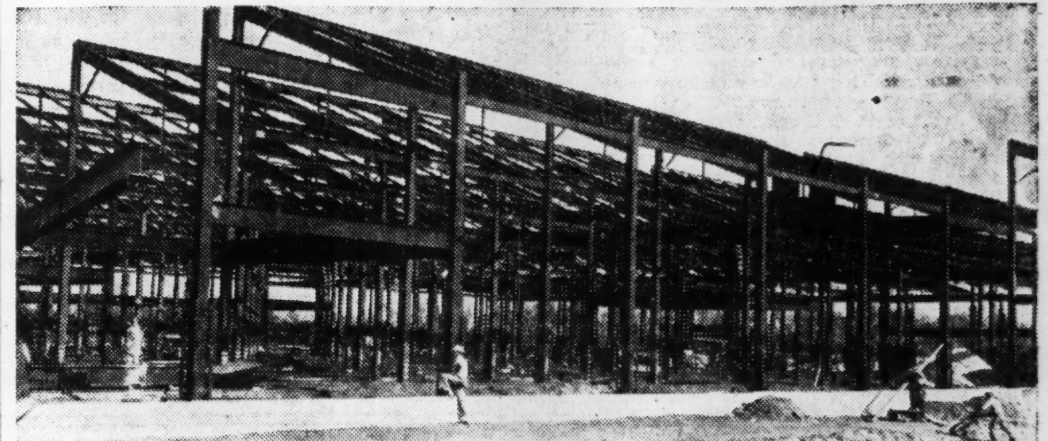

As one general principle for our future city building and rebuilding we might well consider limiting the height of all structures to not more than eight stories, writes Herbert U. Nelson, executive president, National Association of Real Estate Boards.

It is now well-recognized that the 20-story buildings and higher that were acclaimed as achievements a decade ago have shown themselves on the whole to be economic failures.

Added height above a certain level simply does not pay its way. Just where this point is reached may well be argued. It will vary according to the conditions of the city and the economic conditions—even the styles—of the times. And quite aside from the question of whether a tall building will pay its costs, we are finding that there is a limit beyond which building up into the air ceases to be an added convenience for drawing people together to do business. After that it begins instead to pile up traffic difficulties, noise, sunlessness and waste of human energy.

Further, as one consequence of placing our building height limits at 264 feet or more, or thereabouts, we have today ragged downtown districts in which all too commonly a 26-story structure will be belabored by a parking lot or a one-story taxpayer.

How Work Is Progressing on Big Biscuit Plant

With tons upon tons of steel being placed in position at the immense plant of the National Biscuit Company, across the railroad from Fort McPherson, the structure is gradually assuming shape. The picture shows only a part of the work under construction. At each side of this work will go units larger than that shown. The building will be about 1,200 feet long, covering the largest ground area of any structure for which a building permit has ever been issued in Atlanta, and will cost in the neighborhood of $2,000,000. It will be many months yet in the building.

As the Commission Sees It

Jesse Draper, chairman of the Georgia Real Estate Commission, was invited to tell the national association license law officials about Georgia's real estate licensing law. The following extracts from his speech delivered at the annual meeting of the association in Los Angeles, Cal., recently are submitted to the real estate men of Georgia for their comment. The commission would like very much to know whether its conception of its responsibility is in line with the best opinion in the real estate group.

"The Georgia Real Estate Commission is a creature of the real estate licensing law which was adopted in 1923 at the request of our leading real estate brokers. The primary problem with which the commission has been confronted was that of determining a policy in order that the broad ends which were in the minds of those who sponsored it might be served."

"It is not easy to explain to the people that it may be desirable to have a commission saving just who shall and who shall not have the right to enter into real estate business. We must justify the existence of the commission at every step."

"Our primary obligation is to protect and strengthen the framework of free competition (so that) the people may longer preserve the right to buy and sell, to own whatever they may choose to own with as little restriction as possible. If the real estate business be entirely unregulated, two things may happen. The broker with a code of ethics will find it hard to exist in competition with the unscrupulous. The public will be imposed upon to the point where the idea of becoming an owner of real estate will not be pleasing. We think that reasonable regulation of our business will tend to preserve the system of private ownership."

"We regard our work more as educational than as law-enforcing. It is the spirit of our law that our people shall be persuaded rather than compelled. We think that greater good will come if the Georgia commission concern itself more with upholding an ideal before the profession than with ruthless enforcement of the letter of the law."

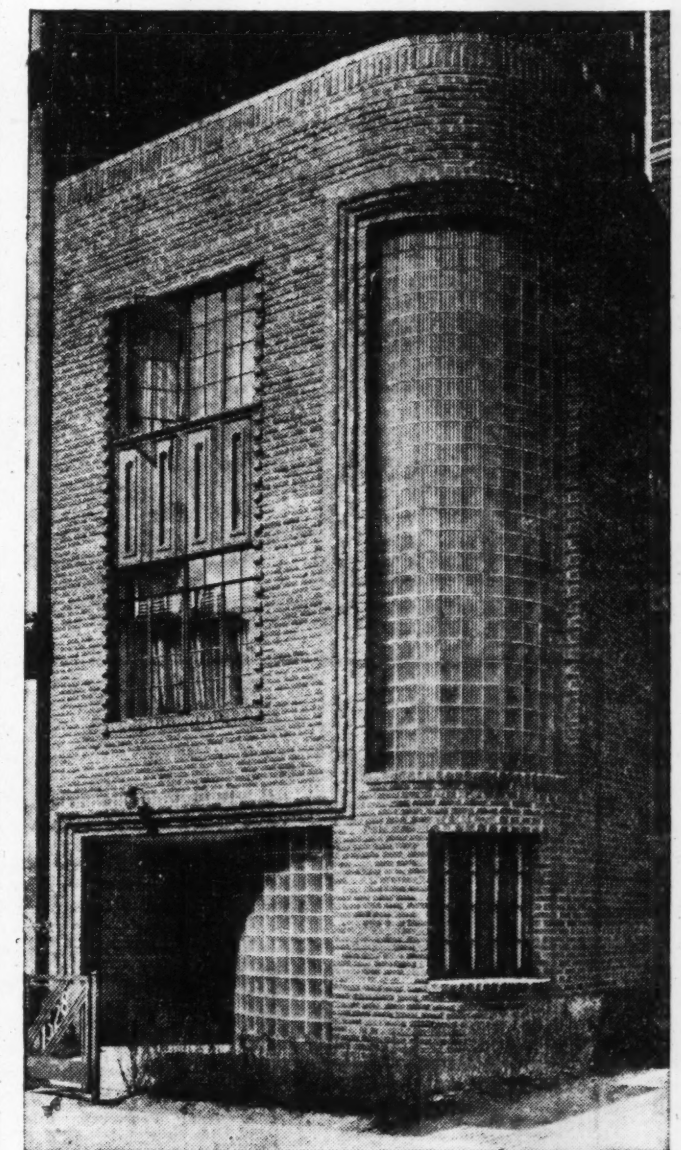

"The commission remembers that the licensing law did not come into being through public demand, but rather through the long-range planning of the leading real estate brokers. The commission believes that it is not being disloyal to the public when it considers itself fully as much an agency of the real estate fraternity as an agency of the public. The public does not pay for this agency. The expenses come from the fees which the real estate men pay."

"It is accurate to say that the real estate men set up this agency with the permission of the public, agreeing to tax themselves for its support and promising that if it be cloaked with the power of state it would be used for the public good. Therefore, the commission feels that it must not attempt to go any further or travel any faster than the group of real estate men themselves will permit."

"It is the hope of the commission to keep the ideal of high standards of professional conduct always before the real estate men (and especially the newcomers) to that field and to keep the theory and principles of the licensing act always before them."

"Our policy has been to enforce mildly, to interpret liberally, and to bring the business of the commission before the real estate men themselves for all and open discussion and to encourage suggestions from the real estate men."

Two Unique Houses Built on Narrow Lot

Illustrating how Chicago architect met building problem on lot 18x130 feet, erecting two comfortable homes of three stories each, with lovely garden between them.

How Architect Used Narrow Land Strip

When an architect owns a lot on North State street in Chicago which is only 18 feet wide and 130 feet deep he has a problem which really is a challenge to his ingenuity.

It's not easy to design a commercial or residential building on such a narrow strip of land but Andrew Reborelli solved the problem presented by this situation in a most interesting manner.

Mr. Reborelli decided to build two houses on his lot, one fronting on State street and the other at the rear.

The artistic and comfortable results which Mr. Reborelli achieved were surprising. Between the two houses at opposite ends of the narrow lot there is a lovely garden which is beautiful even though it is flanked on all sides by high buildings.

The houses are extremely comfortable. Each is three stories high. The beautiful entrance on State street is flanked by a sweeping curved insulux glass block wall and leads into a passageway opening directly into the garden. This passageway is used as an entrance for both houses.

One of the most interesting and useful features of the State street house is a tall panel of insulux blocks two stories high which sets into the curved corner at the front and extends from the floor line on the second floor to the ceiling of the third.

This panel fills the interior with an abundance of soft light and gives the house a character which few other materials could supply either on the interior or exterior.

A large corner panel of insulux glass block is used in the other house at the rear of the lot. The abundant use of glass blocks in the two homes provides them with a wealth of light in spite of the fact that the long narrow lot was flanked on two sides by tall buildings.

THIS IS 'LIGHT' WORK

A shipment of light bulbs was being unloaded in an alley at the rear of a San Antonio, Texas, hotel. Along came a garbage truck and hauled the whole lot away.

YOUTH SENTENCED TO LONG PEN TERM

Two Rome Burglaries Confessed in Court.

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION. ROME, Ga., Dec. 16.—After pleading guilty to two store burglaries today before Judge Claude H. Porter, of Floyd superior court, a youth listed on records as Joe McNew, 18, of Coosa, Ga., was sentenced to from 10 to 20 years in the state penitentiary.

The youth admitted burglary of the Quint McArver store and the establishment of C. S. Comer, and Deputy John Adams said a quantity of the allegedly stolen groceries was found in the homes of two negroes, who are being held on charges of buying stolen goods. The deputy listed the two as Emmett Thompson, 41, of Lyerly, Route 1, and Cothran Williams, 28, of Tulip, Ga.

The best-known petrified log in the world is believed to be a 100-foot log in Arizona which forms a natural 40-foot bridge.

Woman Mail Carrier, of Newnan, Covers Rural Route Like a Man

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION. NEWNAN, Ga., Dec. 16.—Twenty-three years of "totin' the mail" to remote farm houses through snow, sleet, rain, and biggest item of all—red Georgia mud, have taught Mrs. Cammie D. Thomas, of Newnan, to love the people she serves and to "stick it out" through all kinds of hardships.

One of only 10 women R. F. D. carriers in Georgia, Mrs. Thomas does not let the fact she weighs only 100 pounds prevent her from being as efficient and as faithful as any man in the service.

Standard equipment on her route includes tools that will help get the car moving again quickly. "I carry an axe and a shovel every day in winter," she says, "oftentimes removing dirt and mud from under my wheels. I sometimes get stuck, but never get in the ditch."

Two bodyguards, a bulldog and a Dalmatian coach dog, are her constant companions, for she lives alone, too, except for a negro servant.

She began work in 1916, substituting for her husband. Those were horse-and-buggy days when her 31-mile route meant an all-day job. She progressed to the period when the temperamental automobile had to be coaxed and humored, and today she covers 52 miles in Coweta county, many of the roads still narrow and red. Since starting, she has covered at least 230,000 miles.

Mrs. Thomas raises chickens and flowers as a hobby, and her gardens are show places in spring and summer.

Poison! Poison! Some Die of It, It Spurs Cotton

ELLAVILLE, Ga., Dec. 16.—(AP) A little poison now and then is fruitful on Schley county farms. County Agent F. W. Hamill reported, citing Cleve Burt, Olin E. Smith and Harry F. Dixon as farmers getting a bale of cotton or more to the acre.

Burt raised 52 bales on 36 acres. Smith 15 bales on 15 acres and Dixon 11 bales on 9.6 acres. It seems the poison effectively halted boll weevil attacks on the respective crops.

CYCLIST IS KILLED BY SAVANNAH TRUCK

SAVANNAH, Ga., Dec. 16.—(AP) R. E. L. Miller, 21, was killed yesterday when he fell from his bicycle beneath the wheels of a moving truck.

He was clerk for the Central of Georgia Railway and was a graduate of Armstrong Junior College.

'CHUTE JUMPER MAKES SOLO HOP

Floyd Stimson Gets Student License.

MACON, Ga., Dec. 16.—(AP) Floyd Stimson, America's "champion" parachute jumper, who has made 1,135 "leaps for life" in 14 years of stunting, made a solo flight Saturday for the first time in his career.

"It was the biggest kick I've had in years," declared the veteran, to whom parachute jumping has become a routine. "I wasn't scared. But it was a real thrill to bring that ship in all by myself."

Stimson, who has been piloting off and on for the last seven or eight years with another pilot in the ship, obtained a student flying license this morning, "so that some time in the future I could solo. But I didn't expect it so soon."

He had made several test trips with a local flying instructor, today the teacher stepped out and said, "She's yours."

Stimson suffered from the "first-time fidgets" but soon had everything under control, and completed his first solo flight successfully.

SECRETARIES TO MEET IN WAYCROSS IN JUNE

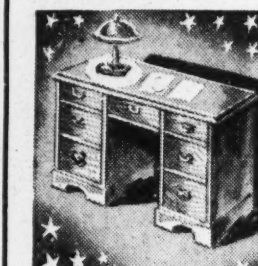

MACON, Ga., Dec. 16.—(AP) Directors of the Georgia Commercial Secretaries' Association selected June 6, 7 and 8 as the convention dates for their summer meeting in Waycross, at a conference here today.

They also considered co-operative activities and discussed mutual problems for the coming year.

Christie Summers, of Valdosta, was named chairman of the convention program. He is to select other members of the committee. Mrs. K. G. Berry, of Brunswick, was named attendance chairman.

A feature of the convention will be a visit to Okefenokee swamp.

Miss Whitaker Weds Charles M. Sewell Jr. At January Rites

CARTERSVILLE, Ga., Dec. 16. Announcement of the engagement of Miss Elizabeth Whitaker, of this city, to Charles Morgan Sewell Jr., of this city, is of cordial social interest throughout the state, the marriage to take place on January 4.

The bride-elect is the second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Robert Whitaker, of Cartersville. Her only sister is Mrs. W. L. Young, of Macon, and her brothers are Robert F. Whitaker, Atlanta; James L. Whitaker, of New Orleans, and J. Sam Whitaker, of Wilmington, Del. Her mother, before her marriage, was Miss Eula Fleming, of Bowersville, while her father, a native of Hart county, is one of the leading members of the bar of Cartersville and north-west Georgia.

The groom-elect is the eldest son of Dr. and Mrs. Charles M. Sewell Sr., of Cartersville. Mrs. J. W. Wesley, of Atlanta, and Miss Kathryn Sewell, of Cartersville, are her sisters, and Jack Sewell is an only brother. His mother, before her marriage, was Miss Rosa Lee Montgomery, of Cave Spring, and his father, a native of Alabama, has been a leading druggist and business executive in Cartersville for three decades.

Miss Whitaker, a graduate of Cartersville High school, completed her education at the University of Georgia, where she was a member of the Phi Mu society and rated one of the most popular coeds on the campus. Mr. Sewell attended Georgia Tech, after completing his studies at Cartersville, and received a degree in business administration. Later he studied pharmacy and is now a registered druggist and associated with his father in the operation of their business here.

The wedding, to be solemnized Thursday afternoon, January 4, at 5 o'clock, will be the outstanding social event of the New Year season in Cartersville.

Miss Dumas Weds Ernest L. Pelegrin

The marriage of Miss Sara Elizabeth Dumas, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Dumas, and Ernest L. Pelegrin, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Pelegrin, of New Orleans, La., was solemnized Saturday at 6 o'clock at the Calvary Baptist church, before an assembly of friends and relatives.

The church was decorated with ferns, chrysanthemums, and other fall flowers. Miss Leona Wood played the wedding music. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. G. C. Hinshelwood, pastor of the Grace Episcopal church, of Gainesville.

The junior bridesmaid was Miss Eda Embigh, daughter of Mrs. Ora Embigh, and the late Mr. Raymond Embigh, of Ardmore, Pa. Miss Embigh wore a street-length dress of wine velvet with matching hat, and black accessories. Her flowers were sweet peas and roses.

Mrs. Damon Hicks Jr. was matron of honor. She was gowned in a two-piece dress featuring black skirt and pale blue blouse, and matching blue velvet hat, with black accessories. She wore a cluster of pink rosebuds.

The bride entered the church alone. She was becomingly gowned in blue chiffon velvet, made with flaring skirt, and bustle bow. She wore a blue velvet hat with flowing snood. Her bouquet was red rosebuds, and lilies of the valley. The bride's only ornament was a diamond brooch. She was met at the altar by the groom and his best man, Damon Hicks Jr.

After the wedding, Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Gibson entertained at a buffet supper at their home on East Pace's Ferry road, honoring the bride and groom. Guests included the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Dumas, Mr. and Mrs. Damon Hicks Jr., Miss Leona Wood, Mrs. F. E. Kay, Rev. and Mrs. G. C. Hinshelwood, Paul Hinshelwood, of Gainesville, and Mr. and Mrs. Pelegrin. Mr. and Mrs. Gibson were assisted in entertaining by her daughter, Mrs. Ora Embigh, and Miss Eda Embigh.

Mr. and Mrs. Pelegrin are residing at 214 Hurt street, N. E.

Mrs. Giddings Named Garden Club Head

Mrs. Glenville Giddings was elected president of the Druid Hills Garden Club at the meeting held recently at the home of Mrs. Ralph Black on Oakdale road, with Mrs. W. B. Spann, co-hostess.

Elected to serve with her were Mesdames Joseph Read, vice president; W. B. Spann, treasurer, and R. J. Taylor Jr., secretary, and Dan Byrd, corresponding secretary.

Mrs. Henry Davis, retiring president, presided. Eighteen members were present and Mrs. John Black and Mrs. Bryan K. Vann were elected and welcomed into membership.

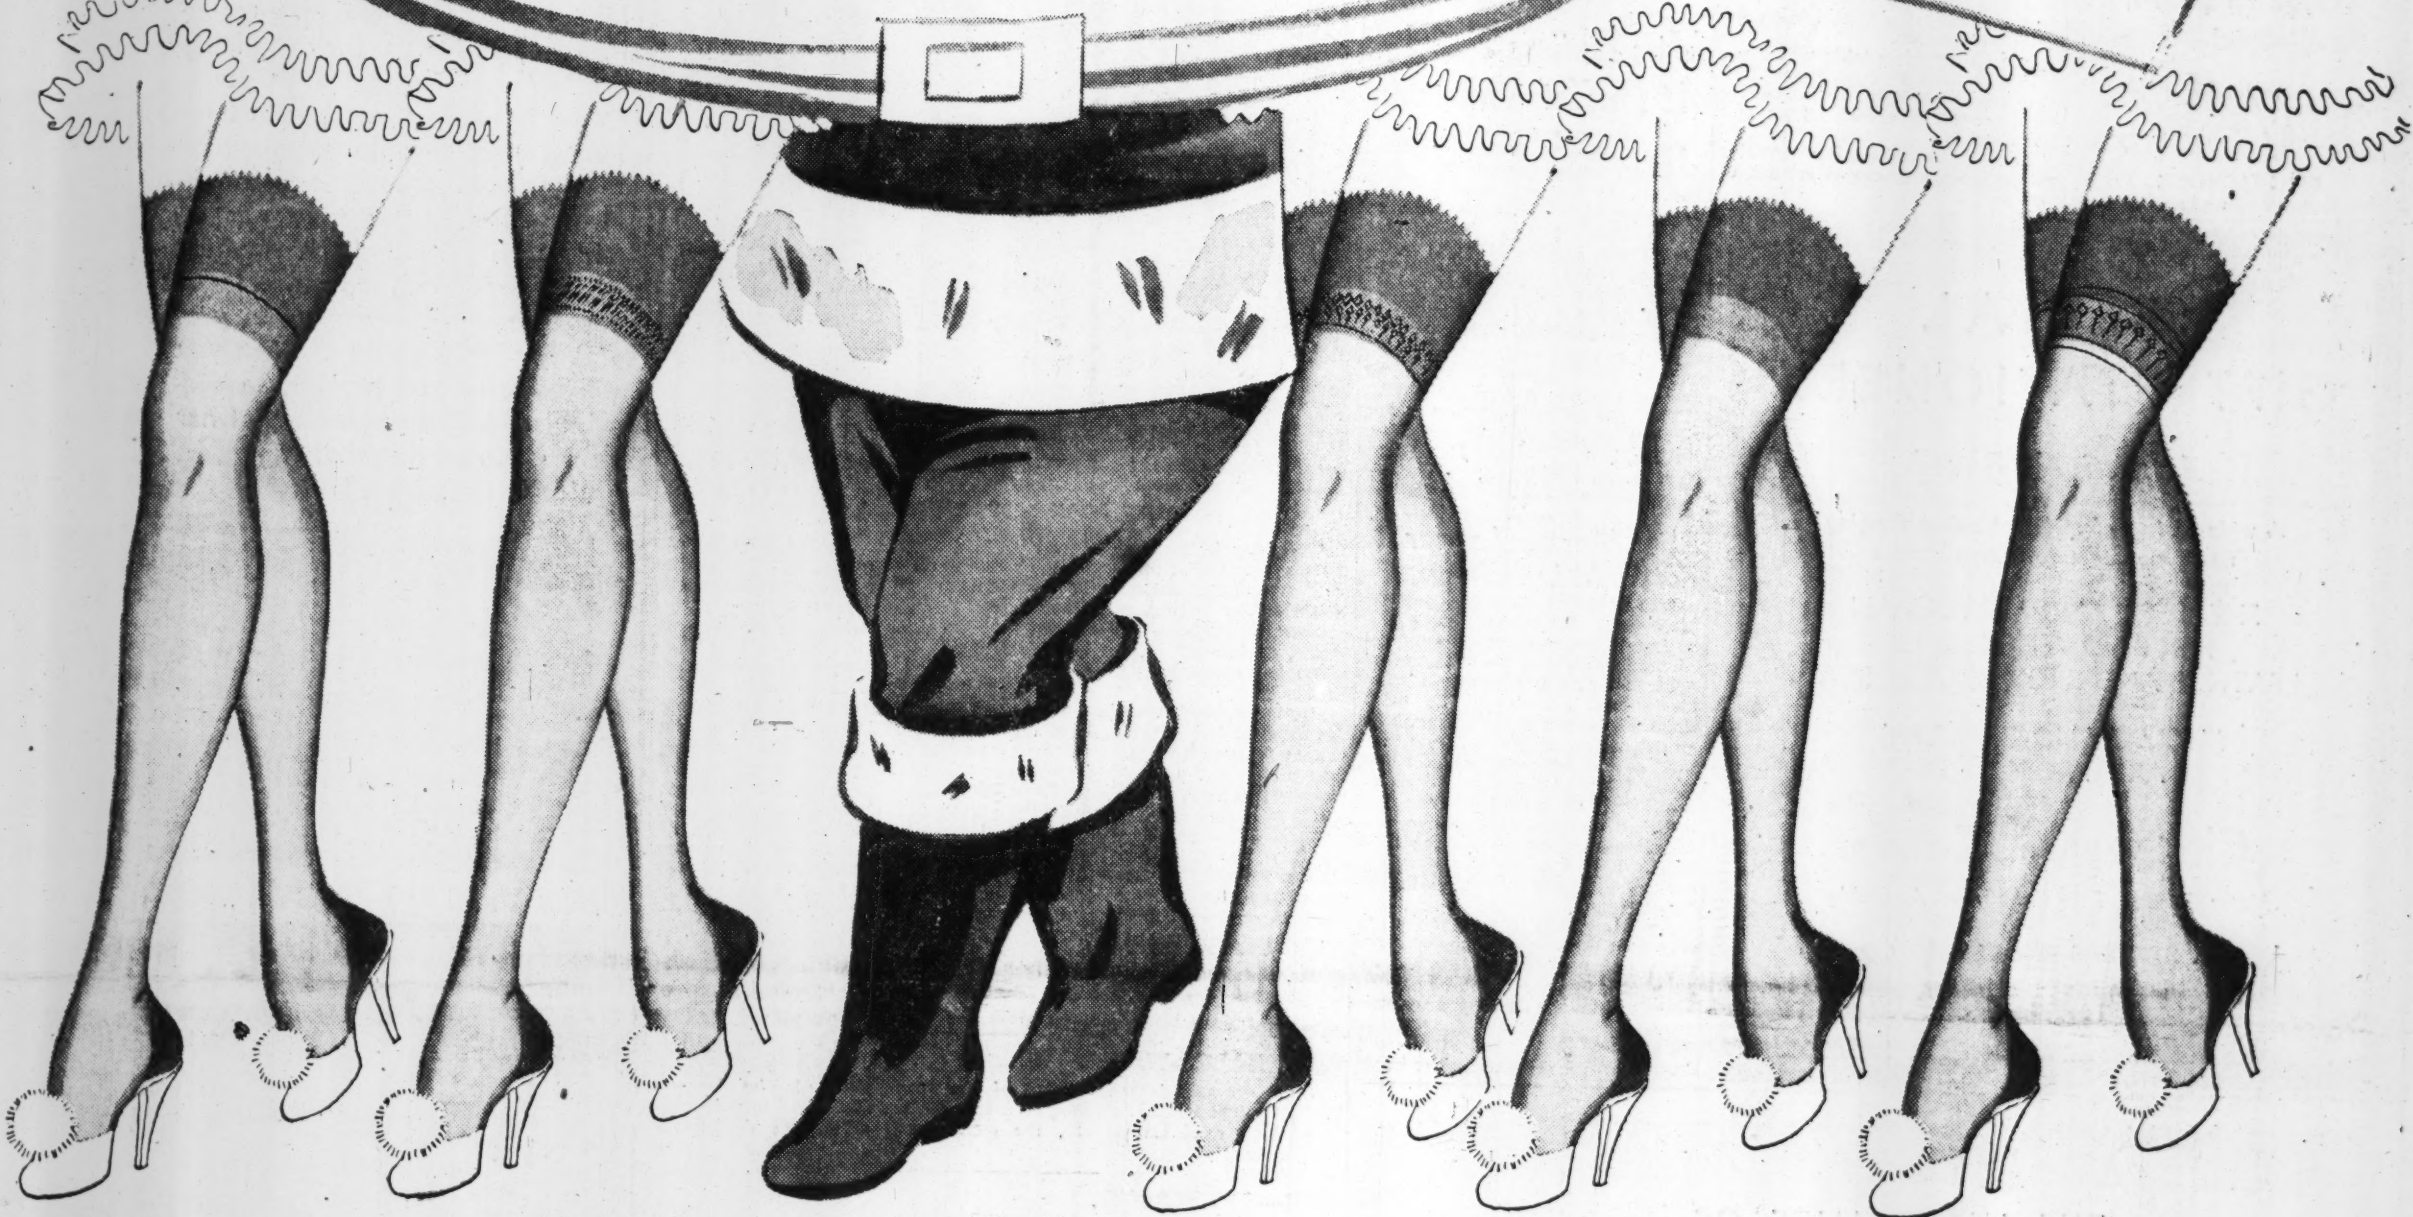

Mrs. Jeff McCord, club program chairman, presented Mrs. Dan Byrd, who was in charge of the program. The papers on roses were given by Mesdames J. J. Nicholson, Vernon Skyles and Charles LeRoux. Mrs. Davis and Mrs. John Harland spoke on English and Irish gardens. It was decided that the club would send individual pot plants to all patients at the Fort McPherson hospital as has been the custom for many years. This year they will be sent in the name of Mrs. Clyde L. King Sr., who has been ill for many months, and who has contributed largely to this activity, in past years.

Mr. Mrs. Kiser Fete Out-of-Town Visitors

Mr. and Mrs. William Kiser were hosts yesterday at a luncheon at their home on Pace's Ferry road honoring Mr. and Mrs. Richard Reynolds, of Winston-Salem, N. C.

Mr. and Mrs. Reynolds are guests of Mrs. William Healey Sr. at her home on Andrews drive, and were among prominent visitors attending the "Gone With the Wind" festivities.

The dining room table was overlaid with an imported linen cloth, and centered with an attractive arrangement of colorful fruit and red berries.

Invited to meet the popular guests were a group of friends of the hosts.

Brandon - Jarman Betrothal Announced

Interest centers in the announcement made today by Mrs. Robert M. Brandon of the engagement of her daughter, Miss Margaret Brandon, to Dr. William Dabney Jarman, of Washington, District of Columbia.

Miss Brandon attended Girls' High school and later received her A. B. degree and degree in music from Randolph-Macon College in Virginia, where she was also a member of the Alpha Omicron Pi sorority. She was on the faculty of Arlington hall, school for girls in Washington, after her graduation. She is the daughter of the late Robert M. Brandon and her only sister is Miss Marion Brandon.

Dr. Jarman is the son of Dr. Joseph L. Jarman, of Farmville, Va., president of the State Teachers' College. He graduated from Hampden-Sydney College and University of Virginia and received his degree in medicine at John Hopkins and University of Rochester. The marriage will be an event of February.

Miss Butters Fed At Buffet Luncheon

Miss Ruthanna Butters, popular debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Butters, was honored yesterday at a buffet luncheon at which Miss Medora Fitten and Miss Hilda McDonald were hostesses at the home of Miss Fitten on Peachtree road.

The buffet table in the dining room was overlaid with a handsome lace cloth and was centered with an arrangement of red roses and poinsettias in a silver bowl.

The attractive hostesses were assisted in entertaining by Mrs. Butters, Mrs. J. Turner Fitten and Mrs. A. H. McDonald.

Miss Martha Lamar Feted At Luncheon.

Miss Martha Lamar, popular bride-elect, was central figure yesterday at the beautifully appointed luncheon given by Miss Teresa Atkinson, at her home on Peachtree street. Miss Lamar's marriage to Joseph Morrison will be an interesting event of January.

A gay color motif of red and white featured the decorations of the luncheon table, which was centered with an attractive arrangement of red roses and valley lilies. Mrs. Charles D. Atkinson, aunt of the hostess, assisted in entertaining.

An interesting feature of the affair was the contribution of recipes which were bound into a book as a gift for the bride-elect. In addition to the luncheon guests, friends of the honor guest from all parts of the United States sent their favorite recipes for the book.

Miss Joan Wolfe To Become Bride Of Marcus Loeb Haas in February

MISS JOAN LISSETTE WOLFE.

Attracting widespread interest is the announcement made today by Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Bernard Wolfe of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Joan Lissette Wolfe, to Marcus Loeb Haas, the marriage to be a brilliant event of February.

The bride-elect, who is the only daughter of her parents, is of the brunet type of beauty, with wavy brown hair and possessing a vivacious personality. She is a graduate of Girls' High school and attended Maryland College for Women in Lutherville, Md. Her mother is the former Miss Hertha Casper, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Sam Casper, prominent Albany citizens. Miss Wolfe's paternal grandparents are the late Mr. and Mrs. Henry Wolfe, of this city.

Mr. Haas is the son of Mr. and Mrs. E. Arthur Haas, of this city, and his only brother is Jacob Haas. The groom-elect's mother is the former Miss Viola Loeb, the daughter of Mrs. Marcus Loeb and the late Mr. Loeb. His paternal grandparents are the late Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Haas. He is a graduate of Boys' High school and Harvard University in Cambridge, Mass. At present he is associated in business with Beer & Company, members of the New York Stock Exchange.

PRIDE OF

OWNERSHIP

Every girl cherishes that charming token of betrothal, her diamond engagement ring. But there are girls—true blue their adorable kind—who never had an engagement ring though their wedding day be long since passed; they sacrificed willingly a joy dear to their inmost heart because they thought first of the future of the men they loved. Perhaps you were one of those who permitted the sacrifice—at a time when it seemed inadvisable or even impossible to provide her heart's desire. Then you will wish, as you prosper, to surprise her with a ring worthy of her devotion... a ring that engenders "pride of ownership."

Miss Katharine Pattillo Weds Fred White Jr. at Church Rites

MRS. FRED HENRY WHITE JR.

Of wide social interest in North Carolina and Georgia is the announcement made today by Mrs. Emory Moss Pattillo, of the marriage of her daughter, Miss Katharine Milledge Pattillo, to Fred Henry White Jr., of Charlotte, N. C., and Atlanta, which took place yesterday at high noon at St. Philip's cathedral, Dean Raimundo de Oviés officiated with only the immediate families present.

The bride, an attractive brunette, wore a stunning dress suit of dark green wool with a chubby Gumbo fur jacket. Her accessories were of beige and brown and her flowers were a corsage of deep purple orchids and lilies of the valley. Completing her costume was a beautiful pearl pin which first was worn by the bride's great-grandmother, the late Mrs. Rebecca Habersham, of Savannah, Ga.

Mrs. White is the only daughter of Mrs. Emory Moss Pattillo. Her mother was before her marriage Rosa Lamar Milledge, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Richard Habersham Milledge. On her paternal side her grandparents are the late Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Pattillo. Her only brother is Emory Moss Pattillo, of Atlanta. Although the bride's family was originally from Georgia, she spent the first years of her life in Charlotte, N. C., and Chattanooga, Tenn. Since moving to Atlanta five years ago she has made many friends here and has been an admired member of the younger set.

The bride received her high school education at Columbia Institute, Columbia, Tenn., and at Decatur Girls' High school. Her college education was received at the University of Georgia, where she was a member of the Chi Omega social sorority and outstanding in student activities.

Mr. White is the only son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred H. White Sr., of Charlotte, N. C. His mother is the former Ethel Stevenson, of Mooresville, N. C., daughter of the late Dr. and Mrs. Samuel W. Stevenson. On his paternal side he is the grandson of the late Mr. and Mrs. Frank L. White, of Saco, Maine.

The groom received his education at McCallie School for Boys and the Blue Ridge school, Hendersonville, N. C. He is connected in business with the Abbington Textile Machinery Company, with headquarters in Atlanta.

After an extended wedding trip through the east the couple will return here for residence and will be prominent additions to the young married contingent.

Whitener-Buice Wedding Plans

The marriage of Miss Bo Whitener, of Winder and Buford, to Luther Buice, of Winder, will take place on December 24 at 5:30 o'clock. The ceremony will be performed by the bride-elect's father, Rev. H. C. Whitener, in the First Baptist church of Buford.

Miss Whitener has chosen as her maid of honor her only sister, Miss Clarice Whitener, of Buford. The bridesmaids will be Miss Tommie Hopkins, of Atlanta, cousin of the bride-elect; Miss Margaret Buice, of East Point; and Miss Cary Wheeler, of Athens, Ga., and LaFayette, Ala. She will be given in marriage by her brother, Horace Whitener.

Mr. Buice has chosen his brother, R. Lee Buice, of Roswell, as best man. The groomsmen will be Creighton Perry, of Butler, Pa.; Paul Buice, of Suwanee, and Dyar Massey, of Athens. Bob Norman, of Athens, and Grady Archer, of Atlanta, will act as ushers.

The music will be rendered by Miss Daisy Shadburn, organist of the Buford Baptist church, and Paris Lee, of Atlanta, cousin of Mr. Buice, will sing.

The candles will be lighted by Miss Alpha Buice, of Buford.

Miss Frances Adams Weds Mr. Belcher.

Mrs. J. M. Shaw, of Atlanta, announces the marriage of her niece, Miss Frances Adams, of Atlanta, to William Belcher, of Atlanta, the ceremony having been performed on October 11 in Marietta, Ga. Mrs. Belcher is the daughter of Jim Adams, of Lithia Springs, and the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ira Gunter, of Indian Creek drive.

Mr. Belcher is the only son of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Belcher. The bride and groom will reside with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Belcher, at 1382 Hartford avenue, S. W., in Atlanta.

Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Plan Open House.

Among festivities highlighting the Christmas season will be the open house at which Mr. and Mrs. Walter B. Stewart will entertain on Wednesday, December 27. The affair will be held from 5 to 9 o'clock. Guests will include members of the Men's Burns Club, and Ladies' Burns Club.

Assisting in entertaining will be Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Howell, Dr. and Mrs. Robert Latta, Dr. and Mrs. W. F. Melton, and Dr. and Mrs. Carl Pitman.

Mrs. Frances Weinman Latimer and her small daughter, Cary Latimer.

The spirit of Christmas has entered the homes of Atlantans with all the enthusiasm and gaiety of the season, and beautiful homes throughout the city will be gay with Yuletide decorations. Atlanta matrons are noted for their artistic arrangement of Christmas decorations, and on this page today are two prominent matrons, Mrs. Beverly DuBose Jr., and Mrs. English Robinson, adding to the beauty of their home with the holiday adornment, while Mrs. Frances Weinman Latimer and her daughter, Cary, find time before Santa Claus arrives to tie exciting looking packages to carry out the admonition, "It is more blessed to give than to receive."

College Belles and Beaux Arrive To Spend Christmas

By Sally Forth.

NOW that the debut of "Gone With the Wind" is past, and the great Junior League ball is over, society's attention turns with anticipation to the Yule season and its accompanying festivities. And, of course, the high light of Christmas is the home-coming of a throng of attractive college belles and beaux, whose presence never fails to enliven the social calendar.

Already brightly colored Christmas cards crowd the mails, heralding that day of all days, December 25. And throughout the country excited tots are scribbling notes to Santa Claus. To Sally, however, the arrival of the college students is the brightest event of the week.

Barbara Indell and Jeannette Estes, Atlanta's only two students enrolled at National Park College in Washington, D. C., this year, arrived yesterday. The former will visit her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Indell, at their attractive new home on Vermont road, while the latter will be the guest of her parents, Dr. and Mrs. Grady Estes.

An interesting social affair planned for next Friday is the breakfast at which Barbara will entertain in compliment to a group of debutantes, including Josephine Sanders, Beck and Selma Wight, Elizabeth Groves and Mary Virginia McConnell.

Other Atlantans attending school in the national capital are Martha Merritt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Hynds; Helen Randall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Luther Randall; and Martha Blacklock, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Blacklock, who are popular students at Mount Vernon Seminary. The sub-debs will arrive on Wednesday and will enjoy their customary popularity at parties throughout the yule season.

Attractive Patty Irwin arrived yesterday from King-Smith Studio, in Washington, to spend the holidays with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Harvey Irwin.

Dorothy See, daughter of the Howard Sees, arrived Thursday from St. Mary's College, in Raleigh, N. C., in time to be maid of honor in the marriage of her sister, Elizabeth, to Lee Shackelford, of Wilmington, Del., which was an important social event of Friday evening. The bride's cousin, Carroll See, who served as bridesmaid in the wedding, arrived Wednesday from Stephens College, in Columbia, Mo. She was accompanied by her roommate, Emily Benton, of Savannah, who will spend several days as her guest.

Another visiting student from Stephens College is Margaret Landers, who arrived Thursday to spend the holidays with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Silvey L. Landers.

Josephine McDougall, who attends Gunston Hall, in Washington, D. C., will make her appearance here on Wednesday, and will be a sought-after figure attending the whirl of Christmas parties.

A host of belles enrolled at Virginia colleges are spending the holidays here, including Margaretta Black, attractive daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Peters Black, who arrives today from St. Catherine's School, in Richmond, to visit her parents.

Mary Carter, who is enrolled at Sweet Briar College, in Sweet Briar, Va., will make her much anticipated appearance today to spend the holidays with her parents, the Frank Carters.

Emily Anderson, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. W. W. Anderson, returned Thursday from Lynchburg, where she attends Randolph-Macon College, to visit her parents, and to attend the social affairs attendant upon Christmas.

Martha Frances Salter, of Sulphur College, in Virginia, has as her week-end visitor attractive Peggy Smith, of Concord. The pair will be admired figures attending the many informal social affairs highlighting the week-end.

Marion Knowles arrived yesterday from Temple School, in New York, to spend the holidays with her parents, the Clarence Knowles. The attractive sub-deb will doubtless attend a number of parties honoring her debutante sister, Constance, during her visit here.

Returning for the holidays from the University of Georgia are Polly Harris, Rannie Geisler, Jessie Ruffin, Anne Garrett, Alina Cooke, Peggy Matthews, Sara Jarvis and Elizabeth Wheeler, who will be the guests of their parents during the gala yule season.

Returning from sunny Florida, where she attends Stetson University, popular Caroline Aycock arrived Friday to be the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Aycock, at their Pine Valley road residence.

Margaret Peavy arrived Thursday from Baton Rouge, La., where she is enrolled at L. S. U., to spend the Christmas season with her parents, the Mercer Pooles.

Attractive Nancy Schwab, who was scheduled to make her debut this season, but preferred to resume her studies at Vassar College, in Poughkeepsie, N. Y., arrives Friday to visit her parents, the Robert Schwabs, at their residence on Habersham road.

Sara Matthews and her brother, Byron Jr., popular students at the state university in Athens, are the holiday guests of their parents, the Byron Matthews, and will be attractive additions to parties heralding the Christmas season.

Louis Johnson, son of Mrs. Edwin Johnson, and a student at Yale University, is a sought-after escort spending the Christmas holidays in this city.

A host of other swains are also scheduled to spend the yule season here, many of whom have already arrived. George Austin, of Auburn University, in Auburn, Ala., is the guest of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Austin, while Archie Ragan, who attends Yale University, and his brother, James Ragan Jr., of Johns Hopkins University, in Baltimore, Md., will arrive next week end to visit their parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Ragan, in Ansley Park.

Dean Spratlin and Wilmer Dutton Jr., who are attending school at Dartmouth, in Hanover, N. H., will arrive next Friday to participate in the round of festivities planned for the holidays.

Charles Benson arrived yesterday from Princeton University and is the guest of his parents, Dr. and Mrs. Marion Benson, at their Druid Hills residence. Also arriving yesterday from Princeton was Frank Bagley, son of Mrs. H. C. Bagley, who will be the guest of his mother at her Pine Valley road home until the new year.

A GORGEOUS blue-white diamond set in a square mounting and surrounded by smaller diamonds seals the betrothal of Joan Wolfe and Marcus Haas, which is announced today by the bride-elect's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Bernard Wolfe.

Much sentiment is attached to the stone, for it was presented 31 years ago by Marcus' father, E. Arthur Haas, to his bride, the former Miss Viola Loeb, on the occasion of their engagement announcement.

The marriage of this popular couple will take place in February at an impressive double-ring ceremony, at which time the charming bride-elect will present to her respective groom the wedding ring worn by her maternal grandfather, the late Marcus Loeb.

Though she forsook her college career for a professional one she has again changed her mind and will tread the orange blossom trail at an early date with a popular Atlantian. The belle in question possesses brown hair and blue eyes and is noted for her friendly disposition. She is a graduate of North Fulton High school and attended the University of Georgia, where she was a member of the Kappa Alpha Theta sorority.

Her fiancé is equally as attractive as she, and many hearts will grieve when they learn of his betrothal. To furnish any more clues would make guessing far too easy.

THAT popular member of Atlanta society, Louisa Robert, who spent the past several months at her home at Sea Island, has returned to Atlanta and Sally hears that she will be here permanently. For she has embarked upon a business career. Louisa has been missed from the many social affairs during the season, and her return here is of much interest to a host of friends.

HONORS continue to be given talented Atlanta girls who are attending college, and today the laurel wreath goes to Marjorie Wright.

Marjorie is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Walter Wright, of 3729 Peachtree road, and is attending Stephens College for her first year. She has been named on the honor role of the school, where she is majoring in the homemaker's course and is also taking piano and French. She is a graduate of Washington Seminary, where she was a member of the O. B. X. Club.

Mr. & Mrs. Thornton Honor Visitors

Mr. and Mrs. Albert E. Thornton entertained at a dinner party last evening at their Pace's Ferry road residence in compliment to Mrs. Willard C. Averill, of Houston, Texas, guest of Dr. and Mrs. Phinizy Calhoun and Mr. and Mrs. Richard J. Reynolds, of Winston-Salem, N. C., who are visiting Mrs. William T. Healey.

The exquisitely appointed table was covered with point de Venice lace cloth, and an antique silver and crystal epergne filled with silvered flowers, beautified the center. Silver candelabra held silver tapers and silver compotes were filled with bonbons.

Mrs. Thornton was gowned in black net, posed over black satin, and trimmed with sequins. She wore a cluster of gardenias on her shoulder.

Key—Elmore.

NEWMAN, Ga., Dec. 16.—The marriage of Mrs. Clara Key, of Newman, to John Elmore, of Senoia, took place at a late afternoon ceremony on December 9.

Reverend C. M. Thomas officiated at the marriage in his study at the First Baptist parsonage in Newman. The attractive bride wore a crepe dress in shades of moss green and accessories to match.

Mrs. Elmore is the oldest daughter of Mrs. Alice Spratlin, of Newman, her sisters are Mrs. Leon Moore, of Cleveland, Ohio, and Mrs. Rachel Spratlin, of Newman, and her brother is J. D. Spratlin, of Atlanta; for the past 14 years she has been a valued employee of the Southern Bell Telephone Company in Newman.

Mr. Elmore is the only son of Mr. and Mrs. Giles Elmore, of Senoia; his sisters are Mrs. Ruth Sykes, of Senoia, and Mrs. Joe Rowland Young, of Bexton. The groom is employed by the Dixie Freight Lines of Atlanta.

Following their wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Elmore are making their home in Newman.

Of important social interest due to the prominence of the two families and the popularity of the young couple is the announcement made today by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Clarke Willis, of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Virginia Willis, to Alvin Bingham Cates Jr. The marriage will be one of the outstanding social events of the late winter and takes place in January, the date to be announced later. The bride-elect on both maternal and paternal sides, is a representative of families prominently identified in the social and cultural up-building of the south. She is the younger daughter of her parents, and is a sister of Mrs. E. Dargan Cole, Charles Willis and Walter

Miss Elizabeth G. Thompson Becomes Bride of Mr. Bowers

SEA ISLAND, Ga., Dec. 16.—Miss Elizabeth Greville Thompson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Seymour Thompson, of Atlanta, was married here this afternoon at 4:30 o'clock at Christ Episcopal church, Frederica, to J. Foster Bowers, son of Mrs. William C. Bowers, of New York, and the late Mr. Bowers. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. J. Sullivan Bond, in the presence of immediate families and a very small group of friends.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a traveling suit of Norwegian blue woolen with slightly flaring skirt and fitted jacket. Bands of blue fox edged the jacket scarf and matched the broad blue fox collar of the full-length coat she donned for traveling. Her off-the-face hat was of felt exactly matching the suit and other accessories were brown. A spray of large bronze-throated yellow orchids adorned the brown purse she carried.

Mrs. Daniel Edwards Conklin, of Atlanta, was the bride's only attendant. She was modishly gowned in a Germaine Montell model of rust-colored crepe, with a draped scarf and fullness introduced in the skirt by a graceful fan-shaped panel. Her hat and accessories were brown, and she carried a small bouquet of gerbera shading from ivory to flame, arranged simply and tied with dull brown taffeta ribbon. Stewart W. Bowers, of Seaside, served as best man for his brother, and the bride's brother, C. Seymour Thompson Jr., of Atlanta.

At Sea Island especially for the wedding were Mrs. William C. Bowers; Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Bowers; the bridegroom's aunt, Mrs. Frances S. Colt, of New York; the bride's grandmother, Mrs. S. J. Simms, and her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph L. Turner, of McDonough, Ga.; Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Edwards Conklin, of Atlanta.

Immediately following the ceremony the bride's parents entertained the families and few friends very informally at the attractive house they are occupying at Sea Island. Earlier in the day Mr. and Mrs. Alfred W. Jones were hosts at a buffet luncheon at Runnymede Light, their Sea Island home, honoring the couple.

Following a wedding trip to Nassau, Mr. and Mrs. Bowers will reside in New York.

for wearing her clothes. She is a member of the current Debutante Club and has been an admired and feted figure during the season.

The groom-elect is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Bingham Cates, and the brother of Miss Sarah Cates. His mother was the former Miss Fay Shutze, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Philip Trammell Shutze, of Columbus, Ga.; and his father, the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Mayfield Cates. Mr. Cates, attended Marist and graduated from McCallie school and Georgia Tech, where he was a member of the Chi Phi fraternity. He is a member of the Piedmont Driving Club, Capital City Club, and the Nine O'Clocks. Like his bride-elect, Mr. Cates is one of the most popular members of Atlanta society.

Miss Hilda Mae Robey Marries Mr. Callaway at Church Ceremony

The marriage of Miss Hilda Mae Robey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Garnett C. Robey, and John Royal Callaway, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. I. Callaway, was brilliantly solemnized last evening at 8 o'clock at the Druid Hills Baptist church. Rev. L. E. Smith and Dr. Louie D. Newton performed the ceremony before an assemblage of friends and relatives of the bridal couple. Dr. T. G. Fowler presented a program of music.

The altar of the church was banked with a profusion of palms and ferns interspersed with seven-branched candelabra holding burning white tapers. Large floor standards filled with white chrysanthemums completed the decorations.

The pews reserved for members of the families were marked with clusters of white chrysanthemums tied with white satin ribbons.

Ushers were E. I. Callaway and W. S. Callaway. The groomsmen included Wiley L. Moore Jr., Joe Stradley, Candler Jones, Howard Overby, Jack Friedrich, Olin Barfield Jr. and Alf Bunch.

Mrs. R. S. Kerr, sister of the groom, was matron of honor, and Miss Ruth Robey, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. They wore heavenly blue cord lace and tulle gowns which featured bodices of lace with sweetheart necklines and the new lowered hip lines. They carried bouquets of American Beauty roses.

The bridesmaids, who included Misses Margaret Richards, Helen Simpson, Dorothy Merryman, Mable York, Catherine Goodwyn and Dorothy Skelton, wore American Beauty colored gowns designed like those worn by the other attendants. Their flowers were bouquets of white chrysanthemums.

The bride's attendants wore gold and mother of pearl pins which were gifts of the bride.

The flower girls were Ellen Gunn and Jo-Ann Cota. They wore gowns of heavenly blue net designed with a shirred bodice and full swirling skirts. On the full puff sleeves and skirts small American Beauty colored bows were effectively used.

Their only ornaments were gold lockets inlaid with mother of pearl which were gifts of the bride.

The lovely bride entered with her father, by whom she was given in marriage. They were met at the altar by the groom and his brother, Raymond Reed Callaway, who was best man. She was gown in a beautiful model of frost white duchess satin.

The shirred bodice featured a sweetheart neckline and long-fitting sleeves gathered at the shoulders. Her full skirt was designed with unpressed pleats and fell into a graceful train in back. The beautiful illusion veil was caught

Mrs. Netherland Heads Auxiliary

Mrs. P. V. Netherland was named president of the Woman's Auxiliary of the International Association of Firefighters, Local No. 1, at the recent meeting, with Mrs. A. B. Valentine, president, presiding.

Others elected were Mesdames D. M. White, first vice president; Roy Turner, second vice president; A. V. Dodd, secretary, and Grady Crossley, treasurer.

One hundred dolls given by the auxiliary were on display. They were turned over to Mrs. Clarence Bradley and Mrs. Robert Cobb Jr., of the Woman's Chamber of Commerce doll project. Mrs. J. V. Carter reported plans were complete for the annual Christmas tree and party for auxiliary members, their families and members of Local 134 on Thursday at 7:30 o'clock in Sterchi's clubroom. Each person is requested to bring a small wrapped gift to be placed on the tree for an exchange of gifts.

In charge of entertainment and decorations are Mesdames J. V. Carter, Grady Crossley, L. P. Talton, R. C. Strickland and E. A. Vaughn. The nomination committee presented each retiring officer with a gift from the auxiliary in appreciation of her work for the past year.

to her hair by a coronet of orange blossoms and she carried a bouquet of white orchids and valley lilies.

Mrs. Robey, mother of the bride, wore a gown of wine-colored net embellished with velvet flowers. A shoulder bouquet of orchids completed her costume. Mrs. Callaway, mother of the groom, chose for the auspicious occasion a grape-colored velvet gown with which she wore a shoulder spray of orchids.

Mr. Callaway and his bride left for a wedding trip to Florida, after which they will reside in Raleigh, N. C., where the groom is affiliated in business.

Mrs. Callaway chose for traveling a viking blue woolen dress which featured a matching jacket. Black accessories and a shoulder bouquet of white orchids completed her ensemble.

Miss Neale Martin, of Arkansas, Marries George Nolan Bearden

MRS. GEORGE NOLAN BEARDEN.

PINE BLUFF, Ark., Dec. 16.—The marriage of Miss Neale Martin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Neale Martin, and George Nolan Bearden, of Los Angeles, Cal., son of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Aaron Bearden, of Madison, Ga., was solemnized this evening at 8:30 o'clock at a brilliant ceremony at Trinity Episcopal church. Rev. John Williamson, dean of the Episcopal cathedral in Little Rock, Ark., performed the impressive ceremony before a large and fashionable gathering of friends and relatives of the couple. Jack Eisenkramer, organist, presented a program of music.

The altar of white Carrara marble was lighted by white tapers in gold cathedral candelabra flanked on either side by blue delphinium in gold vases. Palms and smilax formed the background for the silver baskets of blue delphinium which were arranged in graduated heights on either side of the altar. White tapers garlanded in southern smilax in seven-branched candelabra were placed between each basket of delphinium. Adam B. Robinson III and William Toler Shepherd served as acolytes and Curran Nichol Jr. was cross-bearer.

Judge W. Bearden, of Detroit, Mich., was his brother's best man, and ushers were Clark W. Bearden, of Cleveland, Ohio, brother of the groom, Fuller E. Callaway, of LaGrange, Ga., Richard Holmes Banks, of Fordyce, Ark.; Horace W. Holmes, of Los Angeles, Cal.; William R. Felton, of Chicago, and Walter Troutman, of Atlanta, Ga.

Mrs. Royce Overton Johnson, of St. Louis, Mo., sister of the bride, was matron of honor, and Miss Frances Bearden, of Los Angeles, Cal., sister of the groom, and Misses Claralie Knox, Clair Tovey, Catherine Ann Shepherd and Margaret Robinson, all of Pine Bluff, Ark., were bridesmaids. They wore copies of Balenciago models of Alix blue velvet designed with low waist lines with classic draping and bustle effects in back. They wore silver mesh snoods and brilliant clips at the low necklines of their gowns, gifts of the bride, and they carried Colonial bouquets of American Beauty roses made with a ruffle of silver maline around the edges.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a magnolia colored satin gown. The long waistline was relieved by shirring and caught in a cord-like stitching down the front of the waist. Classic draping formed the bustle back, emphasizing the low waistline, and extended into a long, sweeping train. The veil of bridal illusion was caught to her hair with a bandeau of orange blossoms. She carried a white satin prayer book showered with lilies of the valley and white orchids. Her only ornament was a single strand of pearls.

After the ceremony, the bridal party, out-of-town guests and members of the immediate families were honored with a reception at the home of the bride's parents. The dining room table was overlaid with a white lace cloth and centered with a three-tiered wedding cake embossed in green and white topped with a Colonial bouquet of white flowers.

Mrs. Martin, mother of the bride, wore for the occasion a black crepe frock trimmed with chantilly lace. A shoulder bouquet of orchids completed her costume. After the reception the couple left for a wedding trip in the east. For traveling the bride wore a two-piece suit of moss green tweed. A matching hat and a shoulder bouquet of yellow orchids completed her costume. After February 1 Mr. and Mrs. Bearden will reside in Los Angeles.

Out-of-town guests present at the wedding were Mrs. Judge W. Bearden, of Detroit, Mich.; Mrs. Fuller E. Callaway, of LaGrange, Ga.; Mr. and Mrs. William T. Young, of Indianapolis, Ind.; Mr. and Mrs. William T. Young Jr., of New York city; Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Davis and Mrs. Charles A. Harwood Jr., all of Dayton; Mr. and Mrs. William Bond, John Bond, Miss Jo-Tucker, Mr. and Mrs. Tappan Horner and William Crooks, of Little Rock, Ark.; Ernest Fleming, of Los Angeles, Cal., and Robert Troutman, of Atlanta, Georgia.

The Sigma Delta Chi sorority will entertain at a Christmas dance on Tuesday evening at the West End Woman's Club.

The officers of the sorority are: President, Miss Vivian Plaatje; vice president, Miss Norma Vance; secretary, Mrs. Ann Mangum; treasurer, Miss Helen Sears; scribe, Miss Daisy Purcell; and sergeant at arms, Miss Helen Winslett.

Members of the sorority are: Misses Mildred Bales, Mary Brady, Frances Copeland, June Hunt, Dorothy Martin, Daisy Purcell, Vivian Plaatje, Sibbie Pemberton, Majorie Paris, Louise Nunnalee, Peggy Simpson, Sara Stone, Lena Seabott, Miriam Seabott, Lorraine Stevens, Frances Wade, Elaine Webb, Helen Winslett, Helen Sears, Norma Vance, Anne Vance and Mesdames Roy Collins, Bob Mangum and Bob Townley.

Garden Hills Group Holds Meeting.

Garden division of the Garden Hills Woman's Club met recently with Mrs. Pauline Hoover, 258 East Wesley road. Mrs. Eugene Harrington's talk on "Decorating the Home for Christmas" was very interesting.

Mrs. Harrington judged the arrangements brought by the members, awarding the blue ribbon to Mrs. Lloyd Tilghman for a buffet arrangement, the red to Mrs. W. J. Greene for an end table arrangement and the white to Mrs. Lamar Partee for a cocktail table arrangement. Mrs. Tilghman's blue ribbon winner will be on display in the Garden Center next week.

Mrs. J. R. Smith was welcomed as a new member. Visitors were Mesdames Gordon Elliott, Forrest L. Douglas, Hubert Snyder and John Butler.

Twenty-Five Club.

The Twenty-Five Club will hold its annual Christmas party Monday at 8 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Louise Lindsey at 1070 Hemphill avenue, N. W. At this time those who drew names in June will reveal the blue birds.

Mr., Mrs. A.S. Clay Compliment Visitors

Among elaborate affairs of yesterday was the cocktail party at which Mr. and Mrs. A. Steve Clay were hosts at the Piedmont Driving Club.

The party was given in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Suhr, of Cleveland, Ohio, and Marietta, and their guests, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Churchill, of New York, and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bering and Mr. and Mrs. William J. Sinek, of Chicago. Invited to meet the visitors were a group of friends of the hosts.

The buffet table in the ballroom was overlaid with a white linen cloth and centered with a silver bowl filled with yellow and bronze chrysanthemums. Flanking the crystal decoration were silver candelabra holding burning yellow tapers.

The mantle in the drawing room was centered with a blue and silver Madonna, and silver Christmas trees tied with blue and silver ribbon, graced the ends of the mantel-piece which was outlined with smilax. Seven-branched silver candelabra held gleaming white tapers, and were placed between the Madonna and Christmas trees.

Mrs. Bivings was born and reared at Woodside, her plantation home at Bell Mina, Ala., which belongs to her father, 82-year-old John Robert Witt, who was a distinguished guest at the party. When he motored to Atlanta, Mr. Witt brought a group of colored people living on his plantation, and they sang Christmas carols to the delight of Dr. and Mrs. Bivings' guests.

The hostess wore a blue and silver lame gown, and Dr. and Mrs. Bivings were assisted in entertaining by Mr. and Mrs. George Graham, Dr. and Mrs. W. Troy Bivings, Dr. and Mrs. W. John Fitts, Dr. and Mrs. Augustus Loyless, Dr. and Mrs. Fred J. Messick.

Reid, J. B. Hamilton Jr., H. L. Gibson and H. B. Roth.

After the wedding rehearsal on Friday evening, Mr. and Mrs. Escott will be hostesses at a buffet supper, assembling the members of the wedding personnel, families and a few close friends.

Dr. and Mrs. Lee Bivings Hold Their Annual Christmas Party

Dr. and Mrs. Lee Bivings entertained yesterday at their annual open house at their Habersham road residence. Decorations suggestive of the Christmas season beautified the lace-covered table in the dining room. Red roses and white freezias, artistically arranged in an antique silver tureen, adorned the center of the table, and silver candelabra held white tapers.

MRS. JOHN BRADFORD SANFORD.

PELHAM MANOR, NEW YORK, Dec. 16.—Red and white flowers with tall white candles around the altar decorated Christ church here for the fashionable wedding this evening of Miss Nancy Greer Bradley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Lambert Bradley, of this city, to John Bradford Sanford, son of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Sanford, of Atlanta, Ga. The pastor, Rev. Edward Thomas Taggard, assisted by the Rev. Joseph B. Williams, officiated at 8:30 o'clock.

Mr. Bradley escorted his daughter down the aisle and gave her in marriage. The bride wore a white satin gown, fashioned along princess lines, with a round neckline, long sleeves and a very full skirt. She wore a tulle veil underneath an unusual disc hat of tulle which rested over one eye and had no brim. She carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley and white orchids with purple tips.

Mrs. George B. Swayne, of Pelham, was her sister's matron of honor. Bridesmaids were the Misses Ruth Ingalls, Elizabeth Austin, Louise Bristol, Elinor Scott, all of Pelham; Dorothy Sanford, of Atlanta, sister of the bridegroom, and Virginia Little, of Hartford, Conn. The attendants were dressed alike in red velvet gowns, very simply designed, with heart-shaped necklines, short puffed sleeves and full skirts. They wore red velvet disc hats similar to the bride's headdress and carried red velvet muffs centered with gardenias.

Albert B. Baker Jr., of Pelham, attended Mr. Sanford as best man. The ushers included Peter Bradley, brother of the bride; Richard Passmore, Scarsdale; William Merritt, William Daniels, Willard Chandler Smith, all of Atlanta, and George Cooper, of New York city.

A reception followed at the Pelham Country Club. Mrs. Bradley was gown in a blue crepe dress embroidered with silver sequins. She wore a blue hat and a cluster of purple orchids. The bridegroom's mother wore a black net dress with a white orchid and wore no hat.

The couple left on an unannounced wedding trip, the bride traveling in a black silk dress with a gray kid skin fur coat, hat and muff. They will return to spend Christmas here with the Bradley family. After the first of the year Mr. Sanford and his bride will be at home at Peachtree road, Atlanta.

Miss Virginia Weldon entertained yesterday afternoon at a lingerie shower at her home on Seminole avenue honoring Miss Fabie McLucas, bride-elect.

The home was decorated in blue and silver with blue lights reflected through the pines over the mantel and silver bells were suspended from the chandelier.

The gifts were presented in a ruffled umbrella by Marguerite McDaniel.

Assisting in entertaining were Miss Alma Hodnett and Mrs. T. M. Thompson.

Present were: Misses Grace Minter, Doris Stephens, Lillian Baggett, Blanche Calloway, Catherine Lasseter, Eloise Gill, Marguerite Woolsey, Virginia McLucas, Mesdames Frances Beam, Anne Tuell, J. L. Lasseter, J. V. Lasseter, Ray Moore, Clark Huie, E. B. Tarpley, D. A. McLucas, W. P. Yarborough, George Straun, W. R. Camp and W. W. Mask.

Miss Yarbrough

Will Wed Mr. Hines

MACON, Ga., Dec. 16.—Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Search Yarbrough, of Durham, N. C., announced at a party last evening in Durham the engagement of their daughter, Miss Cornelia Elliot Yarbrough, to Richard Kennon Hines, son of Mrs. R. K. Hines, of New York city, formerly of Macon, and the late Mr. Hines, of Macon.

Miss Yarbrough is a great-granddaughter of Jonathan Worth, governor of North Carolina during the Reconstruction Days. She was graduated from Duke University where she was a member of Kappa Delta sorority.

Mr. Hines is descended from distinguished lawyers on both sides of his family. His paternal great-grandfather, Richard Kennon Hines, was a distinguished lawyer of the Georgia bar in the mid-nineteenth century and author of several legal books. His maternal great-grandfather was Judge John W. C. Watson, a graduate of the first law class of the University of Virginia and a Confederate senator from Mississippi.

Mr. Hines was graduated from the Virginia Military Institute in 1926 and received a degree in law from the University of Virginia in 1929. He is a member of Kappa Alpha fraternity. He is counsel, secretary and a director of Vick Chemical Company. The wedding of Miss Yarbrough and Mr. Hines takes place on February 24, 1940.

Jackson-McCartney.

MANCHESTER, Ga., Dec. 16.—Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Jackson announce the marriage of their daughter, Marion, to Keeler McCartney, of Atlanta and Baton Rouge, La., on December 9, at the home of the bride on the Warm Springs highway, the Rev. J. W. Segars, pastor of the First Methodist church, of Manchester, performing the ceremony.

The bride's gown was of blue velvet, with which she wore black accessories.

Mrs. McCartney is the eldest child of her parents. She was first-honor graduate of Manchester High school in 1932. Mr. McCartney is a graduate in journalism of Louisiana State University. Mr. and Mrs. McCartney will reside in Atlanta.

Legion Auxiliary Christmas Plans Take Color and Spirit From Theme

By Mrs. L. M. Dwell, of Atlanta,
Publicity Director, American Legion Auxiliary.

American Legion Auxiliary Christmas activities take color and spirit from the inspiring theme of "Peace on Earth, Good Will to Men." The auxiliary is going into hospitals with gifts for every veteran; it is going into the homes of the disabled and needy with Christmas cheer; it is playing Santa Claus to children who otherwise might be forgotten, and in scores of ways is giving practical expression to the ideals of Christmas. Last year 94,654 hospitalized men were remembered, with $236,902.24 expended for this purpose. In addition, the families of 25,293 of these veterans were visited, their needs for a happy Christmas supplied, and word sent back to the hospitals so the veterans could have peace of mind about their families on Christmas.

The Georgia department is sending out greetings this year to approximately 1,400 hospitalized veterans, and will furnish this approximate number of Christmas boxes to these men. Annual Christmas parties will be sponsored by American Legion Auxiliary units throughout the state. Those furnished at the veterans' hospitals will be as follows: At Hospital No. 62, Augusta; Columbus, Eatonton and Hawkinsville units; at Hospital No. 48, Atlanta, Friday evening, December 22; Macon, Griffin, Darien and Buckhead units; and at Milledgeville the Richmond unit will be hostess.

Climaxing their successful membership drive, with Mrs. J. R. Lanuin, chairman, the Dewey-Hulse unit, Ashburn, was entertained recently by Miss Nina Cox at the home of Mrs. C. F. Shingler. Receiving with Miss Cox and Mrs. Shingler were Mesdames Alex Story, J. A. Faircloth, I. H. Hunter, Y. J. Stover and Misses Ella Burroughs and Betty Shingler. Mrs. F. W. Rogers presented a beautiful memorial service and after a short business session luncheon was served. During the social hour a tribute was paid to Mrs. Webb Zorn, the unit's president. At the business session plans were made for Christmas cheer for veterans and their families.

Mrs. H. C. King and Mrs. Max Hubert recently entertained the Allen R. Fleming unit, Athens, at the home of Mrs. King. Christmas plans were laid with Mesdames A. D. Gann, rehabilitation chairman; Carl Saye, T. W. Paschall and W. L. Florence named as a committee to work with the Legion post committee. The unit voted to invite the tenth district meeting to Athens in the spring, and to send 20 Christmas boxes to patients at Hospital 48. The meeting was presided over by Mrs. W. L. Florence, the president, who brought a message of Christmas cheer and service.

Following are the officers of the new Thomson unit: President, Mrs. Sam L. Perry; secretary, Mrs. Joe Goldman; treasurer, Mrs. T. E. Wilson. A new unit has recently been organized in Douglasville, with Mrs. Henry Jay as president. This is an auxiliary of the Douglasville Post No. 145, of which Guy Baggett is commander, and is in the seventh district.

Mrs. Cooledge Fetes Visitor and Bride.

An interesting party of yesterday taking place at the Capital City Club was the luncheon at which Mrs. Harold Cooledge entertained honoring her visitor, Miss Martha Scott Clayton, of New York, and Mrs. Beverly DuBose Jr., a recent bride. Miss Clayton was among prominent out-of-town guests in the city for the premiere and its accompanying social activities, having been seated with her hosts, Mr. and Mrs. Cooledge, in their box at the premiere.

A Christmas motif prevailed and 10 guests were invited to meet the honor guests.

Miss Erwin Weds Leon Leathers At Brilliant Ceremony in Athens

ATHENS, Ga., Dec. 16.—Centering statewide interest was the marriage of Miss Sarah Pharr Erwin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Cobb Erwin, and Leon Milton Leathers Jr., son of L. M. Leathers and the late Mrs. Leathers, which was solemnized last evening at 8:30 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents on Milledge avenue. The ceremony was performed by Dr. E. L. Hill before a brilliant assemblage of guests.

The improvised altar, placed before the colonial mantel in the drawing room, was banked with palms and centered with urns containing Easter lilies and snapdragons, flanked by seven-branched candelabra holding burning white tapers. Roses, chrysanthemums and snapdragons, artistically arranged with southern amaranth in graceful garlands, adorned the lower floor. The only light was that of candles which were placed at intervals throughout the home.

The nuptial music was rendered by Miss Nolee Mae Dunaway at the piano, with violin accompaniment by Robert Harrison.

Miss Mary Cobb Erwin, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Mrs. John Quinn West Jr., of New Orleans, cousin of the bride, was matron of honor. The bridesmaids were Miss Mary Myers, of Washington, D. C.; Miss Agnes Jarnigan, Miss Sarah Hill and Mrs. Robert Taylor Segrest, all of Athens. The maid of honor and the other attendants were gowned alike in rose-colored satin. The brides featured embroidered princess bodices fashioned with sweetheart necklines, puffed sleeves and full skirts. They carried bouquets of pale pink Norma chrysanthemums and Scotch heather caught with pale blue maline. Mrs. Erwin, mother of the bride, wore a turquoise-blue brocade gown and her shoulder bouquet was of orchids.

The lovely bride, who was given in marriage by her father, Andrew Cobb Erwin, was met at the altar by the groom and his best man, Claude McGinnis Leathers, his brother. The bride's gown, fashioned of ivory satin, featured a bouffant skirt gathered to the bodice and styled with long, tight-fitting sleeves. The back of the gown was trimmed with tiny covered buttons. Her bridal veil of ivory illusion tulle was caught to her head by a lace cap featured a face veil and in the back extending beyond the train of her dress. She carried a cascade bouquet of gardenias and valley lilies interspersed with tulle tied with wide satin ribbons. The bride's only ornament was a string of pearls which belonged to her maternal grandmother, the late Mrs. Hamilton McWhorter.

Mr. and Mrs. Erwin entertained at a reception after the ceremony. The bridal table was overlaid with a handsome cloth of linen and Point de Venise lace centered with a wedding cake embossed with lilies of the valley, and placed on a silver mirror which fringed the bride's paternal great-grandmother, Mrs. Howell Cobb. Silver candelabra holding white tapers flanked the cake on either side.

The bride's book was kept by Miss Eugenia Arnold, Mrs. Murray Soule and Mrs. Arthur Griffith Jr. Assisting in entertaining were Mesdames Robert L. McWhorter, Howard McWhorter, Will Erwin, Howell Erwin, Hugh Price, Charles Hawken, Lamar Cobb, Rucker, Jeptha H. Rucker, Blanton Fortson, Jake B. Joel, Charles Brightwell, O. H. Arnold, Thomas H. McHatten, Roby Redwine, Julius Talmadge, David G. Anderson, Harold Hinton, Milton Jarnigan, William F. Bradshaw, J. D. Bradwell, Edgeworth Lamkin, Ross Creekmore, William Howell, Frank Dudley, Gordon Dudley, Julian Cox, Ted Middlebrooks, Fred Leathers, Claude Leathers, McWhorter Cooley, Misses Julia Stovall, Nell Johnson, Elizabeth Lamkin, Helen Cabaniss, Ann Creekmore, Virginia Tate Wright, Mary Geridine, Mary Erwin and Frances Talmadge.

The bride chose for traveling a chic ensemble of black and lipstick red with accessories to match. Completing her costume were baum-marten furs and a shoulder bouquet of white orchids.

After a two-week wedding trip to Florida, Mr. Leathers and his bride will reside on Milledge circle.

Miss Harrelson Weds Mr. Schenck.

Miss Myrtle Katherine Harrelson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. M. Harrelson, of West End, became the bride of Laurence Alfred Schenck, son of Mr. and Mrs. Emil E. Schenck, of Hapeville, at a ceremony taking place last evening at 8 o'clock. The Rev. W. H. Boring performed the marriage.

The bride wore an attractive model of moss green fashioned with wide skirt and tight-fitting blouse. Her hat and accessories were of a matching shade. She wore a shoulder bouquet of roses and valley lilies.

Mrs. Schenck is a graduate of Commercial High school. The groom is a graduate of Russell High school and is connected with the Ford Motor Company.

After a wedding trip the couple will reside at 747 Ponce de Leon avenue.

Wiener Roast.

The Pioneer League of the Inman Park Presbyterian church gave a wiener roast recently at "the House on the Hill," the home of Miss Tullie Smith on North Druid Hills road.

Present were Mesdames Betty Telford, Jacquelin Crymes, Frances Telford, Jean Smith, Carolyn Argo, Mary Ella Smith, Doris Williams, Dorothy Stead, Peggy Fincher, Given Martin, Frances Beal, and Homer Foster, Joel Beal, Bill Williams, Ed Smith, Jason Thompson, and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Gasaway and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Davis.

Miss Galloway Weds Mr. Lewis At Methodist Church

Miss Anilee Galloway, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Albert Galloway, became the bride of Joe Asmon Lewis at a ceremony solemnized yesterday afternoon at 5:30 o'clock at Kirkwood Methodist church.

Rev. V. L. Bray, of Hogansville, who baptized the bride, performed the nuptials, and Mrs. Alva Lowe, of Greenville, S. C., sang, accompanied by Miss Martha King.

Palms and ferns banked the altar, which was centered with a basket of white chrysanthemums and gladioli. Slender white tapers gleaming from cathedral candleabra cast a soft glow, and family pews were marked with clusters of chrysanthemums tied with white tulle.

Miss Florine Lewis, sister of the groom, was maid-of-honor. Her gown, of an ashen-of-roses shade, was fashioned on princess lines and made with puffed sleeves, a sweetheart neckline and a bustle back. She wore a pillbox hat of grape wine shirred velvet, and carried a matching muff showered with valley lilies. Her only ornament was an old-fashioned gold necklace set with a garnet, the gift of the bride.

Miss Sybil Savage, was bridesmaid, and her flowers and gown were like those of the maid-of-honor.

Edgar Kilpatrick Jr., cousin of the groom, was best man, while groomsmen were Paul Galloway, brother of the bride, and Joe Miligan.

Ushers were Alwood Corral and Davis Terrell.

The radiant bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a bouffant wedding dress of white net posed over white taffeta, the V-neckline of which was edged with a double net ruffle. Her tulle veil, of fingertip length, fell from a coronet fashioned of valley lilies, the gift of the officiating minister.

The bride's parents entertained at a reception after the ceremony at their home on Boulevard drive. Mrs. Galloway wore black crepe trimmed with a lace collar, and worn with matching accessories. Her flowers were roses and sweet peas.

The groom's mother, Mrs. Asmon Lewis, wore a modish gown of blue crepe with black accessories and her flowers were roses and sweet peas.

The lace-covered bride's table was centered with a tiered wedding cake topped with white tapers.

Mr. Lewis and his bride left for a wedding trip, the latter wearing a model of Eleanor blue crepe fashioned with a full skirt and bustle back. Her fuchsia colored coat was fashioned on princess lines, and her tiny black hat featured a filmy veil. She wore a shoulder cluster of gardenias. Upon their return the young couple will reside at their new home, 200 Stewart drive, N. W.

B. and P. W. Club Will Give Party.

The Business and Professional Women's Club will give its annual Christmas party Wednesday evening at 7:30 o'clock at the Georgian Terrace hotel. Committee on membership will be in charge, with Mrs. Gertrude Harris, chairman.

The decorations will be in cabaret style, featuring the club's jam band, under the leadership of Miss Esther Harris, director. New members of the club will be honored guests.

The program will consist of a reading by Doreen Baldwin; feats of magic, A. E. Leacy; accordion solo by Charles Thrash; vocal trio and piano selection by Louise Oxford. Toy shop revue will be given by the jam band.

Assisting will be Misses Roma Day, Sue Suttles, Marie Peek, Louise Vaughan, Addie Lou Gilbert, Florence Peterson, Elizabeth Cottogim, Leona Westbrook, Nina Hicks, Mesdames Nina Hicks, Effie Starnes, Jo Whitman, Christeen Shaw and Francis Smith.

For reservations, telephone Mrs. Janice McKinney, at Vernon 2917, or Mrs. Harris, at Walnut 5982.

Mrs. E. A. Van Norden Named President.

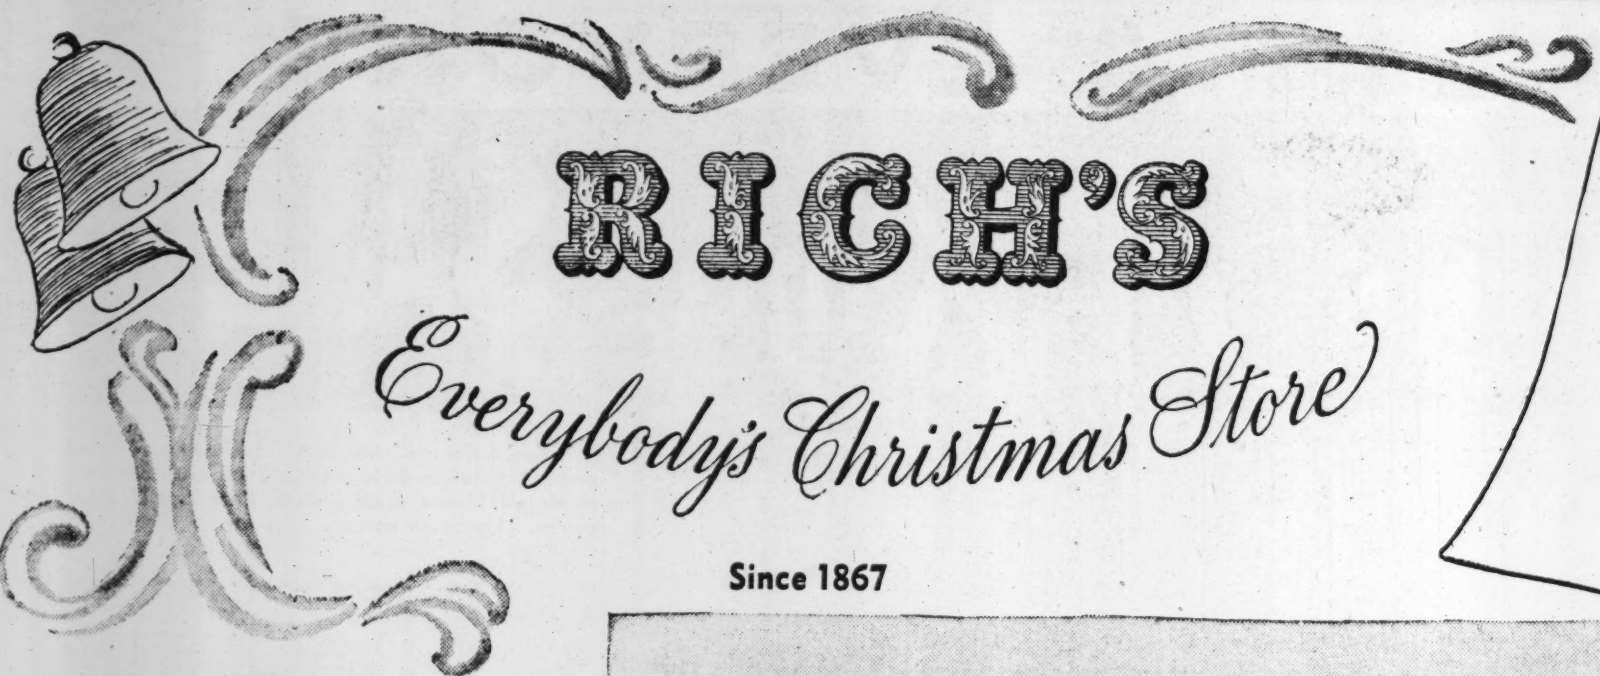

Mrs. E. A. VanNorden was elected president of the Ben Hill Garden Club at a recent meeting at the home of Mrs. J. H. Drake. Other officers elected were: First vice president, Mrs. C. P. Suber; second vice president, Miss Eunice Baker; treasurer, Mrs. Marcus Cash; recording secretary, Mrs. W. R. Baker; corresponding secretary, Mrs. W. R. Phillips. The officers were installed by the retiring president, Mrs. C. P. Suber.

Mrs. Marcus Cash was co-hostess. Mrs. W. O. Suttles, program chairman, presented a program on "Christmas Decorations" with Mesdames Y. A. Oliver, W. G. Shurbutt and Marcus Cash taking part. Mrs. Suttles sang and was accompanied by Mrs. Cash. Christmas arrangements winning blue ribbons were arranged by Miss Baker and Mrs. Cash. Miss Baker presented a pottery basket of calendulas and snapdragons to Mrs. Suber from the club in appreciation of her service as president.

Attendance prize was won by Mrs. E. H. Heath and contest prize by Mrs. Phillips. The chairmen for 1940 will be: program, Miss Eunice Baker; flower judging, Mrs. W. R. Phillips; scrapbook, Miss Katie Cash; telephone, Mrs. M. L. Baker; sunshine, Mrs. W. O. Suttles; hospitality, Mrs. Marcus Cash; flower exchange, Mrs. J. M. Wallace; finance, Mrs. C. P. Suber; publicity, Mrs. W. G. Shurbutt.

Building a Memorial To Georgia Creators Of Garden Clubs

By CAROLYN MCKENZIE.

ATHENS is the home of America's garden clubs.

Twelve ladies in the university city linked their interests in 1891 and organized the first group of garden lovers.

Now Georgians are stepping forward again as they set a standard of liberalism and broad vision—as they construct a memorial to all garden lovers and landscape architects.

The grounds about an ante-bellum brick house of pleasing design on the University of Georgia campus are being converted into a living memorial to all Georgia garden lovers. This old building, now occupied by the Department of Landscape Architecture, was constructed as a faculty residence in the 1840's. For many years it was used as a faculty residence. And through the years it has also served as a men's dormitory, the first sorority house on the campus, the office of the first dean of women, a girls' dormitory, and classrooms.

Reminiscent of the ante-bellum days when colonial architecture provided for slave houses, smoke houses and outdoor kitchens, the building on Lumpkin street in Athens is becoming a combination school for Georgia's landscape architects of tomorrow and a center for Georgia's garden clubwomen of today and yesterday.

In order to secure an old site, but one to in Athens as the Lumpkin House, is built around a brick courtyard which forms the center for the two "outhouses" one of which will be used for a meeting house and the other for a trophy room. The 30 by 50 feet courtyard will be used for class and lecture rooms.

They call it a meeting house because of the similarity to colonial days—the atmosphere being reproduced in the restoration of the old home. This will serve as a lecture room for classes in the school and as a club room for Georgia Garden Club members who visit the memorial.

Land Description.

Standing ten feet above Lumpkin street, facing in toward the campus, the house was considered a desirable area to make into a state (and eventually a national) memorial. North of the house is an area of one-half acre which is shaded by large oak trees. Smaller trees and native shrubs will be cultivated in order to give visitors and students an idea of Georgia's natural plants. The eastern area of one-fourth acre will be planted in bulbs, annuals, perennials, shrubs.

Institutions throughout the state have offered the committee stones, paving blocks and old bricks for aid in construction of the memorial. Garden clubs throughout

Rural Banking

By P. D. RICH.

JOHN DURHAM lived way out in the country where he owned hundreds of cattle and sheep, from which he sold beef and wool every year. He raised nearly everything on his farm that his family needed to eat and wear. By rigid economy, hard work and close attention to his livestock, he accumulated several thousand dollars which he kept hidden around his home.

He was a stout, strong man of middle age, wholly uneducated, and carried a stiff leg as a souvenir of the Confederate War. He died before the advent of the automobile, and would never have turned loose enough money to own one if they had been plentiful and cheap. His mode of travel was on horseback. In all his life he did not own a comfortable saddle. The stirrup leathers were made of cotton rope. A stirrup was tied to each end of the rope and the middle of the rope was looped over the horn of the saddle. A sheep skin with the wool still on it was placed on top of the saddle to make it soft and comfortable, because he did a great deal of riding in looking after his livestock.

His home and little farm were eight miles from Bainbridge, the county seat. It was a sleepy little village built in a square around the courthouse. Large water-oaks shaded the four sides of the courthouse yard and adjacent streets, rendering this central location cool and inviting. The citizens were nearly always tired and during the hot summer days were all the time resting in these shades, chewing tobacco, smoking their pipes and discussing everything that was old and new.

The various one-story buildings were occupied by stores, shops, and saloons, scattered promiscuously around the square. Down the sandy streets a little way stood a livery stable, a cotton warehouse and a blacksmith shop. The town well was in the courthouse yard, above the well stood the water-tank high over the tops of the surrounding buildings, and on top of the tank was the town fire-bell. This bell remained in non-use until somebody hollered "Fire" when the first person to get there rang it violently. The citizens were members of the fire department. Everyone gathered up all the buckets, tubs, dish-pans, and any other vessels available and ran to the fire. The well and the water-tank, with a cistern or dug well at every residence, constituted the water works, and the only pump in town was used to keep the tank from getting empty. The town marshal looked after it. To fight fires the water was mostly drawn from the wells and cisterns.

There were two or three doctors, all of whom wore long whiskers, long Prince Albert coats and high silk beaver hats. The four- or five lawyers were similarly garbed except for the coats. They usually wore split-tail coats. Each doctor had a good horse and buggy and carried in stock at all times a supply of quinine, castor oil, turpentine, paregoric and calomel. Hospitals were unknown.

The professional duties of the lawyers required about an equal division of their time between the shades around the courthouse and the various saloons. The doctors and lawyers were the only professional people in the country and were considered the most learned.

About once a month John Durham would ride into town, hitch his horse at the public hitching rack, and hang the saddle stirrups on the horn of the saddle. If the stirrups were left hanging down, there was always danger of the horse running a leg through one of them while kicking flies off his stomach. By hanging up the stirrups the horse could use his feet as well as his tail in fighting them.

John Durham never objected to taking a drink of whisky when he was invited to do so at the expense of others, but spending his own money for whisky or anything else, was out of the question. Everybody knew he had money which caused him to be popular. Town people like those who have money much better than a fellow who is known to have none. In fact, they take up mighty little time with the latter class. The appearance of a stranger in town always aroused everybody's curiosity, causing much speculation as to his identity and the nature of his business. Everybody inquired of everybody else until they found out everything that could be learned.

The arrival of an occasional steamboat carried nearly the whole population towards the wharf when the commenced blowing the whistle down the river. Each stranger was carefully scrutinized. Likewise a tall, well-dressed young man getting off the boat one day precipitated the usual inquiry. The young man went straightway to the Sharon House, the only hotel in town, where he registered in the name of William Bryant, New York. He was affable, friendly, easily met, and was a happy smile all the time. Yet nobody could gain the least information as to the nature of his business beyond that disclosed by the hotel register. Sometimes he would take a drink when invited and sometimes he would politely refuse. When he entered a saloon for this purpose all of the others present were cordially invited to join him. They rarely refused because they were usually on hand for that very purpose.

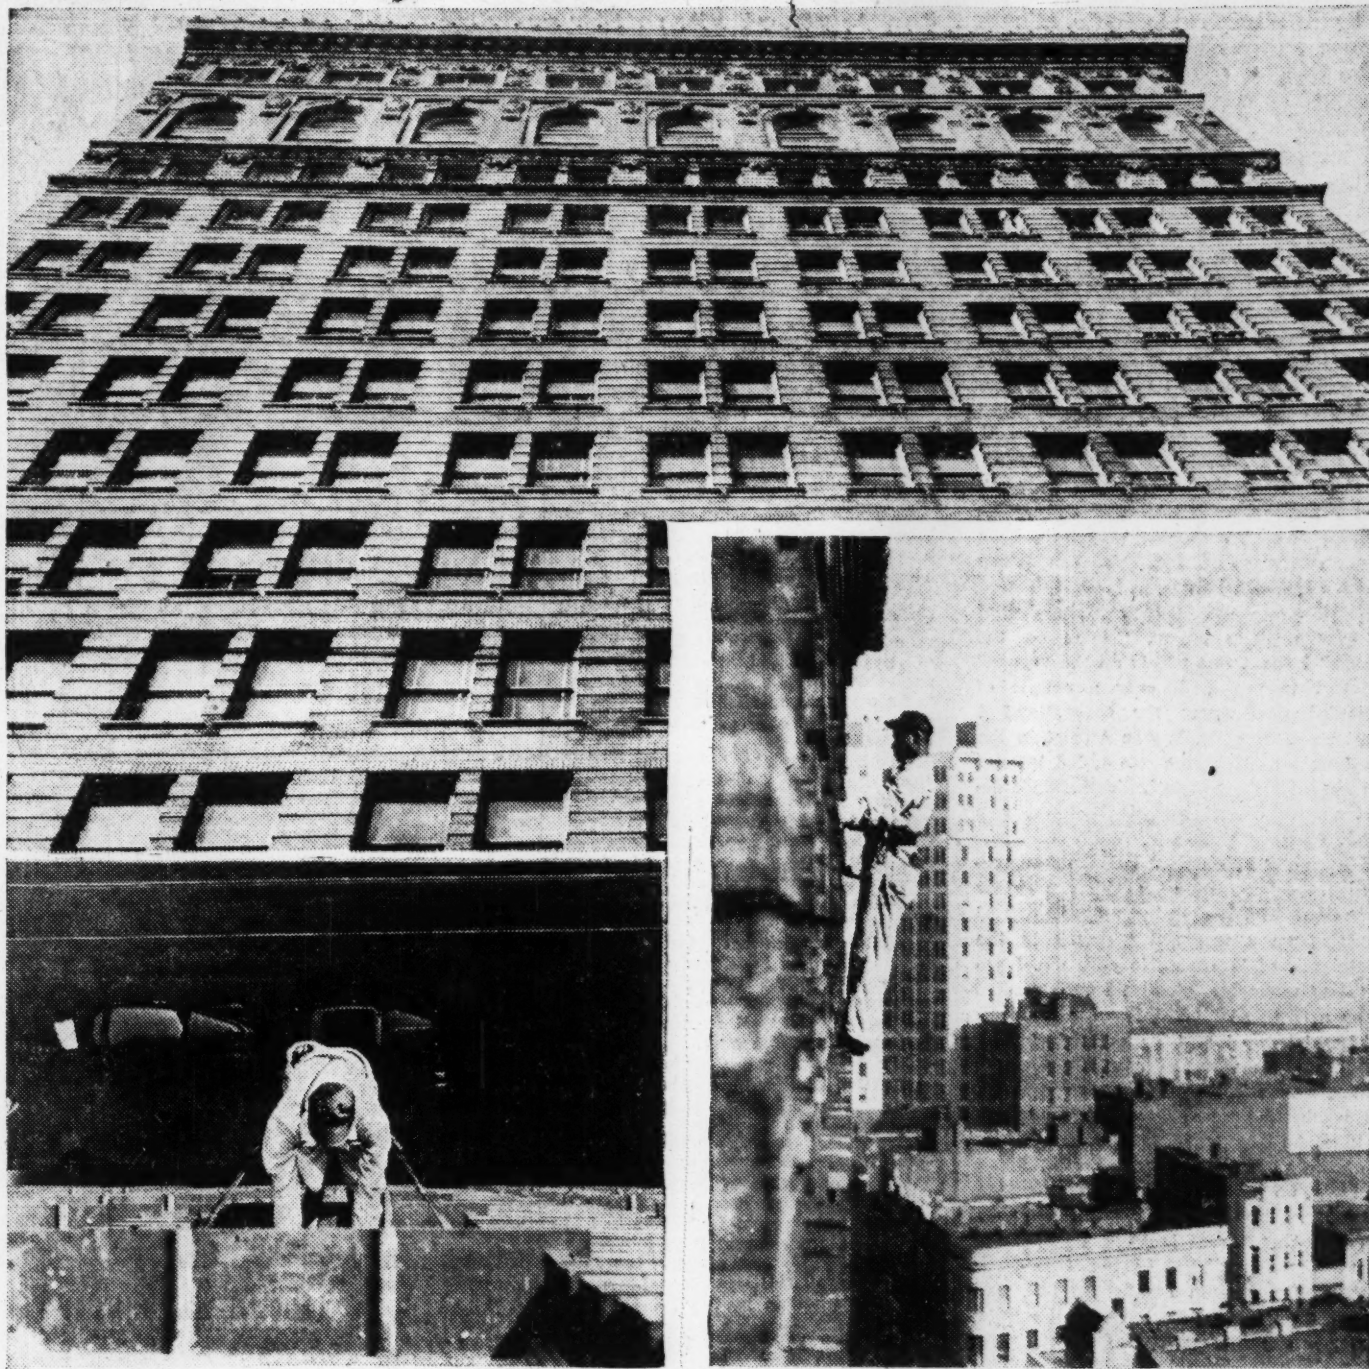

Mr. Dismuke was the proprietor of the hotel, quite popular, ever ready to accept the invitations of others to drink with them. He became quite friendly with Mr. Bryant and in a short while was calling him "Bill," and Bryant seemed equally friendly but every effort to get information from him was futile. He received no mail. He sent none away. He talked freely with everyone, all the time saying nice things about the town and the people.

On several occasions he hired fine teams from the livery stables and made trips into the country, using a pair of the best horses and requiring the most careful drivers for the purpose. The drivers were questioned about these trips but further than the people seen and the places visited, their information was worthless. Bryant traveled a different road each time and discussed crops, farms, livestock, etc., with the country people but gave no information about himself or his intentions. After several weeks he was well and personally known by everybody in town and several of the most substantial men in the country. Friendly, polite, well dressed and so plentifully supplied with funds, he enhanced rapidly in the admiration and friendship of the leading citizens.

Down by the cotton warehouse was a one-story vacant store building with a large vacant lot in the rear. The vacant lot was covered with sardine cans, whisky bottles, worn out horseshoes and a luxuriant growth of dog-fennel weeds. When it became known that Bill Bryant had bought this building and the vacant lot and paid for it in gold coin, the speculation was at fever heat. The only information to be had from Bryant was that he liked the town, had faith in it, liked all the people and believed it would be worth much more in the future. He had decided to become a permanent citizen. He did not believe

Washing Atlanta's Windows

The window cleaners at work on the First National Bank.

HOW would you like to wash 20,000 plate glass show windows before breakfast? Atlanta's window washers do just that job.

At 5:30 a. m., bucket and "squeegee" in hand, the window cleaner starts work. Five minutes later he has left one store window sparkling. He uses a liquid cleaner.

By 8:00 a. m., when the city is finishing breakfast, the law requires that he leave the street. He brings out a ladder, then, and works his way up to the mezzanine windows.

Maybe you would prefer climbing out of an upper story window, hooking your safety belt to the wall, and washing Atlanta's 25,000 office-building windows with just plain water and elbow grease. If you still have a little time left before lunch, you might try the 15,000 hotel panes.

But 20,000 school and public building windows still remain to be done. And if you finish them before supper, you might venture into the suburbs and help the housewife clean her 2,000,000.

When you catch on, you will be able to clean an ordinary window inside and out and polish it with chamois in five minutes. You will consider 90 windows, or the equivalent of four-and-one-half bungalows, a day's work. You will clean 28,000 panes in one year.

The First National Bank building at Five Points, with 970 windows, employs two full-time window-washers the year round. These men average a story-and-a-half a day each. Their only difficulty comes with the steel-frame windows used to prevent fire hazard in certain parts of the building.

"They stick, and it takes longer to open and close them," explained Thomas Murray, colored, who has been washing windows since June, 1936. His companion, Milton McGee, who has been cleaning windows for 10 years, described the method of reaching those which open outward.

"You just have to crawl out underneath them, and reach around them that way." They never get dizzy.

Some men prefer working without safety belts. The belts hook on both sides of the window, and suspend the worker in front of the glass. He leaves his bucket inside, keeping his sponge, chamois, and rag. He slides the frame down from the top, to reach the upper part of the window.

"Window cleaners have to have steady nerves," explained S. C. Orr, president of a window-cleaning concern here. "Some men can only work on the ground, or on ladders. All of them are protected by insurance, but there are very few accidents. We have not had one since I have been in the business."

Ocean Once Swept Into Dougherty County: The Remnants of a Beach Are Still There

By PAULINE TYSON STEPHENS.

THEY call it "The Sand Hill." But romantic-minded people know better. They know it is a beach, even if it is in Dougherty county, Georgia, nearly 200 miles from the Gulf of Mexico.

I've stood on the Atlantic coast and looked west; I've stood on the Gulf of Mexico coast and looked north, but when I stand on a winding road that encircles the lower edge of the Sand Hill just outside the southern end of Albany, I can easily imagine that either of those two mentioned seas might be behind me. Simply because the whole aspect is the same. There are the piles of wind-swept sand, jutting up in prominent knolls here and there. A straw-like grass growth creeps over the Sand Hill and crackles in the wind in just the same way it does where the land is bordered by the salty seas. Parched, scrubby bushes dot the surface.

In many places over the 440 acres which make up the Dougherty Sand Hill, deep holes have been dug in the sand. For years and years past they have been "mined" daily, the precious sand being extracted for building purposes. One of these holes, known as the "Tift Hill Sand Pit," looks as though a city block might be placed on the inside of it. The cavity in that particular portion of the big Sand Hill has been dug out, leaving sand walls. These walls are jagged and almost perpendicular. Looking down from the top of the pit is like peeping over the edge of a vast canyon, only you see that the bottom is filled with loose sand instead of a river.

How To Recognize Beach Sand.

And how do we know that this Sand Hill is a beach? How do we know that sharks once flashed their saucy tails as far up in Georgia as this?

Just get a magnifying glass, and inspect the grains of sand, and you will see that they are absolutely round. They have no corners and edges. That's because for eons and eons they were rubbed together by the winds. The winds came mostly from the west and piled sand on top of sand along the edge of the sea. When the nice old sea decided to part company with the land, the dunes were left behind. So we have an inland beach, even though we do call it a sand hill.

The Department of Natural Resources for Georgia does not mean that we Georgians shall remain ignorant about the source of the Dougherty county Sand Hill. For this department expects to erect a marker along the highway near by, giving this interesting information.

While there are many sand hills scattered over the Coastal Plain of Georgia, the Dougherty Sand Hill is one of the very largest. And the inland beaches, or sand hills, comprise just one of the features which distinguish the southern half of Georgia from the northern half. And while the Coastal Plain may be described generally as a low land with a gradual southward slope, yet the various sections, like the pieces in a patchwork quilt, differ so materially that they have been marked off into six different physiographic divisions.

The Coastal Plain of Georgia actually begins at the "Fall-line." And the Fall-line most assuredly is not, as legend proclaims it, a place where an Indian maiden fell down a hillside and was rescued by her devoted Indian brave. Not at all. It is just an imaginary line, like the equator. And it is drawn through the state from Columbus, through Macon, Milledgeville, and on to Augusta. It is so named because of the falls or rapids in the streams at this particular line. These falls indicate that the region drops suddenly to a lower level. Therefore, "Fall-line."

The Fall-line hills occupy the upper portion of the Coastal Plain, and, as the name indicates, this section begins at the Fall-line and extends all the way across the state in a belt 40 or 50 miles wide. The Fall-line hills are not really much more of hills than Haile Selassie is an emperor. They just pretend to be hills, when they are only flat-topped ridges, cut through with deep gullies or washes. The gullies are deep and many, since they've been lashed by the streams a few more million years than have the southern portion of the plains.

The Plain and the Upland.

A triangular patch on the top of Georgia's soil forms the triangular Dougherty Plain. This section is made up of Decatur, Dougherty, Seminole, Miller, Mitchell, Early, Baker, Calhoun, Randolph, Terrell, Lee, and Sumter counties. It sleeps with the red Chattahoochee on one side and with the murky Flint on the other. The Dougherty Sand Hill described in the first portion of this article is perhaps the most interesting feature of this Dougherty Plain.

The Altamaha Upland, another distinctly different section of the coastal plain, is the largest portion of all, since it reaches all the way from the Savannah river to Valdosta, and from Cordele to Waycross. Why it is named an upland is another mystery, since a great portion of it is in the lower swampy regions of the state where creeks are just creeks and not rapids. And where, the water, instead of being muddy with clay from hills, is clear and sluggish.

The city of Thomasville sits in the middle of the Southern Lime-Sink region. In numerous places, the underground rocks long ago took a notion to fall down to another position. And every time that happened, the dirt sank in, leaving a depression on top of the ground. This makes those extreme south Georgia counties, such as Grady, Brooks, and Lowndes, an area in which ponds abound. However, the citizens no longer get startled when they go out and see the bottom dropping out of their lime-sink ponds. One day the water is there, and the next day it is gone, or nearly gone.

The Okefenokee Plain takes up a belt 20 to 40 miles wide and reaches from Florida on the south to the Savannah river on the north. It includes such counties as Ware, Liberty, Wayne, and Pierce. Folks that live in this section have no reason for doing without fish, since a fourth of the land is under water, either in ponds or just plain swamps. With the knees of old, old cypress trees looking like spoons, with the swishing and sighing of palm leaves, and the moaning of long-leaf pines, it is almost as different from the adjoining Altamaha Upland territory as though it were in another country. And as the name would indicate, the great Okefenokee Swamp itself is in the lower end, as though it were there to catch the tears from the weeping land above.

It takes one other region to complete Georgia's Coastal Plain, and that is the Satilla Lowland. Beginning at the Florida line, this lowland extends all the way along the coast past Savannah. This area is, as you might expect, just a few feet above the ocean's heaving crest. In fact, not so many million years have elapsed since this land was at the bottom of the sea. On the western part of the Satilla Lowland grows much of Georgia's fine timber. However, the eastern portion of this area is somewhat different. Because the erratic sea has bitten mouthfuls at the time, the coast line is a network of islands and lagoons. Not being content to get out for good, however, the sea keeps reminding the land of its presence. For when the tide comes in, it pushes the fresh water of the rivers, such as the Satilla, Ogeechee, and St. Mary's, and backs it up on the land. The result is the tidal swamp.

When you consider all the tough sledding the Coastal Plain of our state has been through, maybe we are even lucky to have a south Georgia. Anyway, it all just goes to show what a Great Landmaker and a few million years can do.

The first Garden Club of America as it met in Athens.

In keeping with the time of the founding of the first Garden Club of America, the flower lovers throughout the state voted last May to make the grounds about the newly designated headquarters of the Department of Landscape Architecture at the University into a permanent memorial to those few Athens women who conceived the idea of an organization for the advancement of interest in gardens.

Educational in every sense the memorial will serve as a laboratory for University students as well as give garden club members who may visit the project a good idea of gardens of today.

The combination memorial-landscape architecture department will be used for experimentation with ornamental plants. It will beautify a portion of the University of Georgia campus and will preserve the atmosphere of ante-bellum buildings.

The plan is to dedicate the memorial on the 50th anniversary of the founding of the first Garden Club of America—in 1941.

Memorial Leaders.

Under the direction of Mrs. W. F. Bradshaw, of Athens, chairman of the Founders' Memorial; Mrs. Reynolds Flournoy, of Columbus, president of the Garden Clubs of Georgia; Mrs. Nina Scudder, of Athens, co-chairman of the memorial; and Hubert Owens, director of the Department of Landscape Architecture at the University, the 7,000 members of Georgia's 202 clubs will have a permanent place to file their historical data, a place to house trophies, and a general meeting place for all flower lovers.

The Memorial house, frequently referred

A Georgia Hitch-Hiker Sees America First

By EUGENE PHILLIPS, Ga. '39,
Retiring National Commander American Association of Collegiate Hitch-Hikers.

SHERMAN may have had his ideas about war, but he never tried hitch-hiking!

Fifty thousand miles in three summers convinces me that I am ready to fold my thumb. It deserves a rest. To someone less travel-worn, I leave my moth-eaten mantle—the national commandship of the American Association of Collegiate Hitch-Hikers, which, with a few "fellow-travelers" I founded at the University of Georgia in 1937. In retiring I can say with complete veracity that I have practiced what I preached:

I have seen America first—by thumb! I took Greeley's advice—I went west. And I have regretted it ever since. The Tribune editor's statement may have been a sage one when uttered, but I cannot say that it applies in 1939 as in 1860.

Never again will I care to head that favorite western ballad, "Home on the Range." I spent two nights on the "range"—desert to me—with only a couple of yellowed newspapers for cover, and I want no more of it. It was August in the daytime, but when the sun faded beyond the distant hills, no one could convince me that winter hadn't settled down—it was bleak February.

Like many a mistaken lad, I always regarded the "wideopen spaces" in a rather romantic sense. It took but a single day of parching on a scorched highway in the wastelands of Wyoming to cure me. I am appalled when I think that I once wanted to be a cowboy!

The highway junction was marked Mule Creek on the map, so I was willing to chance a ride to the half-way point across the sagebrush country. It might be a novelty to spend the night in a cowtown, I considered. But on reaching the spot, I found no town, no mules, and worse than either, no creek. I'll never trust a road map again.

Only one pleasant incident I remember about Wyoming. That is the Fifty-Year Frontier Celebration I witnessed at Newcastle, a one-time cowtown and mining center in the eastern part of the state. Its chief claim to fame lies in the fact that Teddy Roosevelt once spoke on its courthouse lawn, and the last western sheriff to be killed by the Indians died there—with his boots on—some 30-odd years ago.

Travel by thumb seems slow enough down in Mississippi, where the folks don't "get about" so much. That was before I journeyed into Montana. Up into the Powder River country I strayed, and stuck.

Four cars passed me during the two days I spent on the lonely stretch of road that leads into Miles City. I could go no farther, nor could I get a ride back whence I had come. To me, the name of the city seemed more than appropriate. Had it not chanced that the fellow I rode in with decided to travel back to civilization, I suppose I'd be there yet, howling with the coyotes.

I wandered about among the sagebrush with the rabbits. A faded roadside sign was full of bullet holes and I looked cautiously about for lurking outlaws. Two cowpunchers rode by, unarmed. At the outskirts of the little cowtown, which consisted of three frame stores and five shacks serving as dwellings, I waited hopelessly for a ride.

On the side of the combination general store-bar-hotel a crudely-lettered sign read: "U Buy 3 and I Buy One." So it was "one on the house." Alkali water, at that!

Of a kind old lady who gave me a sandwich I asked, "Do any hitch-hikers ever travel through here, ma'am?" The answer she gave me did little to assure me I'd ever reach the outer world again.

"Six-walked through here last year."

One definite conclusion I have arrived at: The Old West lives no more!

Deep in the heart of the cattle country I saw a grizzled veteran of the range riding a Western Story Magazine. On a side-trip across the plains I changed to a couple of cowpunchers (they aren't so plentiful anymore) galloping over a ridge. They came, not singing lead nor roping steers, but singing the "Beer Barrel Polka." I thought to myself as the last rollicking strains faded over the sagebrush, "indeed the last frontier has faded!"

Nevertheless, it cannot be said that the people of the west are not a tough and hardy lot. They have to be!

I recall an old range-rider I knew only as "Cowpuncher Bill." Although nearing 60, Old Bill was still "spry as a colt" and walked with only a slight limp. His legs were bowed from years in the saddle.

Riding herd one stormy night last summer, he was knocked from his saddle by a bolt of lightning.

"Danged near ruined my hat!" he drawled, baring his head to show me the scar that had scarcely healed. He had made a clumsy effort to sew up the "ruined" ten-gallon sombrero.

At the outskirts of Pierre, the tiny state capital of barren South Dakota, I observed a bronze plaque up on a hill. Some one told me that it signified the location of a marker left on the spot years ago by the French, who once claimed the area. I hardly think they'd have the country now, even if we'd give it back to them.

And, to think, we took that country away from the Indians! I'd trade it anywhere for a comfortable shack and monthly ration on a reservation. After seeing them, I agreed that the famed Badlands were correctly named, too.

Only one interesting spot did I find in South Dakota, and that was the straggling little town of Deadwood, set in a winding gulch deep in the Black Hills. There lie buried, side by side in the hillside cemetery, high above the spruced town, Wild Bill Hickok and Calamity Jane, who made the town famous. Deadwood is no less "wide-open" now than when these two untamed creatures of the Old West were contemporary.

Denver was a tough place in the old days, but the "Mile High City" is now one of the model metropolises of the west. Capitol of Colorado, its statehouse boasts a gold-capped dome. One of our United States mints is there too, and I had three cents in my pocket!

Two blocks from the imposing capitol, a bum "put the touch." I sorrowfully informed him that for the moment we were both fellow soldiers in the same army—misfortune.

"You have to put tags on 'em these days!" he muttered, eying my fairly presentable clothes as he walked away. What he didn't know was that my suit had been serving for pajamas as well for some two weeks previous. "Western hospitality" I found to be of the same variety as that prevalent in certain other sections of the country. The extent of a man's welcome is determined by the size of his bank roll. They don't let you wash dishes anymore.

It wasn't springtime in the Rockies when I traveled over them, either. I thought I'd freeze by day, and at night I was convinced the North Pole had moved south. These three days it took me to make it over the Continental Divide will long remain in my memory as a horrible nightmare of frigid proportion.

I wasn't impressed a great deal by the "Courtesy Patrol" they have in Colorado. The kind of "courtesy" they extend to hitch-hikers is 10 days in jail. You pay your own board, so I couldn't accept their invitation.

One thing you readily know about legislators who attempt to abolish by legal statute youth's last frontier—hitch-hiking—. They never went to college!

After the freezing cold of the Rockies, I welcomed the warm sunshine of the Mormon country, the Great Salt Lake Valley of Utah. I found that there amid the sheltered warmth of the purple sage feminine pulchritude blooms almost as radiant as in Dixie. Georgia's own "peaches" had competition!

I had put 42 states behind me and shaken their dust from my tired feet before I ran into my first and only streak of good luck "west of the Mississippi." All the way from Pocatello, Idaho into Los Angeles—some 950 miles—I rode as the chauffeur-companion of a very companionable oil magnate from California. I believe in miracle now.

That's the kind of pipe dream every hitch-hiker has had—and few lived to see come true. I still can't believe I'm not dreaming, and that I won't suddenly wake up and find myself a couple of thousand miles out in the desert.

My trek over the eastern half of the continent had been much more speedily accomplished. I made it to New York in less than train time and for a week endured the boredom of the World's Fair. After living for four days on a half-pound box of crackers in New England—undoubtedly the most inhospitable place in the world—I reached Chicago in 15 hours. Canadian customs and immigration officials had seen fit to deport me from Ontario. After Chicago came a month of pitching bundles in the Minnesota wheat harvest.

Two months after graduation and I found my diploma replaced with a pitch-fork. I agree that the change was a rather abrupt one. The callouses in my hands proved all too convincing!

Glowing stories of "Sunny California" had reached my ears. With bated breath I went to see this "Garden of Eden," this mecca of the Golden West, greet my tired eyes glazed by burning desert sands.

Down across scorching Nevada we swept at 80 miles an hour, seeming then to only creep. Suddenly by a roadside I saw a sign, paint almost peeling from it so intense was the heat. "CALIFORNIA STATE LINE" I read unbelieving eyes. There before me lay California! No beaches, no blondes, only 200 miles of desert and mountains! I have yet to recover from that shock.

My disillusionment with California needed only Hollywood to complete it. Not a blonde was in sight in all that land of leery lust, the lower half of which is entirely peroxide. They regard them well. Overcome with a peculiar grief, I hastened to depart. My hair was getting so long I was afraid someone might mistake me for a Hollywood actor.

In Minnesota a young fellow insulted Errol Flynn by asking me if I were not the operative lothario. Perhaps it was my mustache that lent the compliment with a glint of beer.

Another thing I have noticed on my tour of America by thumb. Inevitably my Georgia drawl brings dividends in the form of courtesies generally accorded only a colonel. I meet with an impossibility in trying to convince my motorist-hosts that I am not a southern planter. In exasperation I gave up long ago, although I loathe the professional southerner.

At the national convention of Sigma Delta Chi at Stanford University, Palo Alto, California, I saw the only live Republican I have ever encountered. Former President Hoover spoke as a surprise celebrity on the program, devoting his off-the-record talk to the European conflict, which was that time just a "series of events." They never told me at home that Republicans belonged to the same race as "us folks."

I could never be a Californian. I am not nearly enough alluring to the "stupendous" and the "colossal." The almighty of Hollywood do not impress me. I suppose I am abnormal. And so are a lot of Californians. Even the weather out there is "unusual." They're still excited over the "Great Heat Wave of 1939." (The mercury went up to 95, I believe.) Last year it was the fog.

Strangely lacking in the false front that marks the Hollywood touch was the Golden Gate Exposition. I was amazed to discover the absence of the purple and other vivid hues that bloomed about there all over Mr. Whalen's exhibit. I did fail, however, after much expenditure of time and imagination, to perceive in the "Elephant Towers" at the portals of the Pacific there on Treasure Island, any semblance to the animals by that name.

I failed also to see Sally Rand, who was a principal topic of conversation even at the New York World's Fair. On the particular night I sought admission on my press card, the breeze that blew across San Francisco Bay was a bit too chill to afford any degree of comfort to one attired only in a fan.

California finally behind me—it reaches from Mexico almost to Alaska—I now find myself lost in the northwest woods. When the fog lifts next spring—and they tell me it does—perhaps I can float my raft to other ports.

The call of the open road is not nearly so urgent now as it was at the beginning of the summer, when my "travelogue" opens. I may yet tie myself to far-off places, but not by hitch-hiking! With such apparent disfavor among the politicians who make our laws, even collegiate "thumbing" seems destined to go by the board. You find old timers of the rails, but no veterans of the highway. There are no pioneer hitch-hikers anymore. I don't propose to be one.

So I have given it, these United States, in 60 days of hitch-hiking. I'll always contend it can be done in 48. My record this summer stands at 32 states in 30 days. The remainder of the time I spent waiting for the roadside for the ride that somehow never seemed to come.

The last letter from home said they were still saving some "frying size" chickens for me. I intend to eat one of those fowls sometime, even if he's a seven-year-old rooster!

How The Constitution handled the story on Custer's Last Stand and an artist's conception of the battle.

How the Newspapers Handled Custer's Last Stand

By Willard Cope.

SOMETIME in the evening of July 7, 1876, doubtless a hot and dusty evening, and leisurely, the atmosphere in the news room of The Constitution became electric. The telegraph clicked excitedly.

A General Custer and his men, it seemed, had engaged a force of Indians on a far-western river strangely termed the Little Big Horn, and had been slaughtered in a battle which saw no surrender and no quarter.

The battle had taken place two weeks before, but news traveled slowly from the distant, redskin-harried interior in those days.

A whole nation was shocked and angered (this being a considerable time before Mussolini took Ethiopia, Japan took Manchuria, and Hitler took Czechoslovakia and Poland, all of which caused shock and anger in America) and the battle promptly became a massacre and the biggest news story of an epoch.

A genius was functioning with his pencil and a little something more, that night in The Constitution's news room. Who he was, nobody knows. Fame never reached him.

It may have been the work of a moment, or he may have hung long over the task of presenting the story properly in headlines. Viewed from a perspective of sixty-odd years it is easy to see that his effort was successful.

He labeled the story simply: "THE RED MAN'S REVENGE." Restraint, insight, recognition of an invaded people's woes, simplicity, clearness—all these prime virtues of writing were in those four brief words.

The news story which the genius worked upon was in its way something of a masterpiece. Certainly the author took it all in his stride, both in this and succeeding dispatches. He knew he had history on his hands, but you can't justly believe it worried him much.

Here is the exact dispatch: "WASHINGTON, July 6.—General Hancock arrived this morning. It is supposed for consultation over the terrible situation of affairs in the Indian country. There has been no official account of the following disaster, which seems well confirmed.

"General Custer found the Indian camp of 25 lodges on Little Horn, and immediately attacked it with five companies, charging into the thickest of the camp. Nothing known of the operations of this detachment after the charge, as they were only traced by their dead.

"Major Reno attacked the lower part of the camp with the seven remaining companies.

"General Custer, his two brothers, nephew and brother-in-law, with about 300 men, were killed, and only 31 wounded. Two hundred seven men were buried in one place.

"The Indians surrounded Reno's seven companies and held them in the hills one day away from water. General Gibbon's command then came in sight, and the Indians broke camp and left in the night.

"The remnant of the seventh cavalry, and Gibbon's command, returned to the mouth of Little Horn, where there is a steamboat.

"The Indians got the arms of the killed soldiers. Seventeen commissioned officers were killed. The whole Custer family died at the head of the column.

"Another account says the battle was fought on the 25th, 30 or 40 miles below Little Horn. Custer attacked the village of 2,500 to 4,000 warriors on one side, and Colonel Reno on the other.

"General Custer, 15 officers and every man of five companies were killed. Reno retreated under the protection of reserves. The whole number killed was 315. General Gibbon joined Reno. The dead are much mutilated. Lieutenant Crittenden, son of General Crittenden, was killed."

The dispatches which followed on succeeding days were of the same order. One gave complete details of the battle; the other, with official interpolations, recited a list of the victims.

It was excellent newspapering, and it wedged "Custer's Last Stand" as firmly into the pattern of that era as if into a mosaic.

Not the least of the resultant benefits was the appearance soon afterward, in saloons throughout the nation, of the fevered, brilliantly colored masterpiece, or, daub, which adorns this page.

A robust time liked robust life and art and drink.

One commentator-savant suggested only yesterday that maybe the boys liked to have some objective to drink toward. As jigger after jigger of potent fluid followed themselves down the gustatory tract, each patient could look at that picture of desperate, fighting men, going down in glorious death, and feel good and mad and uplifted and pretty swell.

Any way you look at it, "Custer's Last Stand" or "The Red Man's Revenge" meant a lot to many people.

Somewhere, you have the feeling that old boy with the pencil in The Constitution office that night knew something.

Rural Banking

he could ever love to live in a noisy city. Bainbridge was quiet, the people were so nice to him! He had modestly stated a time or two that he had been in the banking business and after investing in the town, the leading citizens insisted that a bank was badly needed and that Bill Bryant was the very man to start one.

In due time a steamboat delivered a large new iron safe and other necessary equipment for a bank, which was shortly opened for business. He invited nobody to join him or to invest in the enterprise. Large stacks of gold, silver, and currency were in plain view of everyone who entered. The merchants and shopkeepers opened deposit accounts immediately and were given a supply of neatly printed checks, and each person who was in position to furnish gilt-edge security was cheerfully accommodated with a small loan.

The Argus, the weekly newspaper, heralded Bill Bryant's bank with large headlines and eloquence, congratulating the town and county upon the good fortune of having a man of his wealth and personality making his future home with them and investing in their future. The fact that he had bought property and established a strong bank with his own funds, without other assistance, was positive evidence of the stability of the bank which merited the confidence and co-operation of everyone.

Every fellow who had any money welcomed the opportunity to deposit it in the new bank. A few skeptical fellows would deposit a small sum today and draw it out tomorrow. All checks were cashed with a smile. Bryant seemed as happy when paying out cash as when receiving it. Everyone who entered the bank could easily see the great stacks of money on the inside of the grill.

John Durham never at any time displayed much enthusiasm about the banking business or anything else. He was never heard to utter one word against it and seemed quite fond of the young banker. He was glad to see the town and community prosper and thought a bank was needed by some of the folks, but as for himself he had always gotten along without one. He contended that he did not have enough money to deposit, but everybody knew better. He had been selling large quantities of wool and beef cattle for many years, it was generally known that he never spent money—therefore, he was obliged to have lots of it.

On Durham's visits to Bainbridge he would invariably go around to the bank and visit with Bryant. He liked Bill Bryant because he was so nice and friendly! Durham was shown a special favor by being invited on the inside where Bryant was with all the money and where he sat for some time and visited pleasantly with the charming host. Durham liked to look at the money. Bryant constantly reminded Durham of his willingness to accommodate him at any time, should he need anything, but further than polite references to the safety of his deposits, never made any urgent solicitation of deposits from Durham. Bill Bryant was much younger than John Durham and the old man was charmed by his personal magnetism and gracious manners.

On a visit one day and at a moment when there were no customers or others present, old John Durham drew from his jeans pants pocket an old home-knit sock from which he extracted one thousand dollars and told Bryant that he had decided to deposit the money in the bank. Bryant thanked him, issued the usual deposit receipt and furnished him a small book of checks. A careful explanation was made as to the drawing of checks, should he have occasion to do so, by signing the same with a cross mark, and having someone else write the signature. Durham put the deposit receipt and the check book in the old sock and went home.

Bryant and his bank continued to grow in favor with all the people. During the fall of the year it was found to be so very convenient to pay for the farmer's cotton by issuing checks. Durham, for the first time in his life, accepted a check on Bill Bryant's bank for quite a large sum given in payment for a herd of beef cattle. It was taken to the bank at once where Bryant commenced counting out the cash which Durham put in the old sock and placed in his pocket.

Durham accepted the customary invitation to come behind the grill where he sat in conversation for quite some time. It was obvious that the bank was a great convenience to everybody in making change for large bills of currency as well as for the safekeeping of the money. Durham was seen examining the thick steel walls of the iron safe and received a modest explanation from Bryant about the safety of money in case of fire and burglary. Durham, before taking his departure, once again withdrew the old sock and deposited two thousand dollars, for which he received and placed in the sock the customary deposit slip.

All the cotton buyers issued checks for the purchase of produce and the farmers in turn deposited a large portion of the funds in their own names. No question about the safety of the money could possibly arise in the minds of the people because there were large stacks of it at all times visible on the inside of the bank.

During business hours the large iron safe door stood open so that everyone from outside the grill could easily observe the several well-filled money-bags.

When the institution had operated in apparent prosperity for about two years the news came of a severe money panic in Wall Street. The bank had been receiving deposits and paying out money as usual until the hour for closing in the afternoon when the door was closed for the day and forever. The next morning a notice was on the door to the effect that, due to a financial panic in New York, it was deemed to the best interests of the depositors to discontinue business temporarily and proceed in an orderly manner to convert the receivables into cash which would assure the payment of all deposits in full. Bryant was cheerful and was so self-assured that everything would be all right in a few days that everybody seemed satisfied to trust in his judgment for their safety because he knew the banking business and knew what was best for all concerned.

John Durham was not in town the next day after the bank folded up but the news reached him through a neighbor. This neighbor assured him that there should be no anxiety because all the business men in town were trustful of Bryant's keen judgment in the matter and that there was no necessity for the depositors to become alarmed—and they didn't.

John Durham made no comment further than the asking of a few pertinent questions of his neighbor, but assumed the appearance of deep thought. All through the day he continued to think and wonder to himself. Throughout the coming night nearly all his sleeping time was devoted to thinking about "receivables" and Wall Street and New York and during his short slumbers he had visions of the large stacks of money he had seen so many times in the bank. What did Wall Street have to do with it? Where was Wall Street, anyhow? He knew he hadn't sent any money to Wall Street, didn't even know where the gentleman lived! Neither had he deposited any money in New York. Never in his life had he heard of "receivables" and wondered what it was. He had left his three thousand dollars in Bill Bryant's bank. He was safely kept for him until he wanted it. He did not agree for it to be sent away. It ought to be in that bank because he put it in there!

Bright and early the next morning John Durham took his long one-bladed pocket knife to a grind-stone where he ground and sharpened it to a razor's edge, then put his saddle and sheep-skin on his horse and rode towards Bainbridge. Along the eight-mile journey there was no sign of anger or excitement or nervousness, neither did he hurry the horse along.

Arriving at the first hitching rack in town he leisurely alighted, hung the stirrups on the horn of the saddle to keep the horse from hanging a foot in them while kicking flies off his stomach, and slowly strode down the street towards the bank. But before reaching the bank he turned and went into the vacant lot behind the bank where he discovered a large dry-goods box. The box was rolled over on its side close to the wall of a building with the top towards the wall and he concealed himself therein. After remaining in the box for quite some time he saw his friend Bill Bryant approach the back door, unlock it, step inside and close the door behind him.

John Durham remained patiently in the box for several minutes when he emerged and went quietly to the same door, found it unlocked and peeped inside. He closed the door quietly, sat down and removed both of his shoes. Bill Bryant was sitting upon a high stool inside the bank and appeared to be writing.

Durham noiselessly entered and closed the door behind him, opened his long, sharp knife, and as quietly as a cat creeping up on a bird, grasped the back of Bill Bryant's collar with his left hand and laid the blade of the deadly knife on his throat.

"Dis is John Durham," said he in a low, smooth voice, "let yer make any bid of fuss, I'll cut yer dam thote." Bryant made no fuss because he was voiceless. He knew Durham's voice and felt the keen edge of the knife. He was paralyzed and colorless. Almost in a whisper, "Ise cum fer my money, Bill; gie it ter me right now er I'll cut yer dam head plum off," slow-spoke John Durham. Bill Bryant noted that the voice was smooth and that neither of the two hands which he felt had the slightest tremor.

"Please, Mr. Durham, take the knife away," tremblingly whispered Bryant, "I'll have to unlock the safe."

Without speaking, John Durham removed the knife from his throat but continued to hold Bryant in the back of his collar with his other hand. "Git it, den," said he.

Flinging open the door of the large iron safe, Bryant rapidly counted out three thousand dollars in large bills. Durham watched the count and placed the money in his pocket. Durham continued to hold Bryant by the back of the collar as he quietly commanded him to walk to the back door.

Bill Bryant said, "Mr. Durham, I intended to pay you your money when I saw you anyway, and I trust you won't say anything about it because it is impossible for me to pay everybody." Durham made no answer except, as he stepped outside the door, he quietly said, "Good-bye, Bill," and Bill Bryant answered, "Good-bye, Mr. Durham."

Old John Durham walked to the dry-goods box, put on his shoes and rode home.

LOOKING "PLEASANT PLEASE" ISN'T ALL!

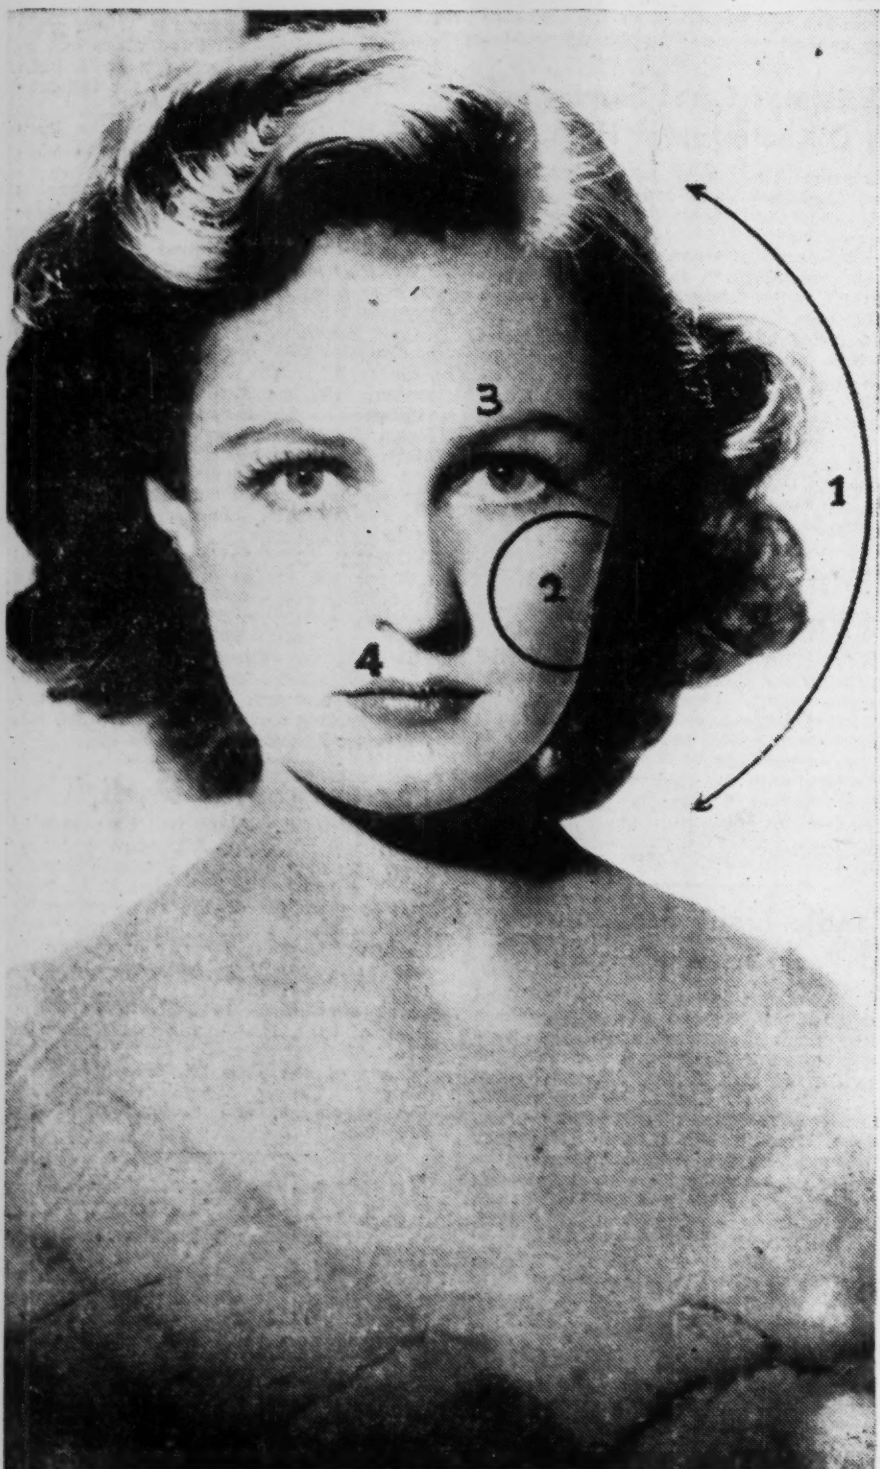

That photograph to be given to the favorite Christmas Knight has got to be YOU and no one but you, and it is the smart Atlanta girl who will give him the picture which presents her best features and makes her his fairy princess. Each photograph carries with it the hope that he will see in it the girl of his dreams, his desires and the sharer of his ambitions.

Leon Skvirsky, noted Russian photographer, makes the Atlanta girls look their prettiest in their pictures and he tells the girls as a pre-Christmas tip that it is all a matter of knowing one's type. Makeup plays a large part in making a photographic grand slam and Mr. Skvirsky adds to this by knowing the correct way for the girls to pose to carry out their best points. It is a recognized fact that the most perfect type of face, photographically speaking, is oval in shape. Trick makeup and lighting are unnecessary with this type. On this page today there are photographs of three prominent Atlanta girls, a red head, a brunette and a blonde, which illustrate proper photographic types. Photos of Atlanta girls were made by Skvirsky.

Even beautiful Frances Stanton, of this city special instructions can be followed before her photograph is taken. Frances has the square type of face. Dress the hair soft and loosely—with fullness at the sides to minimize the sharp angle of the jaw. Create as many soft curves in the face and hair as possible to counteract the squareness of the features. Place your rouge in a circle under the eye and carry it back toward the ear down under the jawline very lightly so it creates a shadow on the prominent part of the lower face. Use your natural eyebrow line arched slightly to counteract straight lines of the face. Start them directly above the corner of the eye. Makeup the mouth as wide as possible and create a graceful curve to the lip line, upward at the corners.

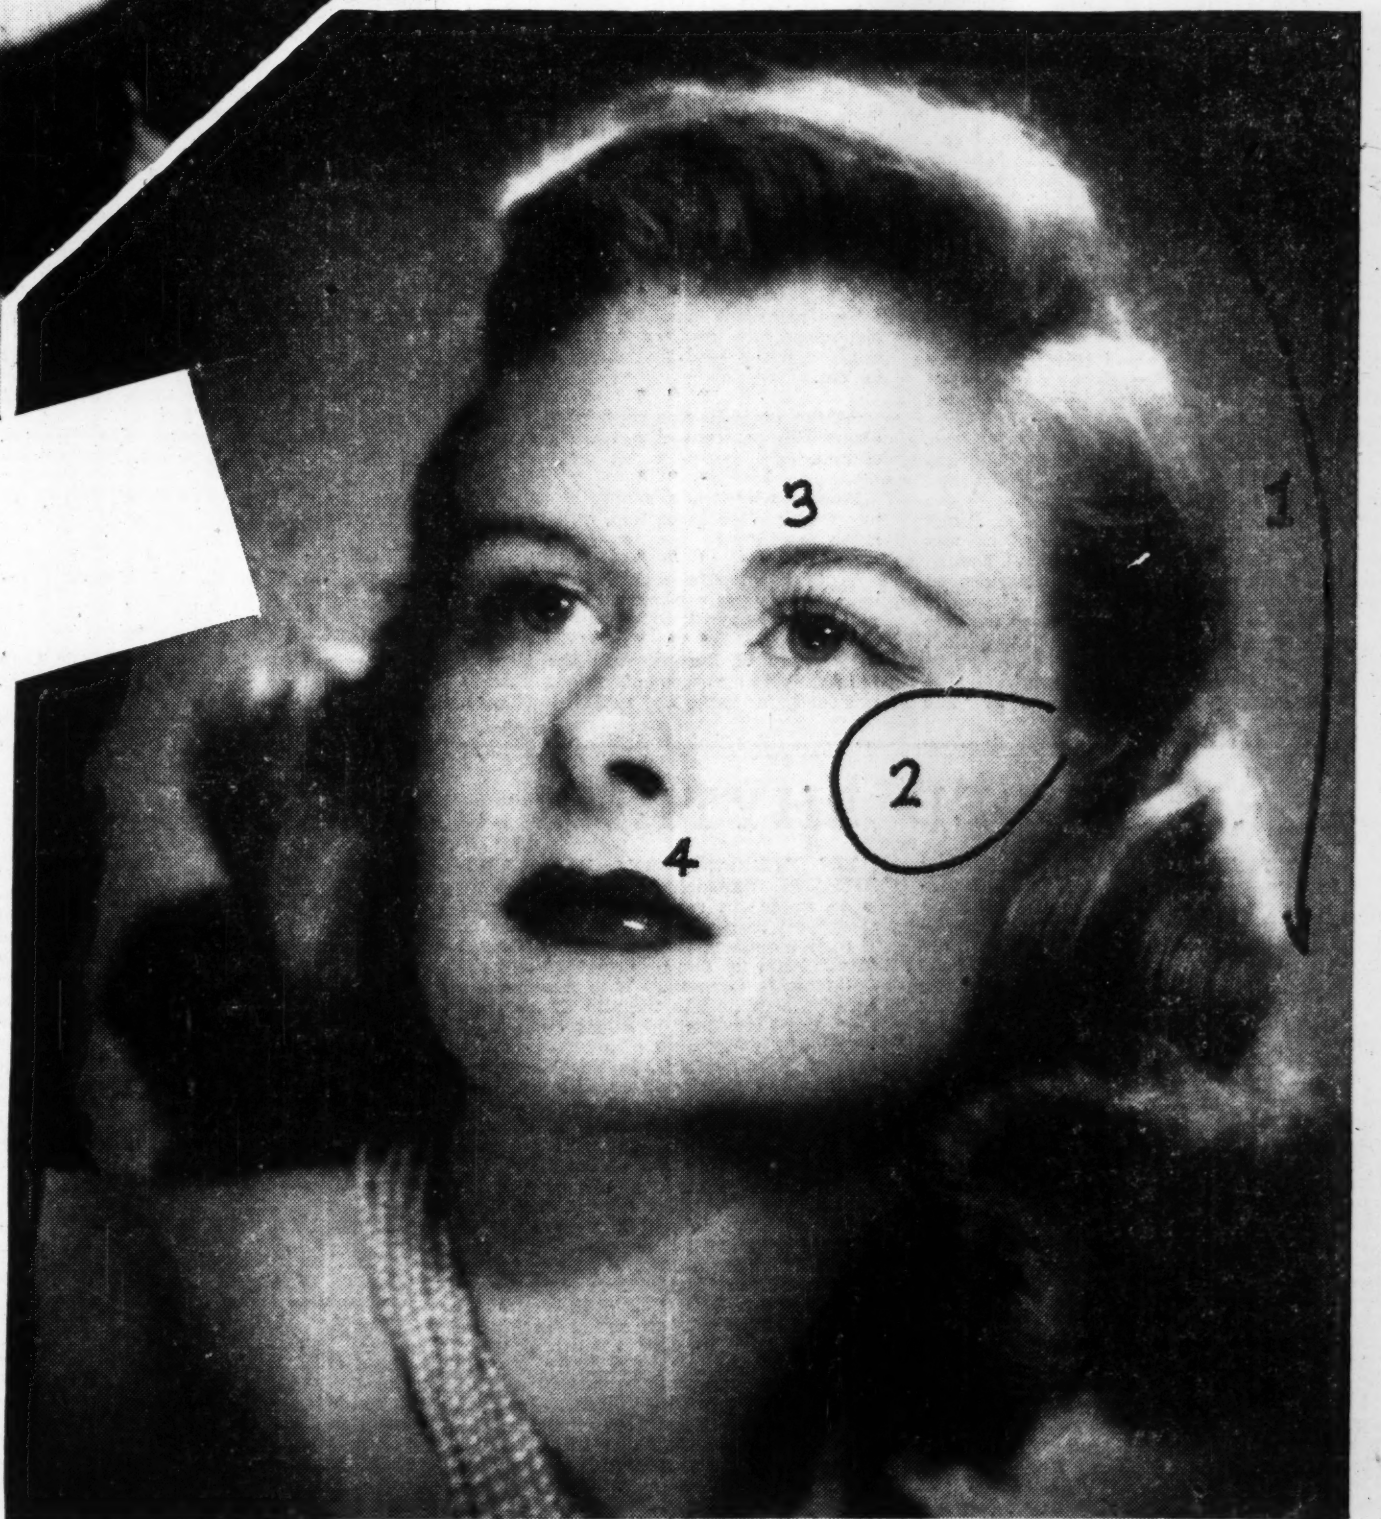

Mrs. McKee Nunnally, the former Miss Betty Yopp, pictured at right, has a round face. Her makeup instructions for photographs are: Wear your hair waved softly and keep the hairline soft because any severe line is not in keeping with this type. The hair is dressed full and soft above the ears to create the illusion of length. The eyebrow can be arched slightly and should curve naturally. Start it on a line directly above the inside of the eye. Wear rouge on the outer portion of your cheeks, carrying it toward the temple and down so that it shades the jaw very faintly. Use the darkest tone of rouge that blends with your complexion because white, light rouge accentuates fullness, dark rouge creates shadow and reduces the apparent width. Use a foundation cream at least one shade darker than your complexion. Makeup your mouth delicately, but as wide as possible. Full width of the mouth will reduce the distance from the corner of the mouth to the jawline.

Bette Davis, pictured above, has an oval type of face. The point in this makeup is to retain the oval outline of the hairstyle. Rouge the center of the cheek, keep natural eyebrows and makeup the mouth full and follow the natural line.

At the lower left, movie star Geraldine Fitzgerald shows the inverted triangle type. For her the directions are dress the hair in easy style on top and begin the fullness at a point above the ears. Place rouge on the highest point of the cheek bone. Keep the eyebrows natural, arch the mouth slightly, but do not widen the corners. Miss Davis and Miss Fitzgerald are Warner Brothers stars.

Miss Mary Nell McKoin has a diamond-shaped face. The main problem in this type is reducing the width across the cheekbone line, and for this, her makeup instructions are: Keep the fullness of hair above and below the ears and dress the hair snugly at the cheek line. This narrows the width between the cheekbones. Apply the rouge on the highest point of the broad cheekbone, blending it carefully in a circular field. Avoid carrying the rouge into the hollows of the temple and the lower part of the cheek. Arch the brow slightly. Keep it natural and not wide. This will give the forehead the illusion of natural width. Use a natural lip makeup, not wide, and gently curved. This aids the appearance of width across the lower part of the face.

Sore Throat Started Star on Film Career

SOMEONE must have tipped off Hollywood. Or maybe it was the war and the loss of foreign markets. Could they have gotten together and decided to turn over a new leaf? Certainly, the sun-kissed movie people who've come to town lately have been humble in their relations with New York reporters. And the result is that Mr. and Mrs. Robert Taylor, here for a vacation, had only their most likable and whimsical remarks put in print.

By now, Barbara Stanwyck must be weary of telling how she stuck her hand through a glass in trying to raise a window. Yet—it has made good material. After all, no girl wants to be asked nothing but, "How does it feel to be married to one of the screen's most popular heroes?"

When the war cut short her European trip, Norma Shearer returned as if she had nothing on her mind, and, in her chalk-white evening dresses, has since proved herself one of the Hollywood stars most acceptable by New York socialites.

Irish Stubbornness

Thinking on the way these cinema creatures have captured New York reminded us that none of the film folk, not even Greta Garbo, is as unwilling to act up for the public as Margaret Sullivan.

The Virginia-born actress dropped in on her way from Europe some time ago and returned again more recently—just before beginning her new picture, "The Shop Around the Corner." The picture for which she went shopping for a dollar and a half dress, and returned to the studio to be told "I looked too smart. You'll see her on the screen in it after it has been 'aged' to give the proper suggestion of poverty."

On this last trip of Maggie's, not a single New York paper carried a story on her. She registered at her hotel under her married name, and, to insure no interruption of her private life, left her suite early each day and without secretary or maid to answer the phone. When we caught our only glimpse of her in the lobby of the Plaza, she looked tired and thin, but her off-the-face had framed the two most expressive eyes in Hollywood.

No Love for School

Sullivan is a Norfolk, Virginia, girl, and went to no less than four Virginia schools. During her final year at Chatham Institute, Maggie (her pet name for herself) was asked to play the title role in a class play, "Babs, a Sub-Deb." She refused, then changed her mind.

She played her part dutifully at rehearsal. Then, on the night of the performance, with fond parents sitting out front, she gave her own interpretation of Babs, the sub-deb. Her performance was vitriolic. She pilloried her classmates without mercy. It was her debut and swan song at Chatham. And still her friends say she "never made the dramatic club at school."

For generations the Sullivans had attended Hollins College. This was Margaret's cue to accept any other. The family compromised on Sweet Briar. So Margaret enrolled at Hollins. She lasted a year, and then ran away to Boston, where she joined the University Players, who put up their own scenery, ran a tea room for extra income. In overall, Margaret painted sets beside Jimmy Stewart and Henry Fonda, two other names yet to become famous in Hollywood.

That Famous Sullivan Voice

While on the road with that old perennial, "Strictly Dishonorable," she received an offer from the Shuberts to come to New York. On the day she was called to read her part, Margaret was stuffed with laryngitis.

"Sore throat" asked a sympathetic listener in the office. "Sore throat, nothing," exclaimed Shubert. "That's an Ethel Barrymore voice. Margaret, you're engaged."

The huskiness seems to have become a permanent part of her. For the Sullivan voice today sounds like she is always about to shuck a cold. It makes the little actress unsuitable for lighter roles, but ideal for death scenes and related subject matter.

When a play in which they worked like hellions closed, Margaret packed and went to join Fonda. They were married in Baltimore on Christmas Day, and a mild wind showered them with snow. Less than a year later they parted, these two talented, tempestuous kids.

A Star Is Born

Margaret boarded a ship for South America and returned to go into "Dinner at Eight." A Hollywood producer saw her and rushed her to the coast for "Only Yesterday"—that strange, wistful story of a girl who has a child while her lover is at war. When the picture was released, she met him. But is unrecognized. Amnesia. There's more—but it's a simple tale, and the part tailor-made for a little emotionalist like Maggie.

An odd feature about this first picture was the fact that though the critics raved about Sullivan's acting, they all pointed out, frankly, that they thought her anything but pretty. They were right, too. Because of the period of the story she was required to wear bangs. Then she had refused to have elaborate makeup to cut down shadows and halftones. Too, Peggy had a slightly receding chin which was proving something of a problem. Though she submitted to having a mole removed she was impatient with further makeup suggestions and when they wanted to shave off her eyebrows she threatened to get out of town.

How Much Temperament

Margaret walked off the set of "The Margaret Sullivan.

Good Fairy" for the twenty-second time and director William Wyler cracked down on her. Then he took her to a shore place at Santa Monica and before she knew it, they were riding a roller coaster. She won five-cent ash trays and dolls at the concession stands and a week later, in Yuma, she and Wyler were married.

They flew out and back in six hours and were on the set ready for work in the morning. Wyler was an older man than her first husband.

Margaret said, "I need him to make me grow up. I know we'll be happy." But this marriage lasted no longer than the first.

Back in New York, starring in "Stage Door," Margaret flashed her long, gleaming, caramel-colored hair and husky voice across the footlights. At the time, an attractive and wealthy actors' agent was very much in the news. When Katharine Hepburn's father operated on him, it was assumed that he and Margaret would marry. The matchmakers were wrong again. In November, 1938, he and Margaret were showered with rice.

To conventional questions, Margaret gives unconventional answers: "Closest friends? The birds and bees and flowers."

What living person do you most admire? Leland Hayward.

Hobbies? Looking at houses.

Favorite scent? Brooke Hayward (her 2-year-old daughter).

Greatest ambition? To be an actress on the screen, a person off.

Occupation? Housewife.

We think Margaret Sullivan would have made a honey of a Scarlett, don't you?

Agnes Scott Choir To Give Christmas Program Today

Sheldon's Christmas Cantata Featured at Shorter College

The largest musical function that Shorter College, in Rome, offers for the first half of the school year is the annual Christmas concert presented by the Shorter Choral Club, of which Annina Mueller is director. This concert was given last Sunday afternoon. The Choral Club repeated the performance of the cantata, "The Nativity," which met with such success last year.

The music for the cantata was written by Robert Sheldon, of the Shorter College department of music, for the Choral Club. Mr. Sheldon directed the club personally Sunday afternoon. The words of the cantata were written by Ashton Jones, a well-known American poet of religious verse.

Margaret Swain was organist for the cantata, William Sokol was violinist; Edythe Taylor and Claire Davis were soloists, and Dorothy Kimsey was the narrator. Martha Griffin and Allie Hayes Richardson had charge of the staging of a tableau that was presented in connection with the cantata.

"Messiah" at Midnight Service

The Christmas portion of Handel's great oratorio "The Messiah" will be sung by the large vested choir of St. Luke's Episcopal church at the annual Christmas Eve midnight communion service at the church next Sunday (December 24) night. The service will begin at 11:30 p. m. Hugh Hodgson, organist and choirmaster of the church, will direct the choir from the piano, and Mozelle Horton Young will be at the organ. Soloists are Minna Hecker, soprano; Margaret Fisher, contralto; Eddie Drummond, tenor, and Coleman Kimbro, baritone. Rev. John Moore Walker, rector of the church, will read the text of the numbers, and will officiate at the communion service.

Candle Light Carol/Service

At 4:30 o'clock next Sunday afternoon (December 24) at the North Avenue Presbyterian church, there will be the usual candle light carol service under the direction of Emilie Parmelee, A. A. G. O., organist and choir director. The following members of the Young Artists Club of the Atlanta Music Club will play and sing traditional carols of many lands: Patricia Makinson, soprano; Virginia Wood, soprano; Alice Hegwood, soprano; William Wyatt, tenor; Garnett Trotter, baritone; Elizabeth Jackson, violinist; Wilda Coffey, harpist, and Eleanor Hodges, cellist. The harpist and friends of North Avenue Presbyterian church and the Atlanta Music Club are cordially invited.

All Saints' Midnight Service

The midnight Christmas Eve communion service at All Saints' Episcopal church next Sunday night (December 24) will feature the vested choir, under the direction of Joseph Ragan, F. A. G. O., organist and choirmaster, in a program of seven unusual Christmas carols and the offertory anthem, after which they will precede into the choral communion service. Ralph Berry, new baritone soloist of the choir, will be heard in a solo. Other soloists of the choir are Frances Woodberry, soprano; Mrs. S. G. Stukes, contralto, and Clarence Wall, tenor. Rev. Theodore Will is rector of the church. The service will begin at 11 p. m.

East Point Music Club

The East Point Music Lovers Club will give their December program at 8 o'clock Tuesday night in the First Methodist church at East Point.

Following the year's themes on "Emotions in Music" the Christmas program will illustrate the emotion of "Awe." Myrtle Trimble Pate, Atlanta soprano, will be the guest artist singing three solos appropriate to the Yuletide, "The Infant Jesus," Yon; "Christmas Song," by Adams, and "Ave Maria," by Schubert. The mixed quartet choir of the church will sing a group of Christmas carols, with Mrs. Rochelle Weldon as the accompanist. Mrs. E. C. Simmons is chairman of the December program, and Mrs. Martha L. Gowder is president of the club.

Choir to Present "The Story of Christmas"

The chorus choir of the Druid Hills Presbyterian church, under the direction of Haskell Boyter, will present the cantata "The Story of Christmas," by H. Alexander Matthews at the evening service at 7:30 p. m. tonight.

The soloists of the choir are: Marian Guy, soprano, Mrs. Walter Ward, contralto, John Gibson, tenor, and Haskell Boyter, baritone.

The choir will be assisted by Mrs. Eleanor Hodges, cellist; Mrs. Wilda Coffey, harpist; Robert Harrison, violinist, and Mrs. Haskell Boyter, accompanist.

The personnel of the choir includes: Sopranos, Mrs. Charles T. Ansley, Mina Baxter, Frances Coe, Mrs. David Cooke, Dorothy Guy, Marian Guy, Mrs. R. J. Hudson, Kathleen MacKay, Louise MacKay; altos, Mrs. Jane Butterfield, Elizabeth Collings, Louise Collings, Helen Crowe, Vallie Enloe, Frances Hunt, Mrs. Ben Sisk, Lorelie Tait, Mrs. Walter Ward; tenors, Charles T. Ansley, John Gibson, D. W. Lyle; basses, John R. Boyd, Haskell Boyter, Robert Ingram, Ben Sisk, D. T. Sorrells, and Richard Stockton.

"The Hanging of The Greens"

The public is invited to the annual Y. W. C. A. Christmas ceremonial, "The Hanging of the Greens" Monday afternoon, 5:30 o'clock, in the parlors, 37 Auburn avenue. Interpretation of the significance of the Christmas greens, the holly, ivy, mistletoe and carol singing make this unique among all the Christmas programs presented in the city. Mrs. Robert B. Church Jr., will be the reader and Mrs. Myrtle Trimble Pate, soloist. Edna Whitmore directs the Y. chorus, composed of outstanding voices from all Y. W. C. A. clubs. Tea will be served by the membership committee preceding the ceremonial.

Christmas Carol Service At O'Keefe Junior High

O'Keefe Junior High school's sixth annual Christmas carol program under the auspices of the O'Keefe Junior High school Parent-Teacher Association will take place this afternoon at 4 o'clock in the O'Keefe auditorium at Sixth street and Techwood drive. J. D. Shackelford is director of music at O'Keefe.

A vested choir of 175 voices composed of boys and girls from the Glee Clubs will sing carols and special Christmas selections from an elevated stage with lighting effects. The school's orchestra will also play appropriate selections with a featured brass duet for trumpet and trombone. The Roberts Trio will render a selected composition for strings. The public is cordially invited to attend this program.

Christmas Music Service At First Baptist Church

A program of Christmas music will be given at the First Baptist church next Sunday night (December 24) at 7:30 o'clock. George Lee Hamrick is organist and choir director. Dr. Ellis A. Fuller is pastor of the church.

Soloists with the choir of 30 voices are Vivian Bryant Thompson, soprano; Mildred Johnson, contralto; James C. Richardson, tenor; Robert Guy, baritone, and Norman LaMotte, bass.

Candle Light Program At Park Street Church

At 5 o'clock this afternoon the combined choirs of Park street Methodist church will present the annual candle light vesper program of Christmas music under the direction of Mrs. Edwin Aiken, organist and choir director, with Mrs. Denny C. Starnes as associate director and soprano soloist. Mrs. Stephen May, of New York City, will give the scriptural readings.

Among the numbers the choir will sing will be "And the Glory of the Lord," from Handel's "Messiah"; "The First Noel," English carol; "Lo, How a Rose E'er Blooming," Praetorius; "March of the Kings," French carol; "Good Christian Men Rejoice," German carol; "Alleluia, Christ Is Born," Slovak carol; "With a Torch, Jeannette, Isabella," French carol; and "Glory to God in the Highest," Pergolesi.

Mrs. Aiken's organ prelude will be "The Shepherd's Song," Karg-Elert; the offertory, "Lo, Now a Rose Appeareth," Kreckel, and the postlude, "Walloon Christmas Rhapsody," by Ferrari.

The Agnes Scott Choir, under the direction of Lewis H. Johnson, with C. W. Diekmann at the organ, will give their annual Christmas service at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon in the Bucher Scott gymnasium auditorium. The public is invited.

The program will open with Mr. Diekmann playing the Overture to Handel's "Messiah," followed by a group of traditional English carols, sung by the choir, including "The First Nowell," "A Babe So Tender," and "When the Crimson Sun Has Set."

This will be followed by a group of traditional Czech carols, arranged by Kricka, including "Harken to Me, Mother Dear," "Strangers Say a King Is Born," "Gloria in Excelsis," and "Sleep, Baby, Sleep." Then Mr. Diekmann will play an organ solo, "Noel Languedogien," by Guilmant.

A French carol, "Bring a Torch, Jeannette, Isabella," and "Carol of the Russian Children (from White Russia)," arranged by Gaul, are in the next group, and then a group of traditional Polish carols, arranged by Geer, listing "When the Saviour Christ Is Born," "Hark! in the Darkness," "Hark! Bethlehem, and 'Sleep, Thou, my Jewel.'"

Another organ solo, the "Pastoral Symphony," from Handel's "The Messiah," will be followed by the closing group, "Adoration of the Shepherds," "Sleep, Holy Babe," and "Silent Night." Solo parts will be sung by Betty Kyle and Jane Moses.

Katherine de Jarnette, director of music of the school will direct the cantata. Mrs. Eleanor Cole will be the accompanist. Assisting on the program will be a trio of singers from Girls' High school, Edna Screven, Virginia Lee Brown, and Martha Cochran. Shepherds will be Troy Reeves, Sidney Williams, and Bill Kennedy. Wise men will be Walter Mosley, Louis Pourron and Howard Little. The part of Mary will be played by Mary Ann Bartlett; Joseph by James Couch, and the Angels will be Margaret Lynch, Betty Howard, Betty Sutherland and Ruth Spurlin.

The Rockmart Music Club

The Rockmart Music Lovers Club, under the direction of Mrs. Helen B. Wiley, president, is growing both in numbers and in interest. Ten new members have been added since the beginning of the fall season.

Attractive new year books have been compiled. The covers are of green with hand-painted figures.

The course of study for the year is "People and Music" by Thomasine C. McGehee.

At the opening banquet held at the Woman's Club, Evelyn Jackson, of Atlanta, past president of the Georgia Federation of Music Clubs, was guest speaker.

The November invitation meeting was a dramatic and musical presentation of Peer Gynt, with Virginia Simerville as reader, and the musical numbers were rendered by Mesdames Frank R. Clark, Helen B. Wiley, Charles White, Misses Mary Jones and Nell Brown.

A Christmas cantata, "The King Cometh," will be presented by members of the Choral Club, under the direction of Mary McDonald.

Other plans of the club are a Colonial costume tea for February; a recital by Walter Kastner, well-known violinist, with assisting artists, in March, and in April the annual club ensemble recital.

Officers are President, Mrs. Helen B. Wiley; vice president, Evelyn Smith; recording secretary, Mrs. Olive Watford, corresponding secretary, Nelle Brown, and treasurer, Eleanor Wails.

The titles of the tableaux will be "Annunciation," "Shepherds in the Field," "Angels," "Kings of the Orient," "Shepherds and Kings," "Manger Scene," "Adoration of the Shepherds," and "Adoration of the Magi."

Royston Program

Christmas carols and the story of Christmas were used when the Royston Junior Music Club members and their counselor, Louise Tucker, presented the program at the senior Music Club meeting Saturday afternoon. The theme quotation was "Wherever people gather together, I would have music, for it brings happiness and contentment," Weber.

The hostesses were: Mrs. C. E. Veal, Sallye Veal, Louise Tucker, Maxine Royston, Mrs. W. B. Whatley, and Mrs. B. H. Horton.

RECORDED RHYTHMS

CHOPIN WALTZES, Edward Kilenyi: The great critic and author, James Huneker, writing years ago, summed up these compositions of the well-loved and much-played Chopin as "dances for the soul, not the body." At the same time, he added "It is going too far not to dance to some of this music." The principal point that Huneker made, however, is that such dances are for "superior beings who dance with intellectual joy, with the joy that comes with making exquisite curves and patterns." Here, it seems to me, is the music of charm in the Chopin waltzes. For listeners, there is not an equal joy in curves and patterns? While many of the waltzes presented by Columbia in this release have lost something of their appeal in the fact that they are so often badly played, such a situation certainly does not apply in the case of these recordings. For Kilenyi, whose appearances under such conductors as Beecham, Mengelberg and Muck, brings to them a rare talent. His is a flawless technique, a warm tone and a correct approach. Like a good actor who interprets a role well, Kilenyi makes the listener feel that here is the soul of Chopin. The album contains five records, and presents 15 waltzes. These include the very well known Waltz No. 2 in A Flat Major, the Waltz No. 6 in D Flat Major (the familiar Minute Waltz), and the Waltz No. 5 in A Flat Major. (Columbia Set M-390)

EIN HELDENLEBEN, RICHARD STRAUSS, Philadelphia Orchestra: Here is an important recording that lovers of symphonic music will take to their hearts. A truly monumental work is here brought to vivid life by Eugene Ormandy and the Philadelphia Orchestra. With this "Hero's Life," which depicts the life of an ideal man, there is related in a marvelous tonal way a story—for want of a better word—that is truly inspiring. In this Victor recording, the listener hears and yes, sees, a man's struggle to victory over most of the ills that flesh is heir to. It is in six sections, beginning with a thrilling theme that seems to leap out of darkness. The second section's most appealing music is in the "protest" development, which is passionate and beautiful, without being violent or appealing to animalistic impulses in human nature. The third section deals with the "hero's" love—and there's certainly nothing sissy about it. The fourth section is distinguished by a remarkable vigor and strength, while the fifth contains hints of another tone-poem by Strauss, the well-known "Don Juan." The sixth section characterized by its summation of musical ideas, and a poignant violin melody. Ormandy gives a splendid reading of this masterful work, a work full of nobility, idealism and philosophy. Here is music that one can live with. (Victor, Album M-610.) —LEE FUHRMAN.

Those Christmas Cakes Are Next

By SALLY SAVER.

AS CHRISTMAS draws nearer you'll recapture, if you're lucky, some of the pre-Christmas mood of your childhood. Can you remember the delightful bustle, the joyous business with which the house was astir for days before Santa's arrival? There was something of happy mystery in the air, as members of the family returned from shopping with bundles which they furtively slipped into a drawer or if the bundles were large, under the bed.

Then, oh joy, when the last letters to Santa Claus had been sent up the chimney, mother went into the kitchen with the announcement that today she was going to bake the Christmas cakes. That day the anticipation became almost unbearably delightful, because we knew that before supper time mother would have produced a Lady Baltimore cake, a coconut cake, a spice cake and others, perhaps, to add to the cake shelf which already held the fruit cake, made sometime earlier. On that wonderful day we stayed within easy call, eager to run errands for a busy mother, whose cheerfully hummed tunes we could hear from outside the kitchen door. The kitchen door always was closed during the important hours of measuring and mixing and we respected this important seclusion, as we remembered to tiptoe through the house, fearful lest our scampering should make those cakes fall!

We started this self-imposed curb on our spirits long before the cakes were in the oven out of sheer respect for their importance in the Christmas scheme.

Now that we're quite grown up it seems to me it is our responsibility to make sure that those who now are children be given some of these experiences which later on become such happy memories. So get out your mixing bowl and spoon, measuring cup, cake pans and recipes and let's engage in the pleasant task of creating Christmas cakes. Here are some, not difficult to make, which will repay you for your trouble with their creamy goodness. First, let's try the snowy coconut cake filled with an orange-lemon cream suggestive of sunshine.

Coconut Cake.

3 1-2 cups cake flour
5 teaspoons baking powder
3-4 teaspoon salt
3-4 cup butter
2 cups sugar
1 1-2 cups milk
1 teaspoon vanilla
5 egg whites

Sift flour, measure and sift several times with baking powder and salt. Cream butter, until creamy, add sugar gradually, creaming in well. When mixture resembles whipped cream set aside, and beat egg whites. Add small amount of flour mixture to butter and sugar and beat in; add one-fourth of the milk; mix thoroughly. Continue alternating dry ingredients and milk, beating after each addition until batter is smooth. Add flavoring; fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Turn into three eight-inch well-greased layer cake pans and bake in moderate oven, 350 degrees, for 30 minutes.

The Filling.

1 tablespoon butter
1-3 cup sugar
2 1-2 tablespoons cornstarch
1 egg yolk
1-2 cup water
1-2 cup orange juice
Grated rind of orange
1 tablespoon lemon juice

Melt butter in top of double boiler; stir in sugar and cornstarch. When well blended, place over hot water and stir in all ingredients except egg yolk. Continue stirring until thick; cover and cook five minutes. Stir in egg yolk, slightly beaten and remove from stove. Cool.

The Frosting.

Cover outside and top of cake with your favorite boiled frosting, using the seven-minute variety or one with marshmallow base. Before icing hardens sprinkle liberally with coconut.

An old-fashioned dried apple cake may be used as a substitute for fruit cake. The following is an old recipe:

Dried Apple Cake.

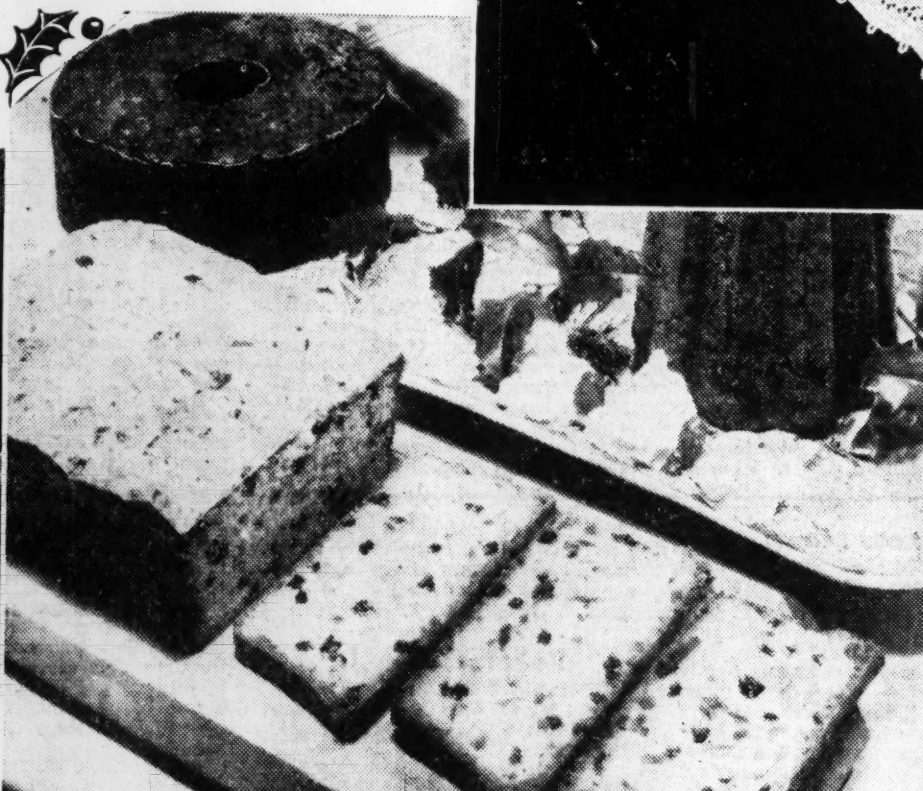

3 cups dried apples
2 cups molasses
1 cup brown sugar
2 eggs
1 cup milk
5 cups flour
1 1-4 cups shortening
1 cup raisins
2 teaspoons soda in milk
1-4 teaspoon ground cloves
1-2 teaspoon cinnamon
1-4 teaspoon salt

Soak apples until soft, drain and chop or grind. Simmer the apples and molasses until the juice is thick, stirring often. Cool. Cream the shortening and sugar thoroughly; add the well-beaten eggs, then the milk and flour alternately. Add gradually the apple mixture, raisins and spices. Bake in a tube pan, bottom lined with paper, at 300 degrees, about two hours.

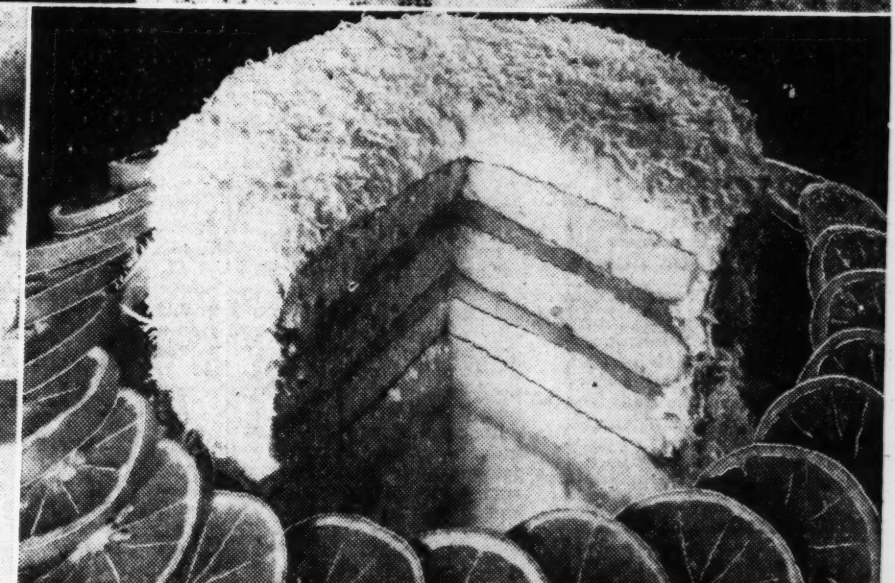

Fruit bread is a seasonal goody you will want to include in your Christmas baking. Spread with butter or cheese. It is grand for drop-in guests, of which there is a pleasant abundance at holiday time, or for buffet meals.

A cake of ambrosial goodness is this coconut with orange filling.

Fruit bread spread with cheese will fill many holiday needs.

Dried apple cake, quite inexpensive, makes good stand-in for fruit cake.

DID JUSTICE TRIUMPH?

By PETER LEVINE.

THE body of Mrs. Sarah Stout, 56-year-old wife of William Stout, a farmer who lived on Axtel Ridge, in Vinton county, Ohio, was found on the morning of November 17, 1926, by a small boy who had been sent to the Stout home on an errand.

Mrs. Stout had been beaten and choked, then kerosene had been poured over her and ignited—as she lay unconscious, or perhaps already dead, in front of the heating stove in the sitting room. However, the murderer had not provided the proper draft for the flames, with the result that they had soon flickered out.

Sheriff Maude Collins, informed at McArthur of the discovery, located 65-year-old William Stout in a field four miles from his home. The farmer could offer no explanation of the crime.

"I left early in the morning and have been down here alone," he told the woman sheriff. "Sarah packed my lunch and I ate it out in the fields. I can't imagine who would do this awful thing."

As Maude Collins knew, no farmer in southern Ohio bore a better reputation than Bill Stout. To suspect him of the deed seemed unthinkable. He had always been a temperate, thrifty, law-abiding man; and no one had ever heard of him having trouble with his wife.

SON SAW FATHER AT WORK IN FIELD

None of the neighbors had seen any strangers on the ridge that morning, so Mrs. Collins went to a farm tenanted by Stout's son, Arthur, 33—one of three grown sons by a former marriage—to check with the father's story that he had been down there since early morning. Arthur said at once that his father had spoken the truth. "I saw him through the trees several times," he said.

Mrs. Collins followed wagon tracks through the cornfields and saw unmistakable evidence that some one had worked diligently there. Bill Stout's wagon, loaded with ears of corn, stood under a tree; and at a near-by spring Mrs. Collins observed the remains of a lunch.

"Where you around your place all day, Arthur?" she asked the son.

"No, I wasn't," Arthur replied. "Pop shouted to me to take back the wagon tongue I'd borrowed several weeks ago. After I finished chopping some wood, I went over to his place with the wagon tongue."

He said that he had dragged the wagon tongue on horseback and left it in the barnyard. He didn't go into the house, he explained, because he knew his father wasn't there.

"You didn't even drop in to pass the time of day with your mother?"

"No, we haven't been on speaking terms for some time. I guess you know why."

Mrs. Collins did know, but had forgotten.

About a year before, she recalled, Arthur Stout had brought a housekeeper, aged 23, to his four-room home, where he had been living with his two sons, Artie, 13, and Fred, 9, since his wife left him. The housekeeper, Inez Palmer, formerly of Moundsville, W. Va., being not only young but pretty, there had been some gossip in the community.

This gossip had reached the ears of Sarah Stout, an intensely moral sort of person. Mrs. Stout had felt it her duty to swear out a warrant for the arrest of her stepson and his housekeeper on a charge of living together without benefit of clergy. According to report, Bill Stout had not at all approved of taking such drastic action.

The matter had come before a justice of the peace, who had released the pair on bonds signed by Arthur's father. They had immediately returned to Axtel Ridge—undoubtedly smoldering with resentment.

Sheriff Collins, pondering this episode, returned to the murder scene, then swore in a couple of deputies from among the neighbors to keep watch over the grounds. She did not want the place trampled because she planned to send to Fomeroy, 40 miles south on the Ohio river, for bloodhounds. By now it was dark, so she returned to McArthur.

The dogs arrived the next day. Mrs. Collins set them to tracking the path of the wagon tongue from Arthur's place to his father's. They followed the path right up to the kitchen door.

The sheriff witnessed this performance with considerable interest. She noted that the dogs, after reaching the kitchen door, wheeled to where Arthur's horse had stood. There they sat down and howled. They lost the scent at that point because Arthur had mounted his horse and trotted away.

"So it appeared that Arthur Stout had lied."

Mrs. Collins called on him again and questioned him. This time he admitted he had gone as far as the kitchen door, but insisted that he had not entered the house.

Mrs. Collins did some more pondering, then ordered Arthur's arrest, even though she still had no direct evidence against him. Deputy Sheriff Ray Cox made the arrest—noting that Housekeeper Palmer kissed Arthur with considerable fervor as he parted with her.

Arraigned before Justice of the Peace G. W. Specht, the suspect waived examination and was bound over to the grand jury on a charge of first degree murder.

Stout Sr. had little to say about his son's arrest. "I can't believe that Arthur did it," he declared. "but if he did, he certainly ought to be punished. If he is indicted and tried, then I'll want to tell the jury that he was a good boy, but I'll have to admit that he and Sarah didn't get along. There's no denying that, and I don't intend to deny it."

Inez Palmer walked six miles to jail at least once a week, bringing Arthur delicacies. Permission to see him was denied, on orders of Prosecutor William J. Jones.

However, Mrs. Collins several times caught the young woman talking to him through the jail windows.

Meanwhile, Bill Stout, left alone, moved down to Arthur's cabin, so that his son's housekeeper could cook and provide for him.

Arthur was indicted on February 17, 1927, and Sheriff Collins and Deputy Cox started out to serve the venire from which a jury would be drafted to hear the case plished, a new mystery developed. And on March 21, before this was accomplished.

On Thursday, March 10, Sheriff Collins received a telephone message from the general store at Oreton, where Axtel Ridge folk got their mail. The man at the other end of the wire said that he was talking for Inez Palmer.

FARMER STOUT GONE, "NEVER COMING BACK"

"She asked me to phone you that Bill Stout has left the county," said the man. "He left last night, saying he was going west."

"For how long?" the sheriff demanded.

"Forever."

"What?"

"That's what the Palmer girl told me to tell you. Bill told her he was going away and wasn't ever coming back."

Here was something new to ponder about. If Bill Stout had suddenly disappeared, then that night meant that he had been the guilty person, after all. Sheriff Collins did not relish the thought of having an innocent man in jail, while the real culprit slipped through her clutches.

She and Deputy Cox hastened to the Arthur Stout home to get further details from Miss Palmer.

"Mr. Stout acted queerly ever since he came down here to live," the housekeeper told them. "He would sit for long periods, staring into space and saying nothing. I couldn't figure what was wrong with him. Finally, one night after the children had gone to bed, he made a confession to me."

"Confession?"

The young woman nodded. "Yes, he confessed to me that it was him that choked his wife to death."

She said that on the previous day she had packed a lunch for Stout after he told her he would be out all day, mending fences. He'd been gone all day, and had returned just before dark. Miss Palmer said that he seemed to be brooding more than ever. And then, after dinner, he had suddenly got up and left.

"He didn't tell you where he was going?" inquired the sheriff.

"No, only that he was going out west."

Mrs. Collins and her deputy set out to follow the trail of the patched fences. Soon they found Bill Stout's dinner bucket underneath a tree. In it was a crudely-written document, purporting to be a will, in which the farmer bequeathed both farms to Arthur, cutting off his other two sons.

"Seems strange he would cut off the other boys," the sheriff commented. "Maybe it's his way of making up to Arthur for being accused of a crime he himself committed."

"That will couldn't stand up in law,"

Cox pointed out. "The Ohio code requires two witnesses to the signature of the testator, and no witnesses have signed here. The will's no good."

The deputy examined some footprints in the mud leading to and from the dinner bucket. Then he went to the Arthur Stout cabin and borrowed a pair of Bill's shoes. They fitted the tracks perfectly.

"It's peculiar a fellow of Bill's size didn't make deeper impressions in the soft earth," Cox remarked, as he studied the tracks. "Look, Mrs. Collins, see how much deeper my tracks sink down, and Stout and I weigh about the same. Something funny about this."

The sheriff suddenly took the shoes and put them on her own feet. Then she strode up and down beside the original tracks leading to and from the dinner bucket.

The impressions the shoes now made were of the same depth as the originals.

"That explains it!" cried Cox. "Bill Stout couldn't have been wearing the shoes, but somebody much lighter—either the Palmer girl, or one of the kids!"

"Right," said Sheriff Collins.

"They returned to the cabin."

"Did the shoes fit the tracks?" Inez Palmer asked.

"Perfectly," said the sheriff.

Then they began questioning her about Stout's preparations for departure—or flight—the night before. It developed that he had not worn his best clothes, nor packed a bag, nor taken his car.

Sheriff Palmer produced the note, or will, found in the bucket. Immediately Miss Palmer's face lighted up.

"That's a confession, isn't it?" she said.

"Now will you let Arthur come home?"

"I'll talk to Prosecutor Jones about it," was the answer.

The officers returned to McArthur and hunted up the cashier of the bank where William Stout had maintained an account. The cashier said the signature on the "will" was not Stout's signature and produced several canceled checks to prove it.

Prosecutor Jones agreed that, as matters now looked, Farmer Stout had not disappeared voluntarily. He authorized the arrest of Inez Palmer, so that Arthur's cabin could be thoroughly searched in her absence.

Before the officers got started back to Axtel Ridge, they had a caller—Mrs. Joseph Camp, nearest neighbor of Arthur Stout, who lived midway up a slope overlooking Arthur's home.

"I saw you down there this morning and wanted to talk to you, but was afraid," Mrs. Camp began. "I've got something to tell her. You see, that Palmer woman used to bang away on her piano all the time, but soon after Bill Stout moved down there she quit playing. I learned from one of the boys that Bill made her stop it—said he considered it disrespectful to the memory of his wife."

"Go on," said Mrs. Collins, wondering what this had to do with the case.

"Well, about noon yesterday I was in my kitchen getting lunch ready when I heard her again—playing and singing at the top of her voice. I wondered about it at the time and figured that Mr. Stout would put a halt to it when he returned. But he hasn't come back, has he?"

Mrs. Collins shook her head. "No," she said soberly, "he hasn't."

In the morning they were back on Axtel Ridge. As they neared the cabin they saw young Artie and Fred carrying a big bucket of water toward the cabin. The officers slowed down and gave them a lift.

WATER IN THE WELL "NOT GOOD TO DRINK"

"What's the matter with the well in back of the house, boys?" the sheriff inquired. "Is the windlass broken?"

"No, there's nothing wrong with the windlass," Fred responded, "but Inez says the water in there isn't good to drink any more."

Mrs. Collins and her deputy looked at each other without saying anything.

Soon they had Inez locked up in McArthur. Soon they were back at the cabin with ropes and grappling hooks—and Coroner Walter Swaim. Soon they found Bill Stout in the deep well back of the house.

The body had caught on a ledge 20 feet below the water level, and had been well preserved by the icy water. Coroner Swaim said that death had been caused by a terrific blow which had crushed the back of the head.

Mrs. Collins tried to question Artie and Fred, who had been placed in the children's home before the search. But they cried and said they wanted to see Inez first.

The housekeeper proved very difficult, dodging all questions about the second killing. Then Arthur Stout was brought into the room, and she rushed to him and threw her arms around him. Soon he was led away, back to his cell.

Jones drummed on the desk with his pencil. Sheriff Collins walked to a window and looked out. Not a word was spoken for five minutes. Then—

"I killed the old man!" Miss Palmer cried out. "I killed him because he—he tried to rape me!—there in his son's home!"

The officers did not believe the explanation, but let her talk on.

"He was sitting in front of the fireplace with his back toward me when I got the notion. I just banged him over the head with a piece of cordwood and he keeled over. I tried to drag him out to the well but couldn't do it alone. So I got Artie to help."

They managed to get the dead man over on his side, she continued, then they pushed the windlass out of the way and heaved their burden over the edge and into the well.

"I didn't want him here to be a witness against Arthur," she added.

She said that, on the morning after the killing, she donned a pair of Bill's shoes and walked to the spot where she planted the forged will and dinner bucket. Then she trudged back home and carefully cleaned and shined the shoes.

Young Artie Stout gulped hard when shown Inez's confession. Then he began to talk.

According to him, Inez Palmer had killed not only Bill Stout, but his wife, too.

"Inez and I walked down the ridge to grandma's that day," he said. "We told grandma we wanted to borrow a shotgun, and she stooped down in the closet to get it. Inez hit her over the head with a flatiron while she stooped, but she turned around and began to fight. Inez got her by the throat and choked her."

Inez decided to burn the body and the house, he continued. At her direction, he got a can of coal oil out of the kitchen and poured it over the body. Presently the flames began to light up the room, and they walked out and went home.

Prosecutor Jones, listening to the lad's story, realized that this new version of the crime tended to exonerate Arthur Stout. Then he asked who had suggested that grandma be killed.

"My father," Artie replied. "He was sore because she had him arrested. He told Inez to go over there and do it."

This left Arthur still a principal, so he was placed on trial before Common Pleas Judge William J. Darby for first degree murder. He was defended by two attorneys employed by his father for that purpose immediately after his arrest. Inez appeared as a state's witness, but said nothing to incriminate either herself or the defendant.

Another witness proved more helpful. This was Lewis Palmer, the girl's 18-year-old brother, who had lived at the Axtel Ridge cabin for a while. Palmer testified that Arthur had offered him $50 if he would kill both the father and stepmother and burn the house to hide the crime.

Arthur Stout was his own worst witness. In loud, defiant tones he denied directing his son or Miss Palmer to kill. He insisted that he had no knowledge whatever of the crime. His counsel ridiculed the state's case.

Indeed, the state's case did not seem ironclad. But for young Artie's accusation, and Lewis Palmer's testimony, about all the prosecution had against the defendant was that he told about not going as far as the door, the time he returned the wagon tongue. Moreover, the son's testimony did not even place Stout at the murder scene.

But the jury, after three hours, convicted him of murder in the second degree. On March 25 he was sentenced to life imprisonment.

Four days later the grand jury indicted Inez Palmer for the second killing.

On April 21 the accused woman sent word to Judge Darby that she wished to plead guilty to a general charge of homicide. She was taken to court, where Judge Darby questioned her about her past life. She told him that she had been farmed out to various homes while in her early, early teens, and had left place after place because men of the house pursued her.

Finally she had met Arthur Stout, who promised to marry her as soon as he was divorced. The home on Axtel Ridge was the only home she'd ever had.

After hearing this, Judge Darby decided against the extreme penalty, and sentenced her to the Marysville woman's reformatory for life. At the prison, her industry attracted the attention of Superintendent Louise Mittendorf. In 1930 Miss Palmer was made the prison's head housekeeper. In 1938 she was pardoned.

Arthur Stout is still in prison.

About Rumanians.

ONE HOUSE CONTAINS US. By Oscar Leonard. Liveright Publishing Co., New York. 301 pp. $2.

One principal purpose of this novel appears to be a desire to convince the public that the Rumanians are a lusty people, which many have guessed from the well-publicized activities of a younger King Carol. The novel was adapted from "Robul," a Rumanian story by Dimitri Theodorescu, and delineates the rise of a practical and amorous politician through the good offices of his "ghost" writer, who finally arrives at an end he certainly did not deserve.

While the plot is rather thin, the book is at times interesting and not at all badly handled. W. G. K.

Lives and Loves.

TOWN HOUSE. By Tait Morley. Richard R. Smith Co., New York. 278 pp. $2.50.

The London Town House had a history—the long, long years it belonged to the family—and when it suddenly was sold, to be turned into flats, its inward resentment knew no bounds.

But if the Town House's history knew moments of triumph, its future was to experience many new emotions and experiences. It is of such that Tait Morley has built his story—the lives and loves and hatreds, and joys and tragedies of its new tenants.

Morley has written a story of compelling interest and bright humor—one all lovers of good literature will enjoy. J. T.

New Book News

A tenth anniversary edition of John Cowper Powys' "The Meaning of Culture" (Norton) has been published.

Culture, as treated in this delightful and altogether worthwhile volume, is not the cheap, superficial sort of thing extolled in correspondence school advertisements, but rather that intangible, almost spiritual quality which represents the distilled essence of real learning and living.

"One rather felicitous definition," writes the author, is this: "Culture is what is over after you have forgotten all you have definitely set out to learn."

"In this sally," he observes, "you get at least a useful warning against associating culture too closely with the academic paraphernalia of education."

The new printing has a special introduction, the theme of which is suggested by this extract:

"There must be, I think, a certain psychological interest, both for the writer and his readers, in noting the various changes—some of them developments, others, no doubt, reversions—that occur in the inner life that we call culture during the passing of time."

"Ten years have now gone by since I added the final touches to this book... and how many mental, emotional and spiritual 'alarms and excursions' have occurred, during this decade, in the lives of all of us—and how many unperceived events!"

Mr. Powys deliberately tries to avoid reducing his theme to definitions. There are, however, suggestions as to what culture is and discussions of factors and conditions that contribute to its development. As the author says, "It is perhaps unwise to attempt any single dogmatic definition of culture; but by approaching the subject first from one angle and then from another it seems as though in a gradual process of elimination and selection a general attitude of mind toward this complicated subject may emerge."

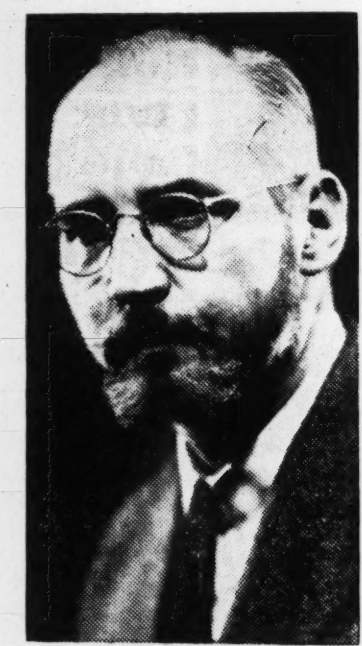

Mr. Powys' treatment is in line with this quotation. The book is divided into two parts. In the first, the author attempts to get at an understanding of culture in terms of its relationship to philosophy, literature, poetry, painting and religion. In the second, he is concerned with the application of culture, and in separate

ALL THE TOMORROWS. By Naomi Lane Babson. Reynal & Hitchcock, New York. 390 pp. $2.50.

"All the Tomorrows" is the vivid story of a modern Chinese family lost in the chaos of the great social upheaval in China. Crammed with characters, ranging from war lords and courtesans to bandits and coolies, the story is written around several generations of a rich and influential Chinese family, centering upon Felix Lo and his dramatic rise to power as a financier.

Events in the lives of Felix Lo's chapters discusses culture and happiness, love, nature, the art of reading, human relations and destiny.

There is much more to "The Meaning of Culture" than is indicated by the title. Mr. Powys is a widely read man; he knows much about philosophy; he has not been too busy to neglect nature; he is familiar with art and music; in a word, he is a cultured person. And by means of his book, the reader gets, along with an understanding of culture, a new appreciation of what each of these fields has to offer.

As for the practical contributions of the book, Mr. Powys suggests there are certain characteristics which the cultured persons generally possess. For one thing, he has developed a philosophy of life. He also recognizes the unlimited contributions of books. He is somewhat stoical. He has developed the technique of detachment. He knows what to forget, and at the same time how to recall pleasant memories. He is not argumentative. He is not dogmatic. He does not thrust his opinions on another, nor does he confess his philosophy on every occasion. He is sympathetic, imaginative, and observant. He is a great deal more, of course, but these few things are sufficiently indicative.

Mr. Powys is a member of the famous literary family which includes Llewellyn and Theodore F. Powys. He is a graduate of Corpus Christi College, Cambridge, and is author of "Wolf Solent," "A Philosophy of Solitude" and "The Psychology of Happiness."

A few years ago, Dr. Donald A. Laird, Colgate University psychologist, in collaboration with Dr. Charles G. Muller, wrote a widely read and highly interesting book entitled "Sleep: Why We Need It and How to Get It." In the same delightful style, he has produced "How to Increase Your Brain Power" (Crowell), which shows how memory, word fluency, and reasoning may all be improved. His newest book abounds in practical suggestions and scientific tests and exercises. For those interested in self-improvement, it should prove altogether helpful.

For many readers, the best possible recommendation of "Morals for Moderns" by Ralph Habas (Liveright) is the fact that the introduction for the volume is written by Hendrik Willem van Loon.

Regarding this book, the author of "The Story of Mankind," "The Story of the Bible," and many other worthwhile popular successes, writes:

"Today our world is sick and our world can only return to normal health if all of us are willing to lend a hand. But before we can hope to do so, we must arrive at a correct diagnosis of our ailments. Such works as this by Ralph Habas can greatly assist us in finding out why we have so sadly strayed from that condition of well-being to which we are entitled and which will be within our reach the moment we have made up our minds to take the matter seriously in hand and drop everything else for the sublime purpose of getting well."

Mr. Habas has provided an utterly frank and altogether provocative discussion of all aspects of ethical and moral questions.

Against that background is cast the story of Jamie Hill, convict and redemptioner more than anxious to "tweak the royal nose."

How he manages to give a few light tweaks and avoid the complete loss of his own, carries the reader through many an engrossing chapter of Stillman's able story, a thrill with a tale of high intrigue and gallant adventure for the youth of hardly 15 summers.

While basically a story of adolescents, it will keep many an adult eye peering through the pages with the youngster torn from the dusty history of that day. Recommended for all ages without a qualm.

Readers' Clinic (Books You Need)

By EUNICE COSTON
Of the Atlanta
Carnegie Library

"We expect to build a house in the next year or two," said the young wife as the couple walked into the Clinic office, "and neither of us knows a thing about interior decoration. So we want you to give us a list of books that will give us some idea of the general principles as well as a knowledge of different periods in furniture."

"And I came along so you wouldn't, between you, make it too feminine," interpolated the husband. "Besides, I see no reason why men shouldn't be as interested in having their homes properly furnished as women. So I'm going to read these right along with Mary."

The Book Doctor detected a slightly defiant note in his voice.

"I know a lot of men who are just as interested in interior decoration and period furniture as women," she said. "And I believe, from my own experience with the books for the average reader, not the professional decorator, that you can get a good deal of help by reading. As a starter, why don't you try Jackson's 'Study of Interior Decoration'? It is written for the use of individual student rather than for professional decorators but lays down the basic principles of home decoration."

"I think we both need several books on period furniture," Mary remarked. "Legs and arms and backs seem very confusing to me. I can't tell a Sheraton from a Chippendale chair and I get an inferiority complex when people talk about baroque and rococo!"

"I know a book for you to consult as to the meaning of those terms and other similar ones. It is 'Period Furniture Handbook' by Gould and is a quick reference book on styles of furniture ranging from the Gothic to the American Victorian. It amounts to a dictionary of terms but gives enough explanation of various styles for you to recognize them at least superficially."

"Fine," he said. "But I really want to know something of the history of the periods and really go into the subject a little deeper. Is there one book more complete than the others?"

"There are several good ones," answered the B. D. "But I think Eberlein's 'Practical Book of Period Furniture' would probably be the best for your purpose. It is clearly presented and has profuse illustrations which familiarize you with the peculiar features of each period. It takes up the English, American colonial and French periods."

"Wasn't there another book by Eberlein on interior decoration?" said Mary. "It seems to me I saw one at the library that was not just period furniture."

"Yes, it is called 'The Practical Book of Interior Decoration.' It's divided into three parts, the first giving a synopsis of interior decoration in foreign countries, the second applying these lessons to modern needs, while the third suggests various possible combinations of period furniture."

"What about early American furniture?" they asked in unison.

"Early American Furniture," by Cornelius, is an excellent general treatment of the subject," said the Book Doctor. "And Merse's 'Furniture of the Olden Time' is good for identifying individual pieces. It has many illustrations with very clear explanations of each piece given in the text."

The young man was busily making notes.

"We haven't decided yet," he admitted, "what style of architecture we are going to have. We are beginning on the inside and working out. So maybe we'd better have some books on modern interiors."

Mary laughed.

"It would be just like us," she said. "To learn all about period furniture and then build a modernistic house that would have to be furnished with geometrical modern furniture!"

"There are some very attractive books on modern interiors," and the B. D. began running through the catalog. "Let's see—there's Palmer's 'Modern Furnishing and Decoration.' That gives a good idea of tendencies in modern interiors. And along with that you would want Ionides' 'Colour in Everyday Rooms' which discusses color in every phase in the modern home."

"Do these books give pictures of the whole room or just individual pieces?"

"Most of them give at least a corner of the room so you will get possible furniture combinations. And that reminds me of a lovely book—Roberts' 'Inside 100 Homes.' Different periods and types of decorating are included in this book of interiors and here you will often find pictures of whole rooms."

"I am certainly going to look through that carefully," said Mary emphatically. "I have seen some beautiful pieces of furniture completely killed by their surroundings. It is the placing of furniture or bric-a-brac that either brings it out or allows it to be completely ignored. By the way, I think I'd better have something, too, that is just plain commonsense—not too 'period' or too modern."

"Winifred Fales has written just that sort of book in her 'What's New in Home Decorating,'" the B. D. replied. "It is sane and sensible and discusses such practical things as color schemes, textiles, rugs, furniture arrangements and other everyday problems. It, too, is well illustrated and was published in 1936 which makes it very up-to-date."

The nice young couple rose to go. "There's still another," added the Book Doctor. "Emily Post of etiquette fame, has written a book on home decoration, too. It is 'The Personality of a House' and gives a little of everything from architecture to color schemes, period furniture and other details of interior decoration."

"We'll try to digest as much as possible of these books and when the house is built and the furniture installed you must come and see the result," said the young husband. "And I hope it will be a credit to your list—anyway, it's going to be fun to read these books."

Japan-China Struggle Inspires a Great Novel

Book Is Written With Great Skill and Understanding.

MOMENT IN PEKING. By Lin
Yutang. John Day Company, New York. 815 pp. $3.

The struggle between Japan and China was bound to inspire a great novel. The fundamental elements are all there: the breakdown of an entire civilization, the mass suffering of hundreds of millions of persons, the rise of a new order on the ashes of a traditional empire. Surprising, however, is the fact that, while the Japan-China struggle is still undecided, the book has appeared.

It is "Moment in Peking" by Lin Yutang, and it is indeed a rare novel. Through the life of one single family, and of course the inevitable marriage connections, Lin Yutang shows with terrible clarity and poetic beauty, just what has happened to the world's oldest civilization.

The book is extraordinary in form as well as content. It is long, 815 close pages. It has no sense of proportion: the author will spend eight pages on a wedding and one short paragraph covering a full year. It is complicated: a chart in the front of the book helps unravel the complicated cast of characters. It is done in the classic Chinese story form, rather than the pattern of the English novel; thus it rambles on and on, benign and philosophic, with practically no plot at all.

But you won't mind these complications. For the book is written with great skill and great understanding. Only in the two final chapters, when the Japanese have arrived to rape, loot and murder, does the author grow bitter. Only then does his nationalism assert itself. But you won't mind that, either, because these terrible things are happening to characters you have learned to love: Mulan and Manna, and their kinko.

"Moment in Peking" spans 40 years from the Boxer Rebellion to the present. It is the story of the House of Tao, rich merchants but not aristocrats. In the beginning, a funeral observance lasted three years and a wedding three days; girls' feet were bound, men wore queues; an empress was on the throne. When the book ends bobbed hair has supplanted bound feet, European clothes and science have replaced the queue, and the grand manners of the Mandarins are gone forever. It is a great tragedy, written greatly. I. H.

EMORY STUDENTS
VISIT KINGSBERY

Dr. Wager and some students from Emory University visited our school on Friday. We enjoyed having them with us.

Mr. J. H. Woods, sponsor for Mrs. Wike's grade, and F. G. Crout, sponsor for last year, visited her grade. They both were present at her assembly.

Low 5 is very interested in collecting "Gone With the Wind" pictures and clippings. These will be used in making a bulletin board exhibit.

High 5 regrets to lose Elbert Ransome, who has transferred to Home Park school.

Dr. Sutton, Mr. Coleman and several from the city hall will be present for the Christmas pageant.

The girls in Miss McKee's class enjoyed dressing dolls for the Chamber of Commerce.

To Elect President for Spring Term

Joe Brown Junior High school senior president for the 1939 spring term, will be elected Monday, December 18, when 400 pupils gather to choose their class president. Campaigns were begun last Thursday when the 10 candidates addressed the student body in the school auditorium.

Candidates for election are Billy Turpin, Paul Beane, George McPherson, Mac McCrea, Grady Boles, Billy Leach, George Haley, Billy McCalley, Clyde Davis and Hardy Nixon.

A special program on safety was presented in all Joe Brown

HOLIDAY CUSTOMS
ENACTED AT ADAIR

The fourth, fifth and sixth grades of Adair school gave a pageant Friday, the theme of which was "Christmas Customs Around the World." Many countries were represented in costume, in song, and in general stage setting. These grades have also been interested in learning something about our presidents and are writing about them.

The children of High 5 are making large Christmas paintings and decorating their room with them. Low 3 is also decorating the room for Christmas.

Low 1-1 is having a good time making Christmas cards and decorations for the room. The children of the grade are making presents for their mothers.

Low 1-2 went to a farm and saw several cows, pigs and horses. They walked down a lane and saw many things.

JANE COKER,

CHRISTMAS TREE
FOR OPPORTUNITY

The Opportunity school is to have a Christmas tree for the students and faculty on Tuesday morning, December 19. A program of Christmas carols under the direction of Mrs. Irene B. Daniel is being planned. The tree for the tree is being made by the committee for December which includes Mrs. Daniel, chairman; Mrs. Maude C. Hicks, Mrs. Marie M. Jones, Mrs. Lois Elliott and Miss Margaret Acree. A feature of the program will be a solo by Mrs. Arthur Volpi, well-known singer.

Approximately 100 dolls for the children at Hillside Cottages are being dressed by the students and faculty of the school. Much interest is being shown by the display of these dolls. Mrs. Hicks, chairman of the doll project, announced that her quota of dolls will be completed by Tuesday morning.

Major P. S. Woodward, Mrs. Marie M. Jones and Mrs. Mary Huey returned this week from Grand Rapids, Mich., where they attended the American Vocational Association on December 6, 7, 8 and 9.

The faculty enjoyed a social hour last Friday afternoon in honor of the faculty members who have birthdays during December.

Children at Highland Dress Dolls for Poor

To all our former pupils and patrons, as well as to those families which make daily contacts with us, Highland school extends warm greetings and sincere good wishes for a peaceful, happy Christmas.

The children of low-4 are having fun dressing dolls for the underprivileged children of the city. The sewing club started the project in our school and the enthusiasm spread throughout the upper grades.

Miss Green's fourth grade enjoyed making spatter work boxes for Christmas. Alfred Bowers brought a beautiful cedar Christmas tree from his farm. Nancy Hirsch brought some lovely decorations. Four of the children, Polly Dunbar, Nancy Hirsch, M. H. Moore and Jack Melville drew on the front board a scene from "The Night Before Christmas."

Third grades have been getting ready for Christmas.

A little girl in Miss Corley's class who is traveling in Florida, sent the class a horseshoe crab and some other shells.

Davis Pupils Publish
First Issue of Paper

The boys and girls at Davis have been leading happy, useful, busy lives. They are all working and looking forward to Christmas.

George Tillander, sixth grade, has the Kris Kringle contest twice.

All of them enjoyed Miss Weiland's visit to the school last week. Especially did the second and third grade boys and girls who showed and helped her make blue.

The sixth grade is glad its sponsor, Mr. William Knight, visited the school. The editorial staff of Davis Days has just finished the first issue and circulated it. They wish to thank Miss Slocum and Miss Massengale for the letters.

The fourth, fifth and sixth grade boys and girls are enjoying the study of the presidents of the United States.

The fifth grade boys and girls had an excellent program for P-T-A meeting Tuesday afternoon. They had made slides from the experiments on nature. The slides were beautifully colored and explained.

The second grade pupils have just completed brilliantly colored charm strings.

The fourth grade boys and girls can do all sorts of difficult dances and rhythms while bouncing balls.

Milton Avenue Class
Makes New Calendar

Low 3 enjoyed having first and second grades in their room for a program last week. They gave a puppet show, "Mother's Birthday Gift." Everyone seemed to have a good time.

Christmas in Mexico is the theme for a play that High 3 and High 4 pupils give for their program.

Low 6 has made some attractive calendars and cards, using blue print and water colors.

Christmas is just around the corner and our rooms are taking on a festive air. Almost every room is lovely with gaily decorated Christmas trees.

We are happy to have Mrs. Cates, our principal, back with us after her illness. We missed her so much.

A merry Christmas to all and a glad New Year.

Mothers Entertained
By Slaton Children

The Kindergarten enjoyed a visit to Faith school to see a Christmas play on December 8.

Miss Mitchell's class has invited the mothers to a program on Monday morning.

Miss Neve's class has invited the mothers to a Christmas party Monday afternoon. They will play the Christmas story and show their mothers Christmas presents.

The post office in High 2 is being used by all the grades. The postman delivers the mail twice a day.

High 3 has finished making Christmas presents.

Miss Davidson's class is having fun making Christmas presents for their mothers and daddies.

Miss Johnson's class is giving a Christmas party for the mothers on Monday morning.

High 5 is very proud of the new picture given by the sponsor, J. W. Cooper.

GWENDOLYN HARDY.

O'KEEFE DEPICTS LIFE OF ROMANS

A program on life in the Roman Empire was given on December 13 by the Latin students.

Smillie Pupils Make
President Scrapbook

The entire school is very busy making Christmas presents for mothers and daddies and friends.

It's so much fun making things for other people.

Tommy Tucker, one of the many sound effect men of Hollywood, made a visit to Ella W. Smillie school Monday, December 11. He made many sounds without instruments of any kind. Tommy Tucker made the sounds of monkeys fighting, Tarzan, the whistling of Snow White, Donald Duck and many others. We enjoyed his trip very much and hope he will visit us again some day.

All the upper grades are working on a school project together. They are making a scrapbook on "Past Presidents."

LUCY AMATO,
ELIZABETH ALLEN.

Gordon Pupils Show
Foreign Folk Dances

Several classes in Gordon school are giving a play entertainment Thursday called "Santa's Christmas Party." They will feature folk dances from many lands.

Wallace Brown is Santa Claus and Jane Walker, Mrs. Santa. Elizabeth Sings and Anne Harvey will sing solos.

The children of Low 1 are making Christmas presents for their mothers.

High and Low 1-2 children are making mats of cloth for their mothers' Christmas presents.

Low 4-1 enjoyed getting out a newspaper last week. They are enjoying singing Christmas carols, also.

The children of Low 5-1 are looking forward to a happy time during the holidays. They are planning to give a party for their mothers on Monday. They want to show their love and appreciation in every way that they can.

High 5 wishes everyone a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

The children of Low 6-1 are going to have a Christmas play.

CHRISTMAS TREES.

Several million small trees are cut each year in this country to be set up and decorated in our homes as Christmas trees. This custom is not likely to be given up by the American people, although its origin was in old Germany, and it has no connection with Christmas as a Christian celebration other than having been adopted by our people as a beautiful custom. The Christmas spirit puts us in festive mood; we want to have our homes take on a festive appearance. What is more beautiful or more in keeping with a festive spirit than these little evergreen trees, dressed up with lights and beautiful ornaments? I have loved Christmas trees as far back as I can remember as a little child.

I would not have this custom given up, for I think it is a good one. But the number of trees that are sacrificed to the Christmas spirit can amount to a considerable loss in our forests if they are taken in the wrong way. We have come to recognize the immense importance of conserving our forests in America, and some thought might be given to supplying our Christmas trees in the wisest way. I believe they should be grown for the market like any other crop, which is just what is being done.

It is a bad mistake to get your axe, drive out into the country, and cut a tree on someone's land without permission. Some people who live in the city fail to realize that trees are property. A tree taken from the woods anywhere without the landowner's knowledge is a stolen tree, and this kind of thing perverts the Christmas spirit and makes it into a false and empty thing, contrary to what the celebration of Christmas should stand for. The tree may help to make someone happy after how to plant it so that it will live, it is taken into the city, but it leaves an unhappy and bitter landowner, and sometimes an empty bag in the countryside. It is far better to buy one that has been grown for the purpose, thus supporting a beautiful industry, and getting a tree more beautiful in form than the one you cut wild would probably be, since our southern pines are not usually of the right shape, and the needles are too long.

I cannot understand why people take trees this way. They would not think of raiding a farmer's chicken roost or his garden for their Christmas dinner, yet they do not hesitate to boldly walk away with a tree that may have been part of a beautiful landscape effect in the eyes of the landowner. Perhaps they do not realize they are stealing the trees. In the old pioneer days this continent had unlimited natural resources of all kinds that were, at the beginning, practically free for all who would take them. But there are very few areas of this sort left in this country today, perhaps none at all. We have changed nature to suit ourselves; and it is not the same bountiful wilderness that was here in the beginning. Now we must manage it wisely and fairly if we are to get the best from it. Wild trees have become property and must be treated as such.

The idea that appeals to me most in Christmas tree procedure is that of using a live tree. This is not new, and I cannot find where it began. The tree is bought alive, decorated and used as a Christmas tree, and later planted on the home grounds as a part of the regular shrubbery, and a living memorial of the happy occasion it presided over. These trees may be different varieties of evergreens, and may be planned carefully for their landscaping value after their period of celebration is over. Of course the roots of the tree should be kept balled up in the proper manner and kept moist in a tub during the time it stays in the house. When it is planted the hole should be dug deeply so that the earth all about the roots will be loosened. The nurseryman you buy it from will be glad to give you directions on how to plant it so that it will live.

The first of these living Christmas trees to be planted on the home grounds might be placed in such a location on the lawn that it can be lighted as an outdoor tree later on. In this way it could be made to carry on the spirit of that first Christmas in the home, in form than the one you cut wild

Mr. Williams Is Good Cop, Poor Lover

Melvyn Douglas and Joan Blondell return to the Rialto theater screen Sunday, December 24, to prove themselves one of Hollywood's finest, funniest romantic teams.

The astonishing funsters of "There's Always a Woman" and "Good Girls Go to Paris" are currently starring in "The Amazing Mr. Williams," a laugh-provoking combination of sparkling dialogue, hilarious situations, unusual characterizations and swift-paced, suspenseful action.

Douglas as "The Amazing Mr. Williams," a blithe super-sleuth who responds to the haunting call of a police siren with unabashed eagerness. Engaged to the lovely Maxine Carroll, the mayor's secretary, he is much too busy solving mysterious crimes to bother about marriage. And Maxine, that dumb-as-a-fox young woman portrayed by Miss Blondell, is equally talented in the matter of murder, and providing Mr. Williams with headaches. But she doesn't quite know how to get her man!

And so "The Amazing Mr. Williams" dodges marriage, even while he tries to get married, and solves mysterious murders, even while he takes a convicted murderer out on a "double-date" and glumly watches the convict attempt to "steal" his own girl! And the lovely Maxine spends her time to equally grand advantage advantage, so far as theater audiences are concerned. She helps "The Amazing Mr. Williams" solve a murder; she persuades him to disguise himself as a woman in order to capture a midnight masher, and succeeds in herself winding up on a hospital bed; she tries to get her boy friend thrown off the force—and succeeds, only to fight as desperately for his reinstatement and otherwise makes life miserable for Mr. Williams!

The co-stars are excellent, brilliantly cast and ideal teammates in comedy, romance and histrionics. Their supporting players are equally well chosen, with Ruth Donnelly and Edward Brophy standing out. Others in the superb cast include Clarence Kolb, John Wray, Donald MacBride, Don Beddoe and Luis Alberni.

"The Amazing Mr. Williams" might have been called "The Amusing Mr. Williams," except that "amusing" is too mild an adjective to apply to this hectic, thoroughly delightful film.

Melvyn Douglas and that woman again, Joan Blondell, in another comedy mystery called "The Amazing Mr. Williams," in which Melvyn almost loses his girl and his police badge. It opens Christmas Eve at the Rialto.

'No Salesman's Joke Heroine'—Joan

By FREDERICK C. OTHMAN, United Press Hollywood Correspondent.

"HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 16.—(UP) Billboards across the nation these days are carrying gigantic portraits of Miss Joan Bennett, in a clinging lavender gown, informing the populace that she is appearing in a motion picture called "The Housekeeper's Daughter."

Beneath her likeness is this jingle: "Five men are after the housekeeper's daughter—and she treats 'em as she hadn't oughter." Newspaper advertisements are carrying similar portraits of Miss Bennett with the verse: "She couldn't keep house; she couldn't cook; but what she knew about men—would fill a book."

Miss Bennett told us today that she regards these advertisements not only as insults to herself, but as frauds upon the public. She said she intended to sue Hal Roach Studios if the ads damaged her reputation and added that she had written 2,600 women's clues, assuring them that the title was a canard, a fake, and the next thing to libel.

She wants it known that she plays the part of a dignified young woman in this picture—and not the heroine of a traveling salesman's joke. Furthermore, she said she didn't think the picture was any great shakes of a movie, anyway.

All this makes news because it marks, so far as we know, the first time a movie star ever took her arguments with the studio direct to the public. Personally,

George King's Band Coming To Grady

George King, well known to radio audiences in the Midwest by his slogan, "Melodies Old and New," played by George King, "Just for You"—brings his entertaining unit to the Spanish room of the Henry Grady hotel Saturday.

King comes to Atlanta from the Hotel Lowery, St. Paul. Other recent engagements include Bill Green's Casino in Pittsburgh; the Greystone ballroom, in Detroit; Barney Rapp's Supper Club, in Cincinnati, and the Trianon, in Cleveland.

Besides King, the leading personality of the band is Bud Dowling, handsome young baritone, also Billy McKay, who doubles between the bass and novelty tunes. Happy Howard's whistling introduces a soothing note, and Don Cronin's "singing trumpet" introduces each tune, trading a "melody old" for the "new."

Lovely Kay Nichols, with her songs hot and sweet, is also featured.

JOAN BENNETT. Past Went With Blond Hair.

we enjoyed "The Housekeeper's Daughter."

A year ago Miss Bennett took a lacing from the movie critics when she appeared in Paramount's "The Texan" and survived snow storm, flood, and hurricane without ever her blonde hair being mussed. This was more the producer's fault than tured and Roy Miller, impersonator, formerly of the Vallee hour, adds a humorous note to the 45-minute show, to be presented twice nightly.

'The Real Glory' Plays Now At Rhodes

Fast-moving action is in store for moviegoers seeing "The Real Glory," which co-stars Gary Cooper, Andrea Leeds and David Niven at the Rhodes theater.

Cooper plays the type of outdoor role which has made him one of the screen's topnotch stars, portraying a doctor who has joined the army and come to work in the Philippines to sharpen his experience.

Opposite Cooper, Miss Leeds and hers, but since then she has let her hair grow out black and made a new name for herself.

"It's a funny thing," she said on the set of "The House Across the Bay," "but somehow I seem to be a different woman with my dark hair. I think I'm more positive."

Whatever she believes she is, we think she ranks right up there with the most beautiful women in Hollywood. Today she was clad in a black silk dress, holding a gardenia, and singing a song in Walter Wanger's version of a San Francisco ditty, and we just stood there, staring. For beauty's sake you can have Hedy Lamarr; we'll take Miss B.

The house across the bay is Alcatraz prison. Miss Bennett's husband, George Raft, is inside, serving 10 years, and she's in San Francisco, waiting for him. He breaks loose, swims the bay and drops in to see her. She offers to go with him into hiding, but Raft says no, he's a no-good. He walks into a searchlight so a convict guard can shoot him and that leaves Miss Bennett ready to be wooed by the handsome airplane designer. Finis.

It's an odd sort of a plot and it ought to make a good movie. It's being directed by Archie Mayo, the rotund gentleman we first saw two years ago, dressed in a pair of shorts, a pith helmet, and a wrist watch. He was directing "Marco Polo" then and the weather was hot. Since then he's done half a dozen excellent pictures, keeping his shirt on most of the time.

David Niven turn in capital performances, the brunet beauty as a visiting American, and Niven as one of Cooper's buddies. Other first-rate portrayals are handled by such outstanding players as Reginald Owen, Broderick Crawford, Kay Johnson, Vladimir Sokoloff, Russell Hicks and Henry Kolker. Brilliant sets and excellent photography mark the production throughout, and special words of praise are due Paul Widlicka and James Bassei for the authentic settings and special effects.

Penny Singleton's name has become so synonymous with that of "Blondie" that she receives bags of mail simply addressed "Blondie, Hollywood, Cal.?" Miss Singleton recently completed the third Blondie picture, "Blondie Takes a Vacation."

'Honor Thy Father---' But Sons Buy Love

The scandalous escapades of three sons and a daughter of a millionaire who choose to buy love and pleasure and who cynically scout the existence of anything worth while, are portrayed in "Three Sons," new dramatic film in which Edward Ellis heads the cast and which opens a four-day engagement at the Capitol theater starting today.

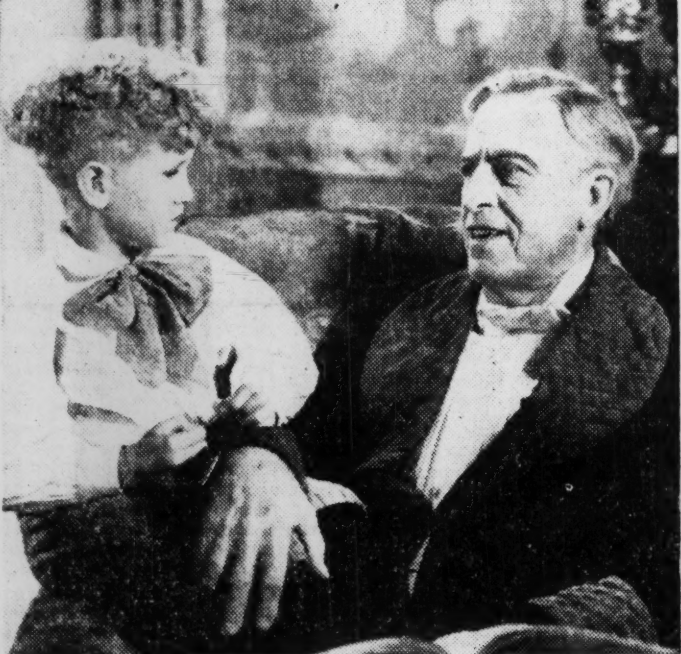

Chronicling several decades of American history, the story begins shortly after the destruction of Chicago by fire. The efforts of a determined man to erect a mercantile dynasty for his children, and the latter's squandering of their heritage, is said to provide excellent screen fare.

William Gargan, Kent Taylor, Dick Hogan and Robert Stanton portray the irresponsible sons of Ellis and Virginia Vale the daughter.

Starting Thursday the Capitol will present for three days only, "Bulldog Drummond's Secret Police" starring John Howard, Heather Angel, H. B. Warner and Reginald Denny.

In continuing its policy of presenting de luxe stage attractions consisting of casts running from 35 to 50 people when same are available, the Capitol theater management has announced that for Christmas week, starting next Sunday, there will be offered on the stage the special stage show "Pleasures of Paris," a French revue which will feature stars who have won fame in the night clubs of Montmartre and Montparnasse.

So in the event there are any Atlantians who have wondered what the Parisians go to see, what makes their night life so gay and interesting, "Pleasures of Paris" will offer the solution.

One of the features of this new stage presentation is said to be the large cast of beautiful girls which are presented in many production numbers.

In addition to the feminine portion of the offering the unit also offers a large cast of vaudeville acts and good comedians.

'Idiot's Delight' Opens Today At Center

The Center presents "Idiot's Delight," starring Clark Gable and Norma Shearer, today and tomorrow. The story follows the lives of two vaudeville troupers, the girl strives for an exalted position in life and becomes a fake countess. The hooper, still what he was back in Omaha, meets her in Europe at a critical moment in the international scene. War breaks out and they are stranded in a border town with a group of strange people.

They Make the Funny Noises for 'Gulliver's Travels'

A trip backstage in the filming of the technicolor cartoon production of "Gulliver's Travels," which opens Saturday at the Fox theater. Above is a picture you will see on the screen. A Lilliputian tramp is taking a snooze—a loud one as the Lilliputian cop approaches, about to do his stuff. While in the picture below...

The men and women who make the sounds and do the talking for the little cartoons. Jack Mercer, Margie Hines and Pinto Colvig make the noises for the buccolic scene—a tramp snoring, a cop approaching softly and the distant moo of the cow. Mercer makes the "moo" as Margie does the footfalls and Colvig puts on the snore.

Haley, Carlisle Will Open New Roxy

Atlanta's Roxy theater will open on Christmas Eve. The program will offer stage and screen entertainment, according to James H. McKoy, manager of the theater.

A complete new air conditioning equipment has been installed in addition to the placing of the very finest sound reproducing equipment. The new Western Electric Microphonic sound gives a true quality to the human voice.

As the opening attraction the Roxy will present, in person, Jack Haley and Mary Carlisle, Hollywood movie stars, in addition to five additional acts and a stage band. It's the "Star Parade" and it comprises one of the outstanding stage units of the year.

Jack Haley in Person.

Haley has been the star of countless Hollywood productions, his latest being the "Heartless Tin Man" in MGM's "The Wizard of Oz." Previous to that he played in "Mr. Broadway," "Sitting Pretty," "Here Comes the Groom," "Spring Tonic," "Redheads on Parade," "The Poor Little Rich Girl," "Pigskin Parade," "Wake Up and Live," "She Had to Eat," "Kentucky Moonshine" and "Alexander's Ragtime Band."

Mary Carlisle is one of the most beautiful and finest young actresses in Hollywood. She is best known for having appeared opposite Bing Crosby in three different pictures, a record. But her talents are not confined only to Crosby, she having appeared in many more productions. Her latest films include, "Double or Nothing," "Doctor Rhythm," "Hunted Men," "Tip-Off Girl," and the recent "Hawaiian Nights."

Juggler on Program.

Another star on the program, Howard Nichols, "The Ace of Hoops," will certainly please Atlantans with his remarkable feats of juggling. And in addition to these stars five other equally entertaining acts and an orchestra will be featured on the program.

Spiced with a bit of melodrama, "Everybody's Hobby," the feature attraction on the program with Irene Rich and Henry O'Neill in the main roles, is mostly a heart-warming and amusing tale about events in a typical American middle class family.

This family, like about every other in the nation, is made up of hobbyists. Every member of it has his or her own hobby, and each is almost fanatically devoted to the pursuit of said hobby.

A little gentle fun is poked at the hobbyists and their avocations, but the picture is really on their side and constitutes a rather convincing homily on the generally beneficial effect of the penchant of Americans for cultivating hobbies.

Laurel and Hardy in Music, Pantomime Film Novelty

Laurel and Hardy, one of Hollywood's most prolific and popular comedy teams, return to the Paramount Wednesday in "The Flying Deuces," their first feature-length comedy in more than a year.

This time the veteran comics have taken to the airways as a background for their misadventures, a thrilling and hilarious climax being provided in the final sequence, when the boys, as two Foreign Legionnaires sentenced to die for desertion, take flight in an endurance ship.

The colorful background of Morocco and the Legion provide a natural and dramatic setting for pageantry and tomfoolery.

Comedy highlights follow in rapid succession throughout the picture. There is the hilarious sequence when Stan encounters difficulty in performing his ablutions at a French inn's washstand. Later, planning of a double suicide is equally amusing. Audiences will be delighted to see how the pair withstand the assault of a squadron of soldiers with bottled champagne, and how they attack the problem of doing a regimental washing and ironing.

For good measure, Laurel has thrown in a harp solo played as a bed spring, and an eccentric dance to the singing of Oliver.

The screen-play, which is credited to the joint work of Ralph Spence, Alfred Langdon, provides the two comedians with a script that is notable for its lack of dialogue, thus allowing them to take full advantage of their genius for pantomime.

Under the expert guidance of Producer Boris Morros—a long highly versed in the art of musical embellishment of stage and screen producer—a sparkling music score has been provided, and so intimately woven into the fabric of the comedy that the music is made to more than compensate for what is lacking the way of dialogue. Comedy situations are enhanced by the trick of musical sound—an innovation in the present-day field of screen comedy.

The producer has also provided lavish settings, both for the French and the Moroccan sequences, a complete barracks which houses several hundred Legionnaires being particularly impressive.

The supporting cast to Laurel and Hardy includes Jean Parker, leading lady, in the featured role of a French girl with whom Oliver Hardy falls in love; Reginald Gardner, also featured, as her suspicious lieutenant husband; Charles Middleton as the commandant of the Moroccan post of the Foreign Legion; Jean Del Val and Glen Wilenichick as sergeant and corporal, respectively; James Finlayson as a jailer, and many others, the cast being a large one. Flying thrills in the airplane stunts are provided by Frank Clarke, one of the veteran stunt fliers.

The director of this RKO Radio release was A. Edward Sutherland, who has previously expertly guided the destinies of Laurel and Hardy. The musical score was supplied by John Leipold and Leo Shuken, and was directed by Edward Paul.

Laurel and Hardy rank as the oldest comedy duo on the screen. They are now playing their thirteenth feature picture together, and have also appeared together in more than 60 shorts, being the most prolific, as well as the most successful of the film comedy duos.

RIGHT AT HOME.

Earle Hodgins, veteran comedian who portrays a role second only to William Boyd in Paramount's "Sante Fe Marshal," began his theatrical career with a medicine show and was able to serve as technical advisor for Producer Harry Sherman during the making of the picture.

HOLLYWOOD TODAY

FILM COLONY'S SATELLITES.

By SHEILAH GRAHAM.

Released by North America Newspaper Alliance, Inc.

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 16.—"From reading your column and other dispatches, I get the impression that quite a number of satellites and hangers-on have grown up around the movie star group. What about this demi-monde of the film colony? It might be interesting to describe." This is part of a letter from Walter Monfried, drama editor of the Milwaukee Journal.

"Interesting" is the right word for the strangely assorted bunch of people who revolve around the movie industry, who are well-known in Hollywood, and sometimes to the rest of the world, without benefit of picture work.

Perhaps the most famous in our behind-the-scenes colony is "Prince" Mike Romanoff—nee Harry Gersgen, of New York. No party or function here is considered complete without the trim, dapper, Oxford-accented, imaginary scion of the Romanoffs. Mike, as you know, went abroad many years ago, came back as a Russian prince and fooled half the society folk of this country. About three years ago, he descended on Hollywood—where he is known as the only honest prince. He was given a job of scripting by Twentieth-Century Fox at, I think, $50 a week.

But Mike found the regular salary and regular life boring, so gave it up—or vice versa—to visit his "estates" in Virginia. If these estates are anything like Mike's "estates" in New York, they consist of a bench in a park. Mike came back to us recently and is now holding down the job of social director of the Cocoanut Grove!

Another non-film character who contrives to get himself frequently into the news is publicity-loving Dr. Gaylord Hauser—nee Benjamin Gaylord Hauser, late of Vienna, later of Milwaukee, and now of Hollywood. Dr. Hauser is the latest name to be linked with Greta Garbo's. He put her on a fruit and juice diet, and himself in a pleasant publicity spotlight. Hauser is also famous for introducing garlic to the Duke and Duchess of Windsor, and as the creator of a pleasant-sounding soup called "Potassium Broth," and the carrot cocktail. (Ugh!)

The Countess Dorothy Di Frasso gets more publicity from Hollywood than many of its film stars. The Countess is a daughter of a former governor of the New York Stock Exchange, and is blessed with lots of dollars for which she did not have to work. She decided to make Hollywood her headquarters after meeting Gary Cooper—B. M. (before his marriage).

Gary was wearing a pale green suit at the time, and the Countess advised him to visit a good tailor and look like a man of the world. This proved so successful that the Countess decided to come to Hollywood and repeat the experiment. (She had heard that the actors of Hollywood dressed even worse than Gary when she had first seen him.)

Otherwise, the Countess' chief claims to attention in Hollywood are her extravagant parties, the introduction of a concealed dictaphone at one of those parties (such fun her friends had later, listening to the conversations of unsuspecting guests!) And her recent treasure-hunting trip on a boat in charge of Mr. Bello, stepfather of the late Jean Harlow, and several others. They did not find the treasure. Mutiny of some sort broke out among the crew and Dorothy was glad to get back to Hollywood with her life. I forgot to add—she is in her early fifties.

Mack Grey came to Hollywood as George Ray's bodyguard and secretary. Between them, they write a near-fair letter. And I'm not even sure he's a good bodyguard, because bodyguards have to carry guns, and Mack can't stand the beastly thing. He is now turning whatever talents he may possess into the noble art of screen acting. He plays bits or atmosphere in all of Ray's pictures. He is aiming to become a movie idol and has had his nose straightened.

The first time I saw Pat Di Cicco's name in print was at the end of 1935, when his former wife, Thelma Todd, was discovered dead in the garage of her home. Pat, of course, had nothing to do with that, but he was mentioned in the summary of her life.

Since then, the name of Di Cicco has figured in Hollywood news as the escort of some of its fairest women—among them Margaret Lindsay and Olivia De Havilland. He is also an intimate of Flier Howard Hughes. By profession, he is an agent.

A. C. Blumenthal is another non-screen worker who is mentioned frequently in the movie columns. "Blumenthal" is the diminutive real estate millionaire is called, is the friend, or rather the confidant, of nearly all the big-shot actresses here. They'll tell him things they wouldn't tell their own lawyers. There is very little basis for this trust because Blumenthal usually tells everything to the one person the confidant would least have known her confidences.

Blumenthal has an impish quality. But, somehow, they can't help liking him. When he lives in Hollywood, he can stay in any mansion he chooses—from Joe Schenck's palace to Constance Bennett's—or Charlie Chaplin's mansion.

Other members of this Hollywood shadow-world include the substantial Robert Ritchie, ex-manager and finance of Jeanette MacDonald and now a talent scout for Metro—he discovered Hedy LaMarr, Greer Garson, Miliza Korjus, Virginia Felt, Chicago divorcee and in the news because of her long friendship with George Raft; Jinx Falkenberg—ex-model and unlucky would-be actress—she hurt her back last year posing for swimming suits and has been a sick girl ever since; Harry Crocker, man-about-town and columnist on a local paper; Townsend Nether, ex-husband of Constance Talmadge and now Hollywood man-about-town; John McClain, former ship news reporter in New York and now the sometimes escort of Loretta Young. And Dr. Cecil Reynolds, the English brain surgeon, who plays Hamlet at the drop of a scalpel and is the closest friend of Charlie Chaplin.

These people all count for something in Hollywood—if only to the 400-odd reporters, columnists and magazine writers. They provide us with some of our best—or, rather, most amusing—copy.

Bridge Lite

By HAROLD SHARPSTEEN.

Vindicating the Rules.

Among the thousands of bridge hands we are privileged to examine, every now and then a deal pops up threatening to knock all closely-precised bidding systems into a cocked hat.

Bridge students, for one thing, are reminded to expect game, holding six honor-tricks combined in partnership hands. They are also warned against doubling suit bids when the double is based on trump length alone.

Avalanche of Honors.

The following deal, which is replete with possibilities, was played at four hearts. It was doubled and defeated two tricks. Declarer's side held 7-1-2 honor-tricks. Doubler held nothing but length in trumps.

Only when the deal was replayed at double-dummy, were bidding rules exonerated.

While the hand plays easily at three-trump, West opened the East returned the Club Jack. L. took spade 7 against South's four heart bid, East trumping the first trick. East returned the club jack, South and West covered in turn, dummy winning with the club ace.

Declarer then led the heart ace to unblock trumps in his own hand and to sound out the trump situation. It was a rude shock for declarer to find all of the trumps bunched in East's hand.

Declarer elected to lead another heart through East, East playing the 10, South covering with the Queen. Now what to do? South can not lead hearts. Spades will be trumped. To lead two diamond tricks gives East an extra club trick. East always makes five more tricks, three hearts, a diamond and a club trick.

Should Return Clubs.

South's mistake occurred early in the play. With only the club king and diamond queen missing, East was marked with at least five hearts and probably six. Had declarer led back a club after winning with the ace on the second trick, it would have been East's worry from that point. What-ever East leads, dummy is thrown in and clubs can be continued through East, giving South an opportunity to overtrump and discard a spade on dummy's good club. Following this line of play, declarer makes 11 tricks instead of seven.

Your Questions Answered

Q. What was the total production of the fish and seafood canning industry in 1938, and what was the most important individual produce?

A. The total production amounted to about 667,000,000 pounds, of which salmon was the most important, with 349,000,000 pounds packed in the United States and Alaska, or 52 per cent of the total.

Q. Why are German submarines called U-boats?

A. It is an abbreviation of Unterseeboot, the German name for submarine.

Q. Which was the first correspondence school of any note established in the United States?

A. The first one to achieve distinction was started through the initiative of Thomas J. Foster, proprietor and editor of the Shenandoah Herald, who issued a "course in coal mining" as a means of educating and safeguarding workmen through knowledge of the fundamentals of mine developing and operating. The first student of this organization, now known as the International Correspondence Schools, with headquarters at Scranton, Pa., was enrolled October 16, 1891.

Q. I am an interne in a hospital on a nominal salary. When will my pay be exempt from the Social Security old-age tax?

A. After December 31, 1939.

Q. What are vesicants and stenuators, used in chemical warfare?

A. Vesicants are chemicals that produce blisters on the body, and stenuators are chemicals that cause sneezing.

Q. What is a pentathlon?

A. A contest (usually athletic) in which each contestant participates in five separate events as, for example, discus throwing, 400-meter race, 100-meter hurdle race, pole vault and running broad jump.

Q. How many Italian and German-born persons were in the United States when the last census was taken?

A. Italian born, 1,790,422 and German born, 1,608,814. A compilation showing the number of foreign-born white persons at the time of the 1939 census can be obtained by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope to our Service Bureau, 1013 Thirteenth street, Washington, D. C. Ask for "Foreign Population of the United States."

Q. What is the temperature range in the Panama Canal Zone?

A. The highest temperatures known there are about 100 degrees and the lowest about 60 degrees.

Q. What famous British author could not speak English until he was a grown man?

A. Joseph Conrad, who was born in Poland, and spent many years at sea.

Q. How much snow equals one inch of rain?

A. The Weather Bureau estimates that generally 10 inches of snow equals one inch of rain. When very wet and sticky, seven or eight inches may yield an inch of water, but when very light and feathery, two or even three feet are required to yield a similar quantity.

Q. How many persons are employed in the Federal Executive Civil Service and what is the total payroll?

were 939,876 employees and the total monthly payroll was $14,629,881.

Q. When must an employer deduct the Social Security old-age tax from a salesman's commission?

A. The law requires that this tax on commissions be deducted at the time that the commissions are paid. If a salesman is permitted to keep the deposit paid on an article as the whole or a part of his commission, the tax may be deducted in any way agreed upon by the salesman and his employer, provided it is sent by the employer at the proper time to the Bureau of Internal Revenue.

Q. Why is the cap forced off of a bottle of milk when it freezes?

A. Milk consists largely of water, which expands one-tenth of its volume when frozen. If a bottle is filled with liquid milk, it will expand out the top when frozen, and lift the cap.

DECEMBER REMINDERS

By W. ELBRIDGE FREEBORN.

December is a month in between activities in the garden and for that reason today we want to remind you of the little garden chores that should not be overlooked but should be done right now. Some of these we are going to mention will be: spraying, pruning, preparation of the ground for various plants and some few things to be planted.

The vegetable and the cut flower garden should be plowed or spaded at the first opportunity and it is well to work into this soil either well rotted stable manure or peat moss, whichever may be obtained more easily. It seems ridiculous to talk about drouth at a time when all our gardens are flooded, but this is the best time to prepare for next summer's drouth. By working in peat moss or well rotted stable manure now, moisture will be held in the soil next summer. And thinking of this type of work reminds us that this same thing should be done to your perennial borders and shrubbery borders, except that the peat moss, stable manure or woods earth should be placed on the surface of these beds and partially worked into the surface of the soil. It might be well to add a little fertilizer to this. Really, for an ideal mixture for this kind of work we would recommend one bale of peat moss, 100 pounds of sheep manure, and one large wheelbarrow full of woods earth.

Regarding fertilizing, a top dressing on your lawn, whether it be ryegrass, evergreen lawn grass or Bermuda lawn grass may be made decidedly new. For quicker feeding we suggest the use of a slow acting fertilizer such as stable manure or bone meal. A little later, about the first of March, we will recommend the use of a faster fertilizer, a commercial one analyzing about 12-4-4.

It might be well to make a light application of raw bone meal on the surface of your bulb beds. Don't forget the bulbs that are planted around the edge of the shrubs and on the lawn. These must be fertilized, too.

PRUNING.

Pruning is very important, particularly so this year, due to the peculiar sort of winter we have had. Generally speaking, we will recommend the removal of all dead wood and the elimination of cracked or split branches as well as tall, unsightly growth.

In the rose garden, in addition to the elimination of dead wood and cracked or split branches, we suggest the hybrid or perpetuals be pruned back to about two and one-half feet. These roses will need another pruning about the first of March, just before spring growth starts. At that time all of the bush roses should be pruned back to not more than ten inches.

The last pruning of all fruit trees

WHAT TO PLANT IN DECEMBER.

VEGETABLES: Sow lettuce, cabbage and onion seeds in the cold frame. Start an asparagus bed at this time. Plant Bermuda onion plants, onion sets, cabbage plants; German peas, mustard, rape, turnips and carrots.

SHRUBBERY: Have your shrubbery planted this month. Evergreens, conifers and flowering shrubs. Flowering shrubs that bloom in the summer should be pruned now. Mulch your shrubs with a mixture of bone meal and sheep manure.

PLANTS: Set out roses, strawberry and Japanese iris plants.

FRUITS AND BERRIES: This month is a fine time for planting all kinds of fruit and nut trees, berries, grapes and scuppernongs.

JAPANESE LILIES: All of the Japanese lilies may be planted now, including speciosum magnificum, auratum, tiger lilies, album, etc.

BULBS: It is getting late but spring flowering bulbs will still grow and bloom if planted at once. These include hyacinths, daffodils, crocus, tulips and iris bulbs.

should take place now. Care should be taken that peach trees be left with open head in order that sunlight may get in to combat disease.

SPRAYING.

After this mild winter, and unless it changes a great deal it is going to be one of the mildest winters we have ever had, we might as well get our minds fixed, information ready, spray pumps cleaned out and insecticides on the shelf, for this will probably be a bad and disease filled summer in the garden. Right now there is considerable work that can be done to prevent a great deal of the damage. The pruning and burning of dead wood, the removal of them will destroy one hiding place for scales, insects and other diseases.

An trees such as apples, pears, peaches, and plums and in the shrubbery border or on broad leaf evergreens, winter spraying should be carried on now. There are a number of general preparations that may be purchased from seed stores and in order that you get exactly what you would like to have, we suggest you write us for a spray guide. We will be very glad to mail you one without charge in which you will have full information for the spraying of roses, fruit trees, shrubbery and annual flowers. With this guide before you it will be a case of a stitch in time saves nine.

WHAT TO DO IN DECEMBER.

MULCHING: December is the accepted month for all kinds of mulching. The rose bed, perennial garden and shrubbery border should be protected. The best material for this mulching is a mixture of sheep manure, peat moss and woods earth.

FERTILIZING: It is also time to fertilize the lawn with a light application of some good fertilizer, such as bone meal or sheep manure. These two fertilizers are much to be preferred over the highly concentrated commercial ones. Use raw bone meal for bulbs and perennials.

PRUNING: Take the tall stems out of hybrid perpetual roses as well as the dead wood. Remove the dead wood from all shrubbery and evergreens and give the fruit trees a good pruning.

SPRAYING: Now that fruit trees are dormant be sure to give them a good thorough spraying with a scalecide or for peach trees use dry lime sulphur.

John L. Conner, prominent Atlanta business executive, president and founder of the Southern Federal Savings & Loan Association of Atlanta, and vice-president and treasurer of Dargan, Whittington & Conner, Inc., employs and unhesitatingly recommends graduates of The Draughton School of Commerce.

Mr. Conner says, in effect, that jobs and opportunity for advancement await Draughton graduates, in praising members of his staff (many of whom are Draughton trained), who he asserts are "very efficient, conscientious and loyal."

In a letter to Clark E. Harrison, Manager, which appears below, Mr. Conner emphasized the thoroughness of employees obtained from Draughton's:

"Dear Mr. Harrison: As you know, for a number of years the Southern Federal Savings & Loan Association of Atlanta, as well as Dargan, Whittington & Conner, Inc., which I serve as Vice-President and Treasurer, has been procuring employees from your organization, and we have always found them to be very efficient, conscientious and loyal. Some of your graduates have been with us for more than ten years and we have very little change in our office personnel."

This Christmas the best loved ginger ale in all the world—Canada Dry—will bring added joy to millions of families everywhere. There is reason aplenty why you should join them...

1. THE CHEERY GOODNESS... the zest and sparkle... and, above all, the inimitable flavor of Canada Dry Ginger Ale... have endeared it to the people of 50 nations.

2. THE FINEST GINGER ROOT, from which Canada Dry gets its delightful tang, aroma and bouquet, is selected by Canada Dry's resident expert on the Island of Jamaica.

3. TRY CANADA DRY with those over-generous holiday meals. You'll find it a delicious aid to digestion... at home or at leading hotels and clubs. You'll find—it's gingering!

4. CHILDREN CAN DRINK Canada Dry to their heart's content. It contains no artificial stimulant. It provides pep—but only in the form of food energy.

5. CANADA DRY GINGER ALE is so wholesome... its ingredients are so carefully selected... that it is served in hospitals... recommended by doctors to their patients.

6. TRY CANADA DRY in your home during the holidays—and you'll serve it ever afterwards. The cost? You'll wonder how such a kingly drink can be bought for so little!

CAMELS

PRINCE ALBERT

Seasons Greetings

(Right) America's Number One Cigarette... Camels. This gay, new Christmas package contains 4 boxes of Camels in the "flat fifty" size. Your dealer is featuring it now.

(Below) Check the pipe-smokers on your list and count on Prince Albert - world's most popular smoking tobacco. This attractive one-pound package of cooler-smoking Prince Albert is sure to please!

Camels

There's no finer gift for those who smoke cigarettes than Camels. You can be sure your choice is wise—for more people enjoy Camels than any other brand. And when you give Camels you're giving the milder, cooler smoking of Camel's matchless blend of long-burning costlier tobaccos. Your dealer is featuring Camels in a choice of two attractive gift packages—200 Camels in each. There's lots of cheer in smoking Camels—and in giving Camels!

(Below) All Christmas-wrapped and ready to give—10 packs of "20's"—200 mild, cool Camels—the cigarette for giving!

Prince Albert

If he smokes a pipe then he's bound to appreciate a gift of Prince Albert Smoking Tobacco—the largest-selling smoking tobacco in the world. Prince Albert is the famous cooler-smoking pipe tobacco that's made extra mild and extra tasty by special "crimp cut" and "no-bite" treatment. There's so much pleasure in giving Prince Albert because you know your gift will please. So, for pipe-smokers, this Christmas, give Prince Albert—the National Joy Smoke!
